Snow, Cold Swat Much Of Nation

Fierce winter weather left a trail of damage today from the Midwest to the Atlantic, numbed the Fox River Valley and much of the rest of the nation's midsection with subzero cold and encased Canada's Quebec and Ontario provinces in a blizzard.

The low temperature in Appleton this morning of minus 11 found many residents shivering and cars refusing to start. Subzero temperatures are expected here into the weekend.

In its scond day, the storm frustrated snow removal in blizzard conditions in sections of Michigan, Ohio, western New York State and western Pennsylvania.

Struck Midwest

The storm struck the northwestern Midwest Tuesday and as it moved eastward into New England, it pulled more arctic air into its wake. The thermometer registered 28 below zero this morning at International Falls, Minn.

North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin were solidly subzero territory. The National Weather Service said the Northeast was in line for similar cold tonight.

Adding to the discomfort were blustering winds that called forth gale warnings on all the Great Lakes and along the Atlantic Seaboard from Maine to Georgia.

The National Weather Service calculated the wind chill factor —the combination of temperature and wind velocity—at -40 degrees in Chicago this morning. The actual low there was -2.

In contrast, the weather was fair and mild most everywhere west of the Rocky Mountains. Morning low temperatures were above freezing in such unlikely places as Helena, Mont., and Casper, Wyo.

Blinding Fog

In the San Joaquin Valley north of Bakersfield, Calif., 70 cars were involved in two pileups in a blinding fog. Four persons were killed, but casualty reports were incomplete. A highway patrol dispatcher said, "We're still digging."

In the eastern storm area, many Ohio schools and Kent State University suspended classes because of the snow blockade, wind and cold.

At least three highways were closed in the Ashtabula area. House and camping trailers were banned from the Ohio Turnpike because high winds, and the speed limit was reduced from 70 miles an hour to 40.

Some 50 persons were treated for storm-caused injuries at Cleveland, where wind gusts hit 75 m.p.h. Around 2,000 travelers and commuters were stranded overnight in Cleveland motels and hotels.

A Canadian Coast Guard cutter recorded a gust of 98 m.p.h. on Lake Erie near Ashtabula Tuesday.

In New York State, the Thruway was closed from Schnectady to near Buffalo as windblown snow dropped visibility to near zero. Numerous schools and businesses were shut down for the day. The City of Batavia opened firehalls as havens for stranded motorists.

All roads in New York's three westernmost counties were blocked by deep and drifting snow Tuesday night. Troopers near Buffalo even withdrew highway patrols except for emergencies.

Wind gusts of 60 miles an hour frustrated snow-removal efforts. Gusts up to 80 miles an hour battered the Buffalo suburb of North Tonawanda.

In neighboring Ontario, a blizzard closed many major highways Tuesday and left more than 15,000 school children stranded in rural school buildings and nearby farmhouses. London, Woodstock and Barrie were termed "completely isolated" late Tuesday.

The storm walloped much of Upper and Lower Michigan and Ohio earlier Tuesday. All roads were closed for a time in 13 Lower Michigan counties.

60 m.p.h. Winds

Winds of 60 miles an hour hit hard at the Virginias where uprooted or broken trees caused numerous temporary highway closures.

The wind destroyed three house trailers in Page County, Va. One trailer with four persons inside was overturned and slammed down on a nearby road, but no one was injured seriously.

A Norfolk man experimenting with a parachute was picked up and blown onto the roof of a house. Police got him down. He was hospitalized with a broken leg.

Three walls of a 65,000-square foot building under construction in Bedford County, Va., were blown down. No one was injured.

Gale warnings flew over all

Drug Use a Symptom, Linkletter Tells Parents

BY WILLIAM KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

An entertainer who for years has pried into the minds of youngsters Tuesday night told 2,700 parents why their children take drugs and what they should and should not do to stop it.

"The drug abuse problem is just part of the bigger problem," cautioned Art Linkletter who concluded a full day of appearances here with a talk to a gymnasium full of people at Appleton High School-East.

He said the problem hides a sickness in society that results from a relentless pursuit of material things, affluence and fun.

"And the more we pursue those things, the farther down the list of priorities go our children," Linkletter said.

Not Deprived

Children today aren't being deprived of anything, he explained. "It's just the opposite. They're getting too much too soon, too early and too fast." What they are not getting, he warned, is love and attention.

"A family today can sit at home seven nights a week—all of the family together in one room—and never say a meaningful word to each other because they are all encased in little invisible tubes of attention riveted on a set and they're not talking but they're living the vicarious life of Bonanza or Lucy or the Interns or The Medics or something else."

Linkletter, who has had popular radio and television shows on all three major networks, informed parents that "... the average kid, by the time he reaches high school, has sat in front of a tube for 15,000 hours. By the time the average kid goes to first grade, he's watched television more than he will go to school in the next five grades."

Easy Answers

He warned that some of the things the youngsters are watching are influencing the drug problem. "They see every kind of an example of this wonderful thing about anxiety and pain and problems and troubles being just a swallow away."

Linkletter drew applause when he remarked, "I don't believe a family should be a democracy, but it should be a loving dictatorship."

There are other things built into our civilization that most people do not think of in terms of contributing to the drug abuse problem, Linkletter said. Things like divorce, working mothers and a mobility that does not allow for the endurance of strong relative and neighbor ties.

All those factors not only are relative to the drug abuse problem, which Linkletter said "you can no longer think of as somebody else's problem," but also have contributed to the increase in the number of runaway youths and a general sexual permissiveness that has resulted in a "venereal disease rise in this country that is without precedent in the history of the world."

Dead Daughter

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army WO Terry F. Mezera, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Mezera of Eau Claire, was killed in action in Southeast Asia, the Pentagon reported Tuesday.

Truman Has Diverticulitis

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S Truman's physician says a moderate amount of diverticulitis in the intestinal tract is the apparent cause of the former president's abdominal difficulty.

The disorder is one in which material from the intestinal tract collects in sac-like appendages to the large intestine, causing irritation.

Dr. Wallace Graham said Tuesday that Truman also has some hardening of the arteries but in no greater amount than is commonly found in a person Truman's age. Truman will be 87 May 8.

Tuesday night, John Dreves, hospital information director, said Truman continued in good condition and his appetite showed steady improvement.

Graham gave no indication of how long Truman will be hospitalized. He has been in Research Hospital since last Thursday.

Crew Tests Procedures for Possible Apollo Emergency

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts climbed into spaceship trainers today for a stern test of how they would react to possible emergencies on the moon journey which starts Sunday.

Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell worked in the lunar module simulator and Stuart A. Roosa in the command ship trainer.

The plan for the lengthy exercise called for Mission Control center in Houston to advise them to run through a certain phase of the flight, such as lunar descent or liftoff. The controllers would then simulate a malfunction of a system aboard either or both craft and evaluate how well the astronauts take corrective action.

Later in the day, the spacemen were to be briefed by engineers on modifications made to the Saturn 5 rocket and the spaceships. Roosa planned to make proficiency flying runs in a jet plane at nearby Patrick Air Force Base.

The controllers probably had trouble fooling Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa with emergency simulations. They have had more training than any previous Apollo crew, especially on trouble procedures.

"We've practiced reaction to real emergency—the oxygen tank explosion that aborted the Apollo 13 mission near the moon last April and forced the three pilots to wage a four-day fight for survival before they returned to earth.

The Apollo 14 liftoff has been delayed nearly four months while design changes were made to prevent a recurrence of many failures that previous crews did not have time for," Shepard said recently.

The astronauts gained the extra training time because of a the tank rupture.

That was the second major setback in the Apollo program. The first occurred four years ago today, Jan. 27, 1967, when the Apollo 1 team—Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee—died in a launch pad fire during a test at Cape Kennedy.

At the launch pad today, the countdown was proceeding on schedule toward liftoff of the Saturn 5 rocket at 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday.

Major procedures today include loading gaseous helium used for pressurization aboard the command ship Kitty Hawk and pressurizing the propellant tanks in the lunar module Antares.

Shepard and Mitchell on Feb. 5 are to ride Antares to a landing in the Fra Mauro highlands to search for prisiine lunar soil.

Police and civic officials meanwhile prepared to handle the half a million visitors Brevard County Sheriff Leigh Wilson predicts will converge on the area to watch the launching.

Heavy traffic is expected on all highways, but state, county and local officials are used to it.

"If we handled the Apollo 11 shot with a million people, then we can handle this one," Wilson said.

More School Aid Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says federal school aid would increase from $2.9 billion to $5.1 billion under the general revenue sharing plan proposed by the President.

Officials say some $2 billion of the increase would be the portion of the proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing pool which states and local governments would use mainly for public school aid. The remaining $200 million would be new money.

As outlined by administration education officials Tuesday, the states would share the $5.1 billion on the basis of population alone. The biggest states, therefore, would get the largest share.

The money would be funneled through five broad categories of elementary and secondary education spending rather than the present 100 sometimes overlapping, special purpose aid programs. The five categories would be compensatory, impact aid to districts with large numbers of federal employes, vocational, handicapped, and equipment and facilities.

"Federal bureaucrats would no longer approve specific projects," one official said. "They would be freed to provide technical assistance to states and cities."

Officials of established educational organizations have complained the federal share of public school spending has dropped from eight per cent to 6.9 per cent in the past three years. These organizations are weighing details of the revenue-sharing proposal before endorsing or opposing the plan.

Medical Cost Help Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal assistance to Americans faced with spiraling medical costs, particularly for the so-called catastrophic illnesses, is being pushed in Congress with three bills being introduced so far.

The latest move was introduction Tuesday of a bill to provide middle-income Americans financial protection against very expensive illnesses.

Sen. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., one of three Senate sponsors, said the measure provides for creation of "pools" by existing private insurance companies. Their cumulative resources would make them rich enough to offer reasonably priced medical insurance previously too expensive for middle-income families.

"The federal role," Boggs said, "would be limited to re-insuring, where necessary, private insurance companies or insurance pools against loss."

Costly Illnesses

An aide to the chief sponsor of a similar House measure, Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., explained that situation would come about only if there were so many very expensive illnesses among policyholders at one time that the pool could not pay all the bills.

Hogan's office said a family with an annual adjusted income of $10,000 would have to buy its first $8,500 worth of medical insurance a year under existing programs. Only medical costs over $8,500 would be covered by the legislation.

"It's not an all-encompassing health-care proposal," Hogan said. "It's aimed at that middle section in the middle-income level.

Goes Beyond

"Ours certainly goes beyond this," an aide to Kennedy said. "Eighty-five hundred dollars is out of sight. It's not that much less than what most middle-income families are making a year."

He said Kennedy supports the concept of catastrophic insurance, but said any minimum level should be well below $8,500.

President Nixon, in his state of the Union Address Friday, said he too will propose new hospital insurance legislation.

But the President said his program will "ensure that no American family will be prevented from obtaining basic medical care by inability to pay."

In another action Tuesday, Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., proposed the federal government repay the educational debt of doctors and other health professionals who agree to practice for three years in areas short of medical facilities and personnel.

Galifianakis has introduced the same proposal in the past and seen it die.

Ringside Seat

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two families will have ringside seats for the Apollo 14 launching Sunday as a reward for three people who helped rescue astronaut Eugene A. Cernan after he crashed a helicopter in the Indian River south of here last Saturday.

Cernan, backup commander for Apollo 14, was flying alone when the chopper crashed and burned. He was thrown clear and suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

Jerry Blevins was picknicking on a small island with his wife and three children. Blevins jumped in his motor boat and sped to the crash site. He threw Cernan a life preserver and helped him to the side of his boat.

Another boat came alongside, carrying Mrs. Joseph Dickerson and her son Terry, 19, who were crab fishing. They helped Cernan into their craft and took him to a marina.

The space agency has invited the Blevins and Dickerson families to watch the Apollo 14 liftoff from a VIP viewing site.

Majority Leader Noncommittal

Nixon Programs Don't Stir Mansfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking for the Democrats on Capitol Hill, Sen. Mike Mansfield said nothing particularly good nor bad about President Nixon's legislative program in a nationally televised "conversation with the Senate Majority Leader."

The Montana senator said Nixon's major proposals deserve congressional attention—but withheld specific endorsements until the bills are introduced.

Mansfield was interviewed for 45 minutes Tuesday by four broadcast journalists. Although he denied any intention of giving a Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union address, he was questioned on major portions of the President's speech.

The format approximated one used by Nixon earlier this month when he was interviewed for an hour on television and radio.

Federal Bureaus

Mansfield agreed it may be wise to consolidate some federal departments, as recommended by President Nixon.

"This is a step in the right direction," he said. "We are top-heavy in federal bureaus and agencies.

"We have been slap-happy, piling agencies upon one another," he added.

Mansfield noted strong opposition to Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal, under which states would get federal funds with no strings.

Asked about a move to junk the seniority system, under which congressional committee chairmen are elected on a basis of length of service, Mansfield said the system has worked remarkably well but he would support an age limit for senators.

Jeopardize Troops

Mansfield voiced doubt Congress will vote to cut off funds for use in Indochina in fear of U.S. troops there would be jeopardized.

But he declared Nixon should set a definite timetable for removal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and withdraw about half of the American troops in Europe.

South Vietnam has a million-man army which should be able to defend Indochina, Mansfield said, and European nations should be encouraged to provide troops for their own protection.

Mansfield voiced no reservations about his relationship with the new assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who unseated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

"Bob Byrd and I have voted together on some legislation and differently on some," he said. "He has a flexible understanding of his duties and the policy is laid down by the policy committee."

Fort Howard Order

Paper Firm Contends DNR Discrimination

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Fort Howard Paper Co., of Green Bay will attempt to prove that the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) discriminated against it in issuing an amended pollution abatement order last October, during what promises to be a lengthy rehearing on the order by the DNR.

Only one of four members of the DNR staff expected to testify during the rehearing before examiner Andrew Damon was questioned in the day-long session Tuesday. The opening session got off to a slow and complicated start when attorneys representing 10 other Wisconsin paper manufacturers asked Damon to quash subpoenas served on them to appear and produce information to support Fort Howard's case.

After hearing arguments from the other paper manufacturers, Damon announced that he will require Fort Howard's attorney, Irvin Charne, to complete questioning of DNR witnesses before ruling on the motions. The ruling is expected late today or Thursday morning.

The attorneys claimed that the information requested in the subpoenas was unreasonably sizeable and, in some instances confidential since all the companies involved are competitors. They had been asked to produce records showing actual pulp and paper production between Jan. 1, 1967, and Dec. 31, 1970, and production capacity for each plant, as well as information regarding pollution abatement facilities and practices.

In response to Charne's claim that the information is necessary to supplement the DNR files in order for Fort Howard to prove discrimination, Damon said that he would withhold a ruling until after Charne had examined the department witnesses and determined then if the information is still needed.

Damon said after the morning session, that he expects either Fort Howard or the other paper companies to balk at his ruling and will allow a recess of several days to permit the concerned parties to decide what subsequent action to take. He indicated that a legal redress would probably be sought in the courts by one side or the other.

Fort Howard is seeking reversal of an order issued last October requiring the company to reduce its effluent load on the Fox River to 14 pounds of BOD (biochemical oxygen demand) and 15 pounds of suspended solids per ton of pulp or paper produced daily. The order came following a DNR hearing that was called as the result of a complaint filed by six citizens, headed by Donald O. Peterson, Eau Claire, then a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and including Dr. Keith Downey a Green Bay veterinarian.

Fort Howard, and many other Fox River paper producers had been issued orders Dec. 16, 1969, requiring that effluent be limited to 35 pounds BOD and 20 pounds of suspended solids per ton production daily. The level of effluent load was to be met by Dec. 31, 1972.

Stringent Order

In questioning Thomas Frangos, administrator of the environmental protection division of the DNR, Charne attempted to establish that Fort Howard is the only paper company in the state with as stringent a pollution abatement order as it has been issued.

Frangos told Charne that all companies are expected to meet the 20-pound requirement on suspended solids, but that the BOD requirement is variable. On the Wisconsin River, he said, standards are based on the assimilative capacity of the river, and that some companies may emit more than 35 pounds BOD.

The requirements, Charney attempted to demonstrate, in effect limit a paper company's production, because they are based on the paper firm's production capacity at the time the order was issued. The DNR, he showed, issued the 1969 order on the basis of a production capacity of 785 tons per day at Fort Hward, but then, one month later granted the company permission to construct and operate an additional paper machine.

According to the 1969 order, the paper companies were given the option of constructing their own pollution abatement equipment or joining with a municipal treatment facility The standards for municipal treatment facilities, he charged do not limit the amount of effluent a paper company may contribute as the standards for an in-plant facility do

Treat Wastes

Frangos said that municipal treatment plants do not have total effluent poundage limits, but are required to treat wastes enough to remove 90 per cent of the BOD and 90 per cent of the suspended solids.

If a private company met the 90 per cent standard, Charne said, it would also be required to limit the total amount of effluent, and would be governed by more stringent standards

Frangos admitted that some paper companies that were connected to municipal teatment plants in 1969 were given no pollution abatement orders.

Consent Law Hasn't Cut Tipsy Driving

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's implied consent statute is having little success in reducing the number of motorists who drive after drinking alcoholic beverages, a state laboratory spokesman said Tuesday.

Dr. Ronald H. Laessig, professor of medicine at the University of Wisconsin and a spokesman for the state Laboratory of Hygiene, said the rate of drunken driving remains "staggering."

The implied consent law was enacted May 1, 1970. It contends that a licensed driver automatically agrees to consent to tests for alcoholic content in his blood, or surrenders his license.

Laessig has been studying the law's impact on traffic accidents involving alcohol. Of chemical tests performed by the the laboratory in the last six months, only 17 per cent of the motorists tested were found not to be legally under the influence of liquor, he said.

He said about 15 per cent of persons tested under the statute had consumed enough alcohol to raise the quantity in the blood to twice statutory limits.

The current limit is .15 per cent of a blood sample Legislators have discussed tightening the limit to .10 per cent.

Laessig said the existing limit is already "too high a level of prima facie evidence of drunkeness where drivers are concerned."

A lower level, he said, is still sufficient to make driving hazarduous.

Committee Supports Two Strike Bills

By FRED MILVERSTEDT
Associated Press Writer

MADISON (AP)—The Assembly's Labor Committee heard two hours of arguments Tuesday on a pair of strike bills, then recommended passage in a matter of minutes by a 7-2 vote.

One bill would prohibit employers engaged in labor disputes from knowingly hiring professional strikebreakers. The other would allow employes not participating in a labor dispute resulting from a strike to receive unemployment benefits.

Both bills were introduced by Rep. William A. Johnson, D-Milwaukee, the Labor Committee chairman.

With the committee's passage, the bills are forwarded to the Assembly for debate.

The strikebreaker bill, referred to by labor union spokesmen as an "anti-rat" bill, has been introduced at least three times in previous sessions. In 1965 it passed the Assembly, but was defeated in the Senate.

Manny Brown, D-Racine, an author of the bill, said it was intended to protect "the public, the employe and the employer alike."

Stop "Goons"

Its purpose, he said, is to try to "stop imported goons from breaking up strikes" by requiring known strikebreakers to register with the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

Rep. James Azim, R-Muscoda, questioned the idea as a potential blacklist and said employers would be denied the right of maintaining business during a strike.

Azim and Rep. Jon Guiles, R-Oshkosh, were the two committee members who voted against both bills.

Carlyle Shepard, speaking for Milwaukee Local 1111, United Electrical Workers, said it was directed toward "fly-by-night, semi - legitimate businesses" who hire professional strikebreakers.

"People who stoop that low when an employe is on strike should be registered," Shepard said.

Stiff Penalties

Hoornstra said criminal penalties involved, up to a one year prison sencense, were "at the very least an unfair practice."

"Management has the right to continue operations during a strike," Hoornstra said.

Wade Boardman of the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League called the bill unconstitutional and said it smacks of "vagueness and uncertainty in regard to criminal law."

The committee was therefore "engaging in a gesture of absolute futility," Boardman said.

Discussion over the unemployment bill was not as lively. But John Clements, a Milwaukeean from the Electrical Contractors Association, said for an employer to finance a striker against himself "is rather ridiculous."

Clements predicted the bill would have "disastrous effects" against unemployment compensation, plus encouraging the length of a strike.

"People would be getting paid to rest," Clements said.

The state Division of Unemployment Compensation requested the committee to withhold action until the division's advisory committee acted in joint agreement. Passage was completed shortly thereafter.

Drinking Water Test Expansion is Endorsed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — More extensive testing of the public water supplies now used by more than 75 per cent of the inhabitants of Wisconsin in order to examine chemical as well as bacteriological quality of water was endorsed Tuesday by the Council of Environmental Advisers of the State Department of Natural Resources.

The major consultative board of DNR approved a request to the legislature for additional funding of the state water supply bureau, partly in response to the objections of municipal water utility chiefs who asked for more assistance by the state in the surveillance of water quality.

Fred Nelson, Kenosha water superintendent and member of the council, said that historically Wisconsin has concentrated its water policing on testing of bacteriological quality. There are hazards from chemicals in the water also, he said. Robert Baumeister, chief of the state water supply testing service, said that with the increasing industrialization there has been more concern about chemicals and trace elements in water.

In a major related development, the Council was told that DNR is prepared to launch an expanded effort to monitor industrial effluent discharges to determine whether there are other toxic materials being sent into surface waters besides mercury, which is now under tight state control following the discovery during the last year of mercury in public waters in sufficient amounts to raise the possibility of fish contamination and damage to human health.

While state pollution police continue their testing of surface waters for the presence of mercury discharges from industry and other sources, the environmental protection division is preparing a pilot study of selected fish samples for lead and cadmium and devising procedures for the detection and analysis of such metals as beryilium, nickel, chromium, copper and zinc, DNR officials disclosed.

Meanwhile a selected list of Wisconsin industries is being prepared for the development of data on the discharge of other and possibly dangerous poisons, the Council was informed.

In a third and associated development, the council endorsed a legislative proposal by DNR being prepared for introduction into the legislature that would provide a system of monitoring to test the accuracy of the effluent reports of Wisconsin manufacturers and to impose a punitive $10,000 fine for any instance of false reporting. Officials explained that they are following the precedent of the tax bureaus of the state and national government which strive to assure honest reporting through prohibitively high penalities.

In the general discussion about broadening the state's monitoring of water quality, more intensive testing of public water supplies, and refining the reporting requirements on industrial effluent, Lee Dreyfus, president of Wisconsin State University at Stevens Point, said the state must try to "avoid hysteria while improving its standards of water protection." He alluded to the public apprehension that followed the state's orders on industrial mercury discharges.

The advisory council endorsed a DNR plan to ask the legislature to authorize a staff in readiness for combating oil pollution incidents.

Metropolitan Sewage District Plan Drafted

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The State Department of Natural Resources has offered a bill to the Legislature designed to fill the void in laws governing the creation and operation of metropolitan sewage districts. The State Supreme Court a year ago held that the original law putting such districts under the jurisdiction of the County Courts is invalid.

As matters stand now, the three metropolitan districts in the state—including one that serves the Green Bay district—are frozen in the status quo. They cannot take in additional service territory, unless new legislation is written. Nor can new districts be established in any other region, officials explained, until the Legislature authorizes a system that would provide for organization through some other means than a petition to the County Court.

Under the draft to be submitted to the Legislature, a district could be proposed on the motion of DNR, by 10 per cent of the electors within a proposed district, or by the owners of one-half of the property within a suggested district.

The state court ruling came in a test of a proposed metropolitan district under the old law in the Fond du Lac area.

The Department of Natural Resources has adopted a "nonproliferation policy" with respect to the development of local sewage collection and disposal systems as it administers the substantial state and federl financial grants for local water pollution abatement programs

The development of metropolitan districts, it asserts, would be a more efficient and economical method of providing sewage service in much of the state

Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison, one of the leaders in the Legislature and a member of the DNR Council of Environmental Advisers, noted that the idea of metropolitan districts runs counter to the wishes of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities and other forces concerned with "orderly urban growth." The reference is to the belief that if a suburban or other community near a parent city is able to acquire sewage service it will be more likely to resist annexation successfully.

The DNR bill draft suggests that the commissioners of a new metropolitan district shall be named by the governor for staggered terms, but Emil Kaminski, department counsel, said other methods would be acceptable The department is evidently concerned mainly with providing legal machinery to make possible the application of its "nonproliferation" objective.

IRS Director Leaves Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Randolph W. Thrower, director of the Internal Revenue Service, has resigned his position and will return to private law practice in Atlanta, Ga., the White House has announced.

Thrower, in a letter to Nixon, said it was "timely and appropriate for me to submit my resignation with the expectation of returning to the practice of law in Atlanta" at the halfway point in Nixon's four-year term.

Thrower was appointed commissioner on March 28, 1969. His letter of resignation was dated Monday and the White House reply was made Tuesday.

Authentic Chinese Recipes Come From 3 Famous San Francisco Restaurants

Nowhere in the Western Hemisphere will the boar get a bigger sendoff than in San Francisco, home of more than 65,000 Chinese-Americans and more than 200 Chinese restaurants, many of them world-famous.

The city will rock with Oriental revelry until Feb. 7 in celebration of the Year of the Boar on the Chinese lunar calendar.

To note the Oriental holiday season, the Visitors Bureau of San Francisco consulted owners of three award-winning Chinese restaurants — Mrs. Cecilia Chiang of The Mandarin Restaurant, Kee Koon of the Empress of China and Johnny Kan of Kan's.

The interesting part is that each of these masters of Chinese cuisine has a different approach to the use of pork. It also should be noted that The Mandarin specializes in North Chinese cuisine, the others in Cantonese.

Each one has been gracious in supplying a favorite recipe that shows off his or her specialty. Here they are:

MANDARIN DUMPLINGS
CHIAO TZU

2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup water, about

½ pound finely chopped, cooked prawns
½ pound finely chopped uncooked pork
Chinese cabbage
Fresh grated ginger root
Fresh green onions, chopped
Fresh chopped coriander
Sesame oil
Soy sauce, salt
Chicken stock

Sesame oil for frying
1 cup water

Combine flour with about one cup water and work until mixture is very smooth and firm. Dust with flour; cover with inverted bowl and let stand at least 4 hours.

Prepare filling in the following proportions: one-third prawns, one - third pork and one-third chopped cabbage. Blend with ginger root, onions and coriander, to taste. Check seasoning after adding 2 tablespoons of sesame oil for each cup of filling. Season with soy sauce, salt or both, to taste. Cover and store in refrigerator at least an hour. Before using, add 1 or 2 tablespoons of clear chicken stock to moisten.

To form dumplings, roll pieces of dough about the size of a large marble in very thin circles on a floured board. Place a spoonful of filling in the center of each; moisten one side of the circle and press against the dry side to form a half-moon shape. Form the seam upright, crimping it into a fluted center line.

To cook, heat an iron frying pan very hot; brush the bottom with sesame oil. Arrange the dumplings in the pan without touching each other, flat side down. Immediately add 1 cup of water and cover tightly. Cook until water evaporates, 5 or 6 minutes. Serve immediately. Recipe makes four servings.

Two of The Country's top-ranked restaurateurs, Mrs. Cecilia Chiang and Johnny Kan discuss Chinese New Year recipes in San Francisco's Chinatown. Mrs. Chiang owns The Mandarin, which specializes in the cuisine of North China and Johnny Kan of Kan's serves Cantonese foods.

EMPRESS OF CHINA
GINGER ROOT PORK

1 pound lean pork
1 root fresh ginger
All-purpose flour
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon sugar
4 tablespoons soy sauce
Salt to taste

Cut thinly sliced pieces of pork into 1-inch squares. Skin ginger root; cut into thin slices.

Dip pork squares into flour; saute in hot pan until pork is browned on all sides. Add ginger root with water and sugar; saute together. Add soy sauce, then salt to taste. Cover and cook mixture for 7 minutes. Serve immediately. Recipe makes two or three servings.

KAN'S CHINESE PORK
SAUSAGE-SNOW PEAS

½ pound fresh or frozen Chinese snow-peas
2 whole Chinese sausages (Lopp Cheong)
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
½-teaspoon salt
¼ cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon water

Remove tips and strings from snow peas; wash peas and drain.

Wash sausages in cold water and drain; place in a pan and steam for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, preheat Chinese wok or skillet; add oil and salt. Add snow peas to skillet; cook while tossing for 30 seconds at high heat. Add chicken broth, cover and cook until boiling point reached. Uncover.

Blend cornstarch with water, add gradually to peas and toss cook at high heat until sauce thickens. Do not overcook.

Remove peas to serving dish. Place sausages cut diagonally ½-inch thick over peas. Serve. Recipe makes about eight servings.

Women's Eye View of the Day Linkletter Visited Appleton

Visitors Laud Appleton PTA 'Do-Something' Stand

BY MARY WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Because it all began with a PTA concerned with drug abuse, Art Linkletter Day will be long remembered and cherished by two out-of-towners, Mrs. Carolyn Hendricks, Chicago, and Mrs. Marion Liefer, Madison.

Mrs. Hendricks presides as national director of the PTA's Smoking and Health Program and Mrs. Leifer is executive secretary of the Wisconsin State PTA.

Twenty years ago, both were beginning their careers as enthusiastic volunteers for their local PTA units. Today, having made the climb to the top, they're convinced it was worth the thousands of hours they gave free of charge and the faith they had from the beginning in a frequently maligned organization.

Appleton, say Mrs. Hendricks and Mrs. Leifer, is proof that the PTA doesn't have to be a "do-nothing organization."

Eleven months ago, that was the way some of the city's school administrators would have preferred it, says Mrs. Leifer. The hue and cry they raised when Huntley Elementary School PTA launched its drug abuse program was loud enough to be heard in Madison.

"People didn't expect the PTA to get up on a bandstand," she recalled with a smile. "They felt we should stick to serving coffee and cookies."

"And furnish money for projectors, but it was never, never intended that way," added Mrs. Hendricks, emphatically. "It's only that people make this come true. What we're really set up for is parent-teacher education."

PTA, the two agreed, is only as effective, dynamic and relevant as its local leaders. And too often its accomplishments have gone unrecognized because until two years ago, the national and state organizations operated without a public relations staff.

"Did you know the PTA is responsible for the hot lunch program?" Mrs. Hendricks asked. "And few people realize the legislation the PTA has successfully supported and seen through passage."

She maintained PTA has long been active in her own field of interest, citing the resolution passed in 1926 at a national convention declaring smoking to be harmful to health. Currently, Mrs. Hendricks is overseeing the distribution of literature on the subject and the implementation of programs designed to stop the growing rate of cigarette smokers among the young.

"Yes, there have been many times when people have fought, bled and died over resolutions and nothing came of it," admitted Mrs. Hendricks. But, she countered, the Appleton program is proof the PTA can do something, given the leadership.

Mrs. Leifer will be sharing the news of Appleton's success with other PTA's in the next issue of the state's bulletin. And, according to Mrs. Hendricks, the Huntley program and its beneficial repercussions will be given nationwide attention in next month's PTA Magazine.

Mrs. Patterson, president of Huntley School PTA; Drug Council, Inc. co-chairman, and co-author of the Appleton-Linkletter Plan, has been invited to speak at two regional PTA Smoking and Health conferences. The first will be March 23-24 at Arlington, Va., and the second, March 30-31 at Denver, Colo.

Impressed with the dedication of Huntley PTA leaders and others, Mrs. Leifer hopes other communities will adopt the Appleton-Linkletter Plan to suit their purposes. Too often, she said, parents have maintained a naive attitude toward drugs that is only too apparent in her travels across the state.

Dissension and jealousies have wreaked havoc, too, with many of the 300 PTA-sponsored drug abuse programs started in Wisconsin during the past year, she said. She and Mrs. Hendricks hope what has happened here will serve as inspiration for other PTA's to work harmoniously with their communities as catalysts in solving some of the issues facing today's families.

A Post - Press conference treat for PTA officials, Mrs. Marion Leifer, Madison, and Mrs. Carolyn Hendricks, Chicago, was meeting Art Linkletter. The women also found much to smile about upon reflecting on the PTA's role in Appleton's drug abuse program. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Mrs. Art Linkletter

Words Can't Express . . .

The word as the noon hour approached, was that Mrs. Art Linkletter would remain "incommunicado" most of the day.

And so she did, apparently too grieved over the tragic death of her daughter to meet the public until evening. Dressed in purple, her brown hair fashionably tousled, she sat quietly then, exchanging more smiles than words in the protective shadow of her husband.

"She's a private person," was Linkletter's explanation earlier at the press conference.

Since October 1969, when LSD sent their 21-year-old daughter, Diane, on a suicidal plunge, Mrs. Linkletter has accompanied her husband as he has waged his "block-to-block, family-to-family, section-to-section" war on drug abuse.

But she has yet to meet the press.

And still, she is there to "support me, to hold my hand," said Linkletter. It's part of that closeness that has developed in his family since Diane's death. "We're much more demonstrative than we were . . . We touch. . . And things that went unspoken before are now said."

But it will be some time before Mrs. Linkletter can find the words.

Egg Rolls From the refrigerated case and already prepared, Butterfly Chow Mein and Jing Daahn Tart make an unusually delicious dinner with the recipes featuring elements of classic Chinese cuisine. Adapted, it's true, but delicious just the same.

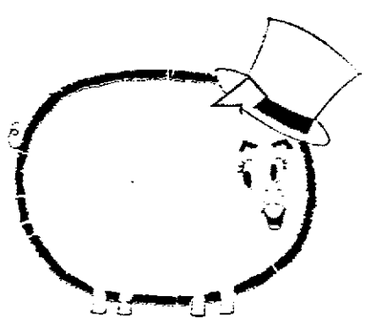
Happy Chinese New Year



By Lillian Mackesy
POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

The Chinese New Year — the year 4669 and the Year of the Boar — arrives at midnight tonight when fireworks hail the season and members of the household cry "Gung Hoy Fet Toy" or Happy New Year and "La Choy," which means good luck.

At least this is what thousands of Chinese-Americans will be doing in the festival spirit that's been going on for centuries in their family traditions. Some communities have a special Festival of Lanterns besides fireworks to chase away evil spirits. Some of these lanterns in the exhibits are true works of art.

In every Chinese community in this country everyone claims a share in the New Year Festival, whether the celebration takes the form of a parade, fireworks display in the street or a night at the theater where older customs and legends of the New Year are told in dramatic form. The New Year season lasts until Feb. 7.

This, too, can be a time for celebration with a special party featuring Chinese style cookery which is the best in the world according to many experts. The recipes today all feature pork in the spirit of the Year of the Pig or Boar, and they come by way of adaptation of Chinese cuisine from home economists.

An idea for a party is a menu starring ready-made egg rolls that come from the refrigerator case, an interesting chow mein that uses biscuits in butterfly form, also almost ready-mades to make the task of preparation easier.

Jing Daahn Tart makes a perfect main course. It's based on an egg custard dish so popular in Oriental cookery; in fact, it resembles the Quiche Lorraine. Fresh fruit, ice cream balls or sherbet balls with freshly brewed tea can round out the menu. For added fun serve packaged fortune cookies with the tea.

Paper lanterns, wind chimes will add to the decor. Serve the food on straw place mats and, if desired, have chopsticks at hand for trying. Since oranges are a desirable "good luck" New Year's gift, orange blossoms (real or artificial) make a beautiful party centerpiece. Red also is a good luck color.

Four other recipes that will please any American family with a yen for fine cooking are Pork Chops prepared in the Oriental manner, a savory dish called Pork Sesame and out-of-this-world Chinese Meat Balls in the hors d'oeuvres class . . . and lastly, shortribs prepared Chinese style and served on a hot bed of rice.

So, with a "Gung Hoy Fet Toy," we salute the Year of the Boar and thank our home economist friends for some excellent recipes into pie shell. Beat eggs with broth, salt and pepper. Stir in soy sauce, scallions and cheese. Pour mixture over bacon in pie shell. Bake in a preheated, 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Heat chow mein as directed on package. Spoon chow mein over pie. Cut into wedges and serve.

BISCUIT CHOW MEIN

- 2 cups biscuit mix
- ⅔ cup water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup chopped scallions
- 1 cup diced cooked ham
- ⅓ cup sliced pitted black olives
- ⅓ cup minced raw carrot
- 1 divider-pak can (43 oz.) chicken chow mein

Combine biscuit mix and water. Knead dough a few times until smooth. Press dough into a greased butterfly mold. Or roll out to a 12 x 7-inch oblong; place on a greased cookie sheet and shape dough with the hands into shape desired.

Bake in a preheated, 425-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown.

While biscuit is baking, melt butter in skillet. Saute scallions and ham until lightly browned. Add olives and carrots and saute for another 5 minutes. Drain vegetables in divider-pak and add to ham mixture. Add sauce from divider-pak. Heat until bubbly. Cut biscuits into two layers. Spoon chow mein sauce between layers. Serve at once. To serve, cut and top with any sauce that has oozed out into platter. Recipe makes four servings.

Note: Refrigerated biscuits may also be used, if desired.

PORK CHOPS ORIENTAL

- 8 loin pork chops, ¾-inch thick
- ¼ cup butter
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 1 package (7 oz.) frozen pea pods, thawed
- 3 green onions, cut in ½-inch pieces
- 1 cup sliced water chestnuts
- 2 stalks celery, cut in ½-inch pieces
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 red bell pepper, cut into ½-inch pieces, blanched
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon bead molasses
- ¼ cup dry white wine

Brown chops in 2 tablespoons butter: add 2 cups chicken broth. Simmer, covered 45 minutes or until tender. Remove chops from pan; keep warm.

Combine pan drippings and remaining broth to make 2 cups; set aside.

Melt remaining butter in saucepan; stir in pea pods, green onions, water chestnuts, celery, mushrooms, bell pepper and garlic. Heat just until hot.

Combine pan drippings, cornstarch, soy sauce and bead molasses. Cook over low heat until thickened and clear, about 5 minutes; add wine. Stir into vegetable mixture. Place chops on heated serving platter. Spoon on vegetables. Recipe makes about eight servings.

PORK SESAME

- 1 pound lean pork, cut into ¾-inch pieces
- ⅓ cup soy sauce
- ⅓ cup dry sherry

- 1 egg, beaten
- ¼ cup flour
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- ¼ cup chicken broth
- Cooking oil

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 can (15¼ oz.) pineapple chunks, drained, reserved
- ½ cup pineapple syrup
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- ½ cup packed brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons bead molasses
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup water

- 2 green peppers, cut into ¼x2-inch pieces, cooked
- 1 cup sliced water chestnuts
- 2 carrots, pared, cut into ¼x2-inch peices, cooked
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds
- Chow Mein noodles

Combine pork, soy sauce and sherry; allow pork to marinate in refrigerator for 2 hours. Drain.

Combine ingredients for batter in second part of recipe: beaten egg, flour, cornstarch and chicken broth. Stir marinated pork in this batter. Drain.

Heat cooking oil to 375 degrees. Deep fat fry meat until it is golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Fry pork one minute longer to keep it crisp; drain again.

Combine chicken broth, pineapple syrup, vinegar, brown sugar, soy sauce and molasses; heat until sugar dissolves. Mix cornstarch with water; stir into brown sugar mixture. Cook on low heat until thickened.

Blend in pork, reserved pineapple, green pepper, water chestnuts, carrots, garlic, and sesame seeds. Heat until hot. Serve over chow mein noodles. Recipe makes four to six servings.

CHINESE MEAT BALLS

- 1 pound ground lean pork
- ¼ cup chopped water chestnuts
- ¼ cup chopped green onions
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- Cooking oil

- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
- ½ cup packed brown sugar
- ½ cup beef broth
- 1½ teaspoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup water

Combine ingredients for meat balls in first part of recipe. Mix lightly with a fork. Form into ¾-inch balls. Fry in hot oil until browned; drain on absorbent paper.

For sauce combine vinegar, pineapple syrup, brown sugar, beef broth, soy sauce, and ginger; heat until sugar dissolves. Mix cornstarch with water; stir into brown sugar mixture. Cook, stirring, until thick and clear, about 5 minutes. Add meat balls and pineapple: heat until hot. Spear a pineapple chunk and meat ball on toothpick and serve. Recipe makes four dozen meat balls.

SHORT RIBS ORIENTAL

- 3 green peppers, seeded and sliced
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 8 short ribs (about 3 lbs.)
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2 tablespoons water
- ¼ cup sake or dry sherry
- Soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 large tomato, cut into chunks
- 1 cup Converted Rice

Saute green peppers in salad oil in Dutch oven 2 minutes. Cover and simmer over low heat 5 minutes. Remove and refrigerate.

In same skillet brown short ribs on all sides. Remove short ribs. To drippings in skillet add onion and cook 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in water, sake and 2 teaspoons soy sauce: add browned short ribs, cover and simmer 1½ hours or until ribs are tender. Remove meat from pan and keep warm. Pour pan juices into measuring cup and decant excess fat; add water to pan juices to make 1 cup liquid; return to pan. Blend cornstarch with 1 tablespoon soy sauce and 1 teaspoon sugar; stir into liquid and cook, stirring, until smooth and thickened. Add green peppers and tomato chunks and mix gently; add meat.

Meanwhile, cook rice as directed on package.

Serve short ribs and vegetables on rice; spoon gravy over all. Recipe makes four servings.

Many players avoid making unusual opening leads. Too often such experiments produce a poor result and a disillusioned partner.

A few players, however, cannot resist the unusual lead, regardless of consequences. With an understanding partner, the novelty of the play may be well worth some poor results — and some sad partners.

One of the country's leading players who cannot resist the unusual is Roger Stern of New York City. Observe Roger in action in the defense of today's game hand.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: ?

Today's hand was played at a national tournament and the results were varied. Many Souths were successful in a four-spade contract. When East-West played the hand at the five level, the contract was beaten two or more tricks, depending upon the defense.

When played at four spades, West's normal opening lead of a high club obliterated the defense. Regardless of how West continued, South was able to re-enter his hand by a club ruff and remove the outstanding trumps. South made his contract, losing only one club and two hearts.

When Roger Stern held the West cards, the bidding went as shown in the diagram. Stern never considered bidding over four spades. He had already made up his mind on the opening lead.

Stern opened his singleton diamond! Declarer won the ace in dummy and played the spade ace. South wisely avoided attempting to enter his hand with a diamond to draw the rest of the trumps. Instead, he tried a club.

When East's nine unexpectedly held the trick, East deduced not only that Stern had led a singleton diamond, but that Stern held at least one more trump. Dutifully, East led one of his high diamonds (suit preference) for West to ruff.

Stern ruffed the diamond and switched to hearts. The defense took two quick heart tricks to defeat the contract one trick.

Stern's ingenuity earned him a fine score on this hand. Better yet, it provided a good story to keep the conversation interesting after the game.

Cold Weather Makes Freezer Cleaning Easier

Cold days and deep snowbanks can be a lifesaver to the busy woman who operates at maximum efficiency if she decides to clean out the freezer now, says Shirley Watson, extension home economist for Winnebago County.

Simply take a large box from your grocer's, large enough for your frozen foods, put the foods in the box and place it in a shady snowbank when the temperature is zero degrees or below. Cover with from six to eight inches of snow while you leisurely defrost the freezer. It will then be all set until fall when it should be done again.

Home Economists in Winnebago County Plan Get-Together

Winnebago County Extension Home Economist Shirley Watson is asking all women who graduated from an accredited college or university with a degree in home economics and who live in the county, to contact her office in Oshkosh and give their names and addresses for the annual get-together being planned for February.

Although there is no county-wide organization, these women have found that dinner followed by an educational program once a year was an excellent way to exchange ideas and renew old friendships.

Your Problems

Promise Is Promise, But She Needs Help

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need the advice of an adult who doesn't know me. Please don't let me down. Last night I was at my girl friend's house. (We have been best friends ever since third grade. We are both 14 now.) She made me promise I would never tell a soul if she let me in on her big secret. After I promised, she took a key out of a hiding place and opened a cedar chest. She started to show me her "fun stuff." I nearly keeled over. This girl has shoplifted at least $300 worth of merchandise. What scares me is that she has plenty of money and can buy anything she wants. Another queer thing, Ann, there wasn't one article in that chest that she can use. She has dozens of packages of fish food and she has no fish — needlepoint canvasses and thread and she doesn't even know how to sew. She has shoplifted an electric heating pad, carpenter tools, fishing equipment, corn and bunion plasters — the craziest stuff you can imagine. The price tags are on everything. She likes to look at this junk and recall the fun she had getting it out of the store.

I now know there is something wrong with her, but I don't know what to do about it. I have promised not to tell, but maybe I should — for her own good. Please advise me, Ann. I am — Scared Sick

Dear S.S.: A promise is a promise. You must not betray your friend. But you must somehow get across to her that she is sick and needs help. If she gets caught she could be in serious trouble. She must tell everything and ask to be taken to a doctor.

In the meantime, here's a word for you. Don't go shopping with this girl. If she is caught stealing and you are with her, you could be in trouble, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll get right to the point. No sense in wasting words. I have a lot of hair on my face. Is there anything that can be done about it? I don't trust advertisements and there is nobody I can talk to. I'll just sign myself — Hair

Dear Hair: If you are a man you can shave. If you are a woman you can go to a dermatologist and get his professional counsel. Some dermatologists remove hair permanently with a high frequency needle. Others recommend electrolysis which is done elsewhere. I caution you against picking a place at random. Hair removal can be hazardous unless it is done by an expert. The dermatologists know who the experts are and will direct you to them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A young friend of mine (age 23) recently married an up-and-coming executive and she needs some advice.

The girl's parents are from the old country. They were farm people — what we would call peasant stock. Her father has no manners. He belches in company without saying "pardon me" and blows his nose at the table. Their clothes are shabby and they don't fit in with her husband's friends. Although they never drop in uninvited, other guests have come by while they were visiting. The girls is ashamed of her parents and wants to know if she should apologize for them — privately, of course — or should she say nothing and hope it will not injure her social standing? What do you say? — Spokane

Dear Spoke: Since Mrs. Social Climber is so concerned about what her friends will think she had better not apologize for her parents. They might get the impression that she is ashamed of them — which is an infinitely more unattractive quality than belching out loud.

Discuss Poison

KAUKAUNA — Lyle Vandenberg, local pharmacist, discussed the various kinds of poisons found in the home, their dangers and ways accidental poisoning can be prevented at a recent meeting of the Homemakers Club.

Praising the members for their community service and their efforts to make people aware of the dangers of poisons, he urged them to work for federal legislation for proper and safe labeling of toxic substances.

Vandenberg suggested members take advantage of the Poison Control Center at Kaukauna Community Hospital whenever they doubt what antidotes should be used for the various poisons.

Mrs. Ralph Doering was program chairman and Mrs. Harold Feller, social chairman.

What Is a 'Relevant' Education?

Relevance is the battle cry of many of today's high school and college students. This, like other good words, has become meaningless because it has been thoughtlessly embraced and abused. Every student, teacher and parent tends to put his own convenient interpretation on the contemporary meaning of the word.

Some feel that an education is relevant only if it relates directly to future employment and if it leads by the shortest route to ownership of supposed essentials of modern life . . . a car, a TV set, and the latest pop records. Other students believe that a relevant education should concern itself exclusively with what is happening now, with today's social, political and ecological issues; without bothering with background subjects and information. They want to read only contemporary books, study present-day science or current events.

No matter which interpretation your son or daughter is likely to put on the word "relevance," his or her demands have one thing in common: they are attempts to write off or ignore the past and to divorce themselves from a continuity of culture. Relevance oriented engineering students don't want to know about Archimedes; medical students aren't interested in Aristotle or Louis Pasteur; and history students feel that the world began with the end of World War II. Whenever accommodated, these students tend to keep re-inventing the wheel for themselves. They believe that they must experience personally every lesson they might learn from the past, including the one that history does not repeat itself.

Everything is relevant to education. Poetry is relevant to science, electronics is relevant to art, and a background in the history of the world is relevant to all fields of knowledge and to all skills. A jet pilot who has heard about Icarus and Dedalus is better and more reliable than one who thinks that the history of flight began with the Wright brothers. And a mechanic who is going to fix my car will do a better job if he has heard of Leonardo da Vinci than if he believes that Henry Ford invented the Model A from scratch.

Granted, institutionalized bad habits die hard. There is no longer any need to insist on Latin as a pre-requisite to an M.D. and in so far as pre-med students are concerned the old school-boy doggerel holds true: "Latin is a dead tongue, dead as dead can be. First it killed the Romans: now it's killing me!" But what is and what is not relevant to any particular branch of education cannot be left entirely in the hands of students. They lack the experience required to tell what is useful to know or study as a preparation for a profession, for a vocation or for a whole life time.

Does your teen - or - college-age son or daughter want to work, travel or study in the U.S. or abroad this summer or next? Would you like to help him or her get the right information or a scholarship? Arnold Arnold has prepared this booklet especially for readers of this column. It lists the best and most reliable books, and private and government sources of information in the U.S. and abroad. Various Plans for Revenue Sharing To be Presented

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional hearings on sharing federal revenues with states will include not only President Nixon's plan but a wide variety of alternatives which may stand a better chance.

This was assured after Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, laced into the presidential proposal in an hour-long speech Tuesday.

Mills, whose committee has the first and most important say on such matters, contended the $16-billion Nixon revenue-sharing plan is wasteful, contains no assurance that the most needy and deserving units will get a fair share—and that it could encourage spending and force a federal tax increase.

But Mills, acknowledging some states and cities have severe financial problems, said Congress should explore various ways to help.

Joint Programs

One would be for the federal government to pick up a bigger part of the cost of existing joint programs, such as welfare. The grant-in-aid programs in education, welfare, hospitals and health already account for almost 60 per cent of state and local government spending, he noted.

Mills suggested states might conform their own income tax systems more closely to the federal system—while still determining their own rates—and that arrangements might be worked out for taxpayers to file a single return to the federal government, which then would remit to the states their share. Collection costs would be saved, he said.

He also guardedly suggested proposals for allowing a direct credit for state income taxes against the federal levy might be explored—although he foresees difficulties. State income taxes are allowed as deductions from federally taxable income, but not direct offsets against the federal tax.

Delay Hearings

The committee's present plan, it was learned, is to delay until late this year any hearings on Nixon's proposal, and then to conduct them as a broad examination of federal, state and local fiscal problems and possible solutions.

Opponents of the Nixon plan, like Mills, calculate that by then the current campaign of support, largely among governors and local officials, for revenue-sharing along the Nixon lines may have subsided and alternatives may look more attractive.

Mills counterattacked the state-local drive for revenue sharing by producing a series of figures, showing which states would lose and which would gain under various sharing plans.

Various Plans

"Under any of the formulas that have been developed so far, substantial funds are given to states and localities where there is little or no need, as well as to those where there is need," he said.

And, developing an idea he has long expressed, he argued it is poor government policy to separate the tax-raising and spending functions.

"I can understand," he remarked, "why it is not pleasant for state and local governnent officials to take the responsibility for covering their expenditure increases with higher taxes."

Wisconsin Called Major Beneficiary

WASHINGTON (AP)— A congressman says Wisconsin would be the major gainer under President Nixon's revenue sharing program which faces tough sledding in Congress.

Rep. Wilybur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the $16 billion plan for sharing government tax revenue with states would be unfair to needy areas, and might force a tax increase.

If government expenditures were reduced to provide funds for sharing, Mills said, 15 states would gain. He placed Wisconsin at the head of the list.

Even if revenue sharing were financed by reductions in grant-aid programs, Wisconsin still would lead the list, he said. In either case, he added, Alaska would be the biggest loser.

The plan, he said, would provide some funds "to states and localities where there is little or no need."

Mills said the best solution, at least at the moment, seems to be a tax increase.

Defenders Protecting Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Thousands of Cambodian troops fanned out to the west and northwest of Phnom Penh today in a drive to break up North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop concentrations threatening the city.

The Cambodia military spokesman said "many more than 20 battalions" were participating, but there was no report on their progress. A battalion averages about 400 men at full strength.

The enemy kept up attacks on posts out from the Cambodian capital, hitting the village of Bat Doeung 15 miles to the northwest and the town of Saang 19 miles to the south during the night.

Cambodian units launched a counterattack today and were battling several hundred enemy troops about a mile north of Saang, the Cambodian high command reported.

The command said at least four enemy troops were killed and four Cambodian soldiers were wounded in the fighting so far.

The spokesman said Cambodian troops held off the Communist forces at Bat Doeung all night but fighting was continuing at dawn. He said planes called in against the attackers at Saag sank a large number of sampans which had been used to transport the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops on the Bassac River.

It was the second successive night that Saang had been attacked. Last year it was the scene of three major battles.

The spokesman claimed that the military situation around Phnom Penh had "clearly improved," and tension appeared to be easing as the city's Chinese and Vietnamese residents celebrated Tet, the festival of the lunor new year. But in contrast to the usual noisy firecrackers, they were celebrating quietly at home.

The military spokesman said that despite the improvement in the local situation, there are no plans to relax the nightly curfew. "We'll see about the curfew after Tet," he said.

Manson, Girls May Give Testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With their lives hanging in the balance, Charles Manson and three women followers may testify in the penalty phase of the Sharon Tate murder trial without opposition from their lawyers, the defense legal team says.

The jury that convicted the four begins hearing testimony Thursday on the penalty. Jurors must decide between life imprisonment and death in the gas chamber.

Chief defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald, who opposed efforts by the women defendants to take the stand during the seven-month trial, says he and other lawyers won't block them any longer.

"The defendants can take the stand if they want to," he said. "It's their lives, and if they want to testify, how can we in good conscience stop them?"

Death Penalty

The prosecution seeks the death penalty for Manson, 36, leader of a roving hippie-style tribe, and the three women, who lived in his commune. They were convicted Monday of murder-conspiracy in the bloody slayings of Miss Tate and six others.

Coprosecutor Stephen Kay told a newsman the state would seek to show at the penalty trial that Manson and defendant Susan Atkins committed other crimes.

"The jury is entitled to know the background of the defendants to help them make the very hard decision on whether to send them to the gas chamber," he said.

New Evidence

No new evidence is expected against Leslie Van Houten, 21, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 23.

Kay said the state would offer evidence that Miss Atkins, 22, helped Manson kill Gary Hinman, a musician, a few weeks before the August 1969 Tate slayings. The two have been charged with Hinman's murder.

The prosecutor said he also would introduce testimony that Manson shot and wounded another musician early that month with a gun later used in the Tate killings.

Kay said the state probably would call about 10 witnesses and estimated the penalty phase could last "from two weeks to two months."

The defense, which called no witnesses and presented no evidence at the trial, plans to put on a full defense case with about 20 witnesses, Fitzgerald said. In the trial, the defense rested abruptly when the women insisted they wanted to testify. Defense attorneys refused to question them, saying the women intended to incriminate themselves in an attempt to clear Manson.

Fitzgerald said the defense would call members of Manson's clan as well as relatives and friends of the defendants who would testify to their character. Further, the defense will seek to introduce confessions to the Tate killings by unspecified other persons and to show that the state induced perjury by prosecution witnesses.

Fitzgerald said the odds against getting a life sentence for the defendants were "about 50 to 1."

"I don't think they've got much of a chance," he said, "but we'll try our best."

New Uganda Regime Sees Tanzania Threat

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The leader of Uganda's military coup charged today that neighboring Tanzania "is preparing to come and attack Uganda" in an attempt to restore President Milton Obote to power.

"I am preparing myself to welcome them," Maj. Gen. Idi Amin told newsmen with a laugh. "We shall be very happy to meet them."

Obote took refuge in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital, after Amin deposed him Monday while the president was attending the Commonwealth conference in Singapore.

Amin met the newsmen on the porch of his residence and apologized for canceling a news conference. He explained that he had just received intelligence reports that an attack from Tanzania was impending.

Political Asylum

Obote had refused to tell newsmen in Dar es Salaam Tuesday whether he had asked President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania for military aid. But he denied that he was seeking political asylum, asserted that he was still president of Uganda and would return.

Nyerere had stopped in New Delhi on his way home from Singapore for a week's state visit, but he cut short his stay today and left for Tanzania.

Amin said Tuesday night that Obote could come back any time and he would even offer him a job. But he said it wouldn't be the presidency.

Amin is commander of Uganda's 6,000-man army and of its air force, which reportedly has operational two MIG jets and several trainers. The air force did not take part in the fighting Sunday.

After the heavy firing Monday and sporadic shooting Tuesday, it was quiet this morning.

Shops were open and the streets were filled with shoppers and workers.

A nightly curfew was still in effect, but few soldiers were in evidence.

Entebbe airport was still closed to commercial traffic, but the government was granting charter flights to land.

One group that arrived this morning saw only one military vehicle—armed with a recoilless rifle—on the half-hour drive from the airport into Kampala.

A burned police car on the edge of the city and the charred bodies of two policemen alongside were the only signs of conflict visible to the arrivals. A group of women, talking as they sat nearby on the roadside, ignored the bodies.

Pictures of Obote had been torn from their frames at the airport, and there was some clamor to change the name of the Apolo hotel, Uganda's largest, because Obote's name is Apolo Milton.

There was still no reliable estimate of casualties in the coup, but 30 or more persons were rumored killed.

Worker Ants Revealed As Primping Females

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Ants aren't all they are reported to be," say Drs. George and Jeanette Wheeler.

The husband-wife researchers have devoted years to studying the creatures, heroes of fables on industriousness.

"Whenever we view an anthill we get the impression of a tremendous amount of activity, but that is merely because there are so many ants and they all look alike," the Wheelers concluded.

"The individual ants spend a great deal of time just loafing. And, worse than that, the worker ants, who are all females, spend a lot of time primping."

Linkletter Calls Drugs a 'Symptom'

October, 1969. It was shortly after her death that he started touring the nation in an attempt to get people interested in stemming drug abuse.

The audience was not told Tuesday night that Diane Linkletter died of the effects of LSD. Her father, who said his entire life and career have changed, said he lost her to "a dread epidemic."

He said he "lashed out" at drug pushers after Diane's death. "Little did I know that the pushers were our children . . . because our children have become missionaries."

Don't Lecture

Linkletter told parents what they should not do to a child caught with drugs. " . . . for heavens sake, don't consign him to hell, put him down, despise him, write him off or give him a two-hour lecture on morality."

Then the parents were told what they should do. "Sit him down and say, 'What's the problem?' "

"Something's got to be wrong. Be understanding. The kid may have taken a few wrong steps, but that's not the end of the world."

Although he explained that most young people will stop after "a little experimentation" with drugs, Linkletter warned against de-emphasizing the problem. "If your kid is really into drugs, don't fool around with it. This is no place for an amateur. You need professional help. You're in trouble."

He advised parents to learn all they can about drugs and their symptoms. But he also cautioned against jumping to the conclusion that "all people dressed like hippies are drug heads."

Less Punishment

He called for more emphasis on treatment and less on punishment for the drug addict although he also emphasized that marijuana should not be legalized.

The son of a Baptist minister said a renewed interest in Christianity that started with young people on the west coast and is "sweeping the country" is one of the hopeful signs he has found in slowing the drug problem.

"Kids are grooving on religion because they have to get love from somewhere." The "Jesus freaks," he said, are now as taken up with religion as they once were with drugs.

"I hope there will be a number of you here whose eyes have been opened by a man whose life has been struck down . . .

"I hope that what I've said . . . will save some child somewhere because it could have been mine."

the Great Lakes and along the Eastern Seaboard from the Middle Atlantic States northward. Gusts of 60 miles an hour were general along the New England coast.

The storm pulled an intense wave of arctic cold deep into the Plains and Midwest and brought freezing temperatures to the Deep South, hit only a week ago by a record January chill.

Temperatures fell near zero or below from the Dakotas to Upper Michigan and south almost to the Ohio Valley.

Winds of 20 miles an hour accompanying the zero cold at Chicago produced a temperature equivalent of 55 below zero.

Cold-wave warnings were out from Alabama and Arkansas to New York and Connecticut.

In the Far West, the melting of heavy snows sent rivers out of their banks in western Washington and threatened to produce some of the worst flooding in more than 30 years in that area.

The entire area west of the Cascade Range was declared a "flood fight" district by the Army Corps of Engineers, enabling the corps to assist local people.

That's What Drug-Users Are, Linkletter Tells Huntley Pupils

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Kids still ask the darnedest questions.

And, "What's a bad trip?"

Or, "What effects do pep pills have?

For 6- and 7- and 8-year-olds, those were some pretty steep questions, but they had no trouble understanding the answers.

That's because they came from a man who knows all about what children can understand.

They came from Art Linkletter, who talked to 6- and 7- and 8-year-olds for more than 30 years, all over the country.

Tuesday he was at Huntley Elementary School as part of a visit which included personal appearances, to stimulate interest in combating drug abuse. For the most part, he met and talked with adults during the day.

But that hour right after lunch was just Linkletter and the children, an unbeatable combination.

"Has everyone had lunch?" asked Linkletter as soon as the excitement had subsided and every little body on the floor of the gym settled in place to pay attention.

"YES," chorused the children in unison.

"Has everyone gone to the bathroom?" Linkletter asked with concern. Again, the chorus of 900 voices replied, "YES."

"Now, don't laugh, the speaker reprimanded the grinning adults. "They're going to be here for an hour, you know. And I want everyone to be comfortable."

From then on, it was just Linkletter and the kids. The topic was drugs, an overwhelming and very adult topic, but there was no communications gap.

"You are starting out on the most wonderful and beautiful adventure in the whole world—growing up.

"There will be risks and there will be bad times and there will be problems," he said.

"And sometimes people take drugs to forget the problems. They take pills so they don't have to face the cold and the hunger and so they forget how miserable they are," he said.

Then, coming in a little closer to the group of little ones, he added, "But you know that problems won't go away. When you wake up from your strange dreams, they will still be there and they will be worse, because then you will have done another bad thing. You will have taken drugs, which is illegal."

Although he concentrated on explaining drug abuse in the most simple way, to make the problem understandable, he liberally sprinkled his talk with little reminders of love and friendship.

"As you grow up, you should have friends and not all of them should be your age. And the best friends you should have are your parents. They love you. And if you have problems go to them first. They may not always understand why you are doing things but they will always try. That's what love is," he told his rapt audience.

And as you grow older, he continued, there also will be other people to tempt you to go along with them and do many bad things. One of them will be to take those little pills.

"When that happens, you just remember old Uncle Art saying to you how bad it is to put anything in your mouth when you don't know what it is.

"When you do that, you are nothing but s-t-u-p-i-d," Linkletter spelled it out and was immediately answered again by the 900 voice-chorus pronouncing "STUPID."

And he was amply rewarded

Appleton Unveils Plan To Fight Drug Abuse

BY MARY WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Amid a world full of uncertainties, the Appleton-Linkletter Plan stands out as a clearly defined method of attack that promises to help other cities "get with" preventing drug abuse.

That's the way entertainer and antidrug abuse advocate Art Linkletter sees the 180-page workbook assembled by Drug Council, Inc., co-chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. David Patterson.

The couple presented him with the first copy of the plan at a semi-formal dinner, Tuesday evening the social high point of Linkletter Day. Its practical, step-by-step guide to organizing a community is as vital to the success of a drug campaign as the wheel was to the progress of man, remarked Linkletter.

There to witness the presentation at the Aid Association for Lutherans building were more than 340 community and state leaders, including Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber and Atty. Gen. Robert Warren.

And there in spirit at the Drug Council, Inc., event, via numerous letters were President Nixon, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Sens. William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson and Reps. John Byrnes and William Steiger.

Nation Watches

The eyes of the nation, as well as the state, seemed to be on Appleton, its concerned citizens, its drug council and its plan to prevent drug abuse. But less than two years ago, no one was watching the Fox Valley city, waiting for it to offer hope and inspiration in combating the problem that was then making top headlines.

"We were told this was a town that didn't care," said Mrs. Patterson.

Close to 1,000 parents and children proved otherwise, however, when they flocked last March to the Huntley Elementary School gym for the first of two drug abuse programs planned by PTA co-presidents, Mrs. Patterson and her husband.

Before the school year was out, other PTAs and home-school associations followed Huntley's example with similar success; the state PTA endorsed the program, and civic and service organizations, along with the individual citizen, were rolling up their sleeves to help. Emerging in June to coordinate community resources was the Drug Council, Inc.

Quality Confirmed

Then along came its protege, the Appleton Youth Drug Council, and finally Art Linkletter, the man whose name confirmed the quality and quantity of Appleton's efforts.

Thus nearly a year later, Mrs. Patterson could say with pride, "Appleton has picked up the pieces and the job is just beginning."

The work is a detailed record of what Mrs. Patterson calls in her introduction "often painful, often tedious, often frustrating" experience in organizing a community action group.

Convinced that the time to act is now, the Pattersons began assembling the behind-the-scenes materials when they discovered most of the workable drug abuse prevention programs were designed for big cities. They hope the thousands of other communities that fit the medium-size, prosperous, conservative, friendly, ghetto-less mold will benefit from what is the result of trial and error.

Workbook Format

Selecting a workbook format to suit their practical approach, the Pattersons offer a guide on how to stimulate awareness, educate the citizen and tap local resources. The books they read, the drug culture language they learned, the letters they wrote and received, the surveys they took, the errors they made and the successes they enjoyed are all there, along with the minutes of meetings, time sequence lines, organization charts and plenty of advice.

Don't pin your hopes on the Hot Line or the Drop-In Center, the Pattersons warn in a section that begs to differ from the views of many. They maintain that 20,000 school children may be sacrificed, while these glamorized ideas drain energy to save 20 people who offer no guarantee of going straight.

By the same token, the Pattersons treat the ex-user with suspicion and extreme caution. Rather than relying on him for assistance or importing so-called experts to run the show, they base their hopes on the dynamic person or persons who can inspire and organize the community.

The cost is minimal. "We did this on a shoestring," says Patterson.

"What we're saying to the nation is 'If we can do it, you can do it,'" she declared, presenting the plan to Linkletter.

Council Committee Wants Space for City Welfare Work

The welfare and ordinance committee is asking the City Council to find more space for the Welfare Department, whose offices were described to committeemen Tuesday as being a glass cage, an obstacle course and a sardine can.

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th), chairman, led the committee which adopted a recommendation to the council urging "that steps be taken now to find larger office space for the Welfare Department."

The department has been using a small office with a waiting room arranged in a narrow hallway outside, since Mayor George Buckley ordered the department to switch offices with the Planning Department last July 17.

Maloney asked Welfare Director Merton Ehricke to describe the situation.

Ehricke replied that since the office moved from its former five-room suite, the welfare caseload has soared, a reflection of local employment conditions.

"My office has been hectic," said Ehricke. "My clients are in a glass cage." Supposedly confidential interviews and telephone calls often must be conducted within a few feet of listeners, he said.

The department has been using the nearby City Council chamber for some interviews. The chamber also serves during the day as a walk-through between offices at oppostie ends of the second floor.

Ehricke said he considers the office to be a safety hazard. He described it as "an obstacle course" because of the cramped space between pieces of furniture, and said he and employes have been bumping into things.

He said he is unable to open one desk drawer properly because of space limitations, and when he wants to make a confidential telephone call he uses the pay telephone in the downstairs corridor.

The department's case load last month totalled 125 cases, compared with 54 in December, 1969, he said.

"We have been patient," said Ehricke. "We've tried very diligently to try to make this work." But he said he hopes the council can find larger quarters," out of fairness not only to the people that have to work under these conditions, but to the people who are forced to come to us."

Maloney explained that until recently the department was in line to move to the larger basement offices and storage space now used by the parking meter department.

But the board of public works recently decided against a plan to move the meter department to space to be provided in the Soldier's Square parking ramp and to wait instead until space becomes available in the Appleton Vocational School Building.

Maloney said that means it will be at least a year before the basement space is available, and he urged action to find the welfare office larger quarters now.

If space can't be found in City Hall, committeemen agreed, the city should consider looking elsewhere Ehricke said it isn't necessary to be headquartered in City Hall.

The committee recommendation is expected to be referred by the Council to the board of public works.

Primary to Feature 11th Ward, School Posts

Appleton's March 2 primary election ballots will include a five-way race for two Board of Education seats and a four-way primary for the 11th Ward alderman's post, in addition to the 12-way battle for county executive.

A last-minute filing pushed the number of candidates for Outagamie County executive to an even dozen.

Controversial Supv. Eugene Kloes, 203 N. State St., Appleton, filed nomination papers shortly before the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

Kloes, 51, is serving his sixth two-year term on the county board. He is a member of the finance committee and is its represeniative on the executive committee. He has been chairman o fthe courts and justice committee.

He has been involved in frequent controversies on the board floor because of his outspoken techniques.

Kloes said he would make his position on various county issues known between now and the primary election.

The lineup on the primary ballot, in addition to Kloes, includes three other supervisors, Charles Wussow and John Schreiter of Appleton and Norman Austin of the Town of Oneida; Appleton Mayor George Buckley, Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, Kimberly Public Works Director Patrick Flanagan, County Administrator Alvin Woehler, Dist. Atty. James Long, Kaukauna attorney Emmet Rohan, Appleton alderman and former mayor Robert Roemer and Henry Hofacker, a rural Hortonville farmer.

The April 6 general election ballots will include the winners of the primaries and will settle two-way contests for six additional seats on the City Council.

One council incumbent received 11th-hour opposition when a candidate took out nomination papers Monday and filed them before Tuesday's deadline.

Three other aldermen are unopposed, but one incumbent alderman failed to file nomination papers, leaving two challengers to compete for his job.

Incumbent Doesn't File

A primary had appeared to be in the making in the 19th Ward until Ald. Richard Schouten failed to file nomination papers after having taken them out.

Seeking his council seat in April are Donald Day, 37, 2225 N. Gillett St., and Ralph Gertsch, 50, 1833 N. Mason St.

Gertsch was defeated at the end of one term by Schouten two years ago. He is chairman of the parks and recreation commission.

Day was Scouten's campaign chairman in 1969. Currently Neenah city health officer, he formerly was Appleton health director.

All nine other aldermen whose terms expire this year filed for re-election, including Ald. Arthur Hoolihan, 53, 1302 S. Harmon St, who doubles as Outagamie County Clerk. He faces three opponents seeking his 11th Ward job, including two women and the son of one of his predecessors on the Council. He has been alderman two terms.

11th Ward Candidates

Other 11th Ward candidates include:

Mrs. Mary Laux, 32, 57 Fairway Court.

Kenneth J. Priebe, 33, 1206 S. Ritger St., an insurance salesman.

Mrs. Beverly Wieckert, 35, 43 S. Meadows Drive.

Both women are housewives active in local civic activities. None of the three challengers has held elective office before.

The candidates for two school board posts falling vacant this year are:

John McKenzie, 39, 716 S. Fidelis St., executive vice president of Peoples Credit Corp., appointed last fall to fill a vacancy and seeking a full three year term.

Gerhard Willecke, 57, 56 Garden Court, administrative vice president of Miller Electric Manufacturing Co., an unsuccessful candidate for the board in 1963.

Mrs. Janet Van Asten, 31, 1214 E. Fremont St., a housewife active in school and government-oriented civic activities.

Richard Heronemus, 38, 2605 Elmwood Court, manufacturing

2 Shovelers Die From Heart Attacks

Two county men, one from rural Appleton, have died within the past 24 hours due to heart attacks from shoveling snow.

The latest victim was Wilbert Verhagen, 64, route 5, who collapsed and died this morning. Deputy County Coroner C. J. Schink said Verhagen had shoveled about 15 minutes when he returned to his house and was stricken.

Harvey Lemke, 65, 1311 Lawrence St., New London, was dead on arrival at New London Community Hospital about 3 p.m. Tuesday after being stricken near the farm he rented near Stephensville. Kemps said he suffered the heart attack after spending 15 minutes trying to dig out a snowplow-tractor lodged in a ditch on Cummings Road.

Their deaths prompted a call for moderation from Coronor Kemps. "These people are too energetic, they want to get all the work done at one time," he said.

"If they would just take it easy ... and take frequent rests," he recommended.

Funeral arrangements for Verhagen will be conducted by Verkuillen Funeral Home in Little Chute. Borchardt and Moder, New London, will handle arrangements for Lemke.

Prominent Businessman

Howard Thelin Dies at 53

A heart attack early Tuesday evening claimed the life of a prominent Appleton businessman and civic leader, Howard S. Thelin.

Thelin, 53, owner of Conkey's Book Store, 226 E. College Ave., collapsed at his route 1, Menasha home and was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth Hospital according to Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes.

Thelin, as president of University Book Stores, Inc., had an interest in several other book stores in Wisconsin. He came to Appleton in 1953, at which time he purchased Conkey's.

The Maywood, Ill., native attended the University of Colorado on an athletic scholarship.

Civic Activities

He was associated with the Follett College Book Corp. before and after World War II, ultimately as assistant to the president and sales manager of the college division.

Thelin was active in community affairs at Westchester, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, and he continued his civic activities after moving to Appleton.

He was active in the planning for College Avenue remodeling, was on the board of directors of the Salvation Army and a member of the Appleton Memorial Hospital board of trustees.

In 1963, Thelin received an honorary master of arts degree from Lawrence University.

He was a member of the Viking Bench, the Appleton Downtown Kiwanis Club, Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce, Riverview Country Club and the First Congregational United Church of Christ.

Thelin was a World War II Army veteran, having served with a tank unit in Europe.

Survivors include his widow, Gladys, his mother and stepfather and a brother.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Friday at the First Congregational Church. Entombment will be in Oak Ridge Mausoleum, Westchester, Ill. Friends may call at Wichmann Funeral Home from 4 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

A Howard S. Thelin Memorial Fund will be established.

Town of Menasha to Schedule Primary Election

NEENAH-MENASHA — Now everyone knows who will really be running in the April 6 municipal and school board elections in the Twin Cities and the Town of Menasha. The deadline for filing nomination papers has passed.

Only three incumbent aldermen in the Twin Cities will be re-elected to new terms without opposition. Menasha Fourth Ward Ald. Richard Heindl and Second Ward Ald. Walter Remmel, along with Neenah Ninth Ward Ald. Milton Boehm can coast to victory on April 6. They are the only ones who filed in their wards.

Other incumbents aren't so fortunate. In the other four races in Neenah, there is one challenger for each incumbent. In the other four contests in Menasha, the number of election contestants varies from two (Fifth Ward) to seven (Third Ward).

Most of the incumbents in the Town of Menasha are home free also. Only the election of a District 2 town board supervisor will see a contest. Three people filed papers for that post, including incumbent Robert Wisner and challengers Carl DeLapp and Ernest Lehl, 1470 Jacobsen Road. The presence of three candidates means a primary will have to be held on March 2 to eliminate one of the candidates.

Only Primary

That will be the only primary in the area. No primaries will be necessary in Neenah, where there is only one challenger for each of the seats up for election (school board and city council).

Primaries are only required in mayoral elections in Menasha. There was an attempt, spearheaded by Mayor James Adams, to establish primaries for all municipal elections where there is more than one challenger, but the common council voted the proposal down.

School Board

Three candidates will run for the two Menasha joint school district seats up for election on April 6. Incumbent Robert A. Farrell will be in the race, along with newcomers Thomas H. Feavel, 950 Williams St., Town of Menasha, an office employe at Appleton Mills, and Mrs. Gavin Young, 325 Lake Road. The other incumbent, Robert A. Bryan, is not seeking re-election.

Six candidates will be seeking the three seats on the Neenah joint school district board of education. One of them, William Burger, is an incumbent. The other five — Merl B. Case, 552 Belmont Ave.; Mrs. Wilma Lieber, 188 Plummer Court; Neal Perry, 806 Hewitt St.; Warren Fitzgibbon, 508 Haylett St., and George Webster, 339 Stanley Court — are newcomers.

Menasha Races

Here is a ward-by-ward breakdown of the races in Menasha: —First Ward. Two latecomers have brought the number of contestants to three in an election to fill a seat being vacated by Ald. Andrew (Bud) DeLeeuw.

They are Roman J. Zimmerman, 301 Chute St., a machine operator at Kimberly-Clark Corp. and Julian Weisgerber, 412 Sixth St., retired. They filed nomination papers Tuesday to join Charles Heinz, 337 First St., a mechanic and crew chief at American Can Co., and a member of the Menasha Redevelopment Authority (MRA), who had filed earlier.

Third Ward

—Third Ward. Seven candidates in this race make it the one to watch in April. They will be running to fill the seat being vacated by retiring Ald. William Erickson.

The contestants are William R. Zeininger, Sr., 357 Ahnaip St., retired; Richard Taves, 512 Nciolet Blvd., a compositor at the George Banta Co.; Clarence Godhardt, 327 Naymut St., a loom operator at International Wagenknecht and owner of his own real estate agency:

Morgan Eckrich, 383 Naymut St., a supervisor at the Menasha Corp.; David T. Murray, 374 Elm St., retired; Gerald Wagner, 417 Ahnaip St, a compositor at the George Banta Co., current chairman of the Menasha Housing Authority, and former alderman; and Joseph J. Van Lieshout, 804 Nicolet Blvd., a project planner at the American Can Co.

Fifth Ward

—Fifth Ward. Incumbent Herbert Batley, 616 Broad St., who works in the billing department of the George Banta Co., will face a challenge from Ronald O'Brien, 209 Manitowoc St., a contractor.

—Sixth Ward. Incumbent Robert Winarski filed nomination papers Tuesday to become one of three candidates in this ward election.

Winarski, an employe at International Wagenknecht, will face a challenge from fellow employe Robert LaCount, 957 Melissa St., who is a wire weaver at International, and Norman Underwood, 1004 Meadowview Drive, a stripper at Banta.

LaCount is also chairman of the park and recreation board.

2 Didn't File

Two expected candidates in the race dropped out before filing nomination papers. Ronald Scheurle, 924 Grove St., a former Sixth Ward Alderman, and Raymond LaPorte, 701 Grove St., had taken out papers to run.

The races in Neenah are:

—First Ward. Incumbent Paul Mueller, 600 Laudan Blvd., a newspaper preprint coordinator for American Can Co., will face a challenge from Robert R. Troyer, 1084 Eden Drive, a Kimberly-Clark Corp. development director.

—Third Ward. Incumbent Ald. Michael G. Elis, 216 Clybourn St., is running in another election after winning the county's Third Assembly district seat in the November, 1970 elections.

He will face a challenge from former long-time alderman Peter Fara, 430 High St., a maintenance supervisor for K-C.

—Fifth Ward. This will be a race between Incumbent Thomas Willarson, 339 Ninth St., co-owner of the Winchester Hills Golf Course who was appointed to the council one year ago, and Gilbert Krueger, 418 Park Drive, an industrial designer for Central Paper Co., Menasha and president of the Sewerage Commission.

—Seventh Ward. David Kaufert, 136 John St., a produce manager for Super Valu, will challenge incumbent Ald. Donald Stever, 136 Andrew St., a photo engraver for American Con Co.

Students in the political science class at St. John High School, Little Chute, work on an occupational survey of 1970 graduates, compiled in cooperation with the guidance department at the school. Result of the survey showed that 50 per cent of the 1970 graduates are continuing their education. From left are Colleen McMahon, Joan Zierler, Lynn Schumacher and Pamela Hermsen. Neenah May Alter Zoning Code

NEENAH — A city barber's request for permission to expand his operation from a one to a two-chair shop may be the catalyst for rewriting two classifications in the city zoning code.

Nick Dionisopoulos, who operates Nick's Barber Shop at 224 Washington Ave., almost two months ago asked for the correct zoning so he could hire a helper to man the second chair in his shop.

But under the present multiple family zoning, the family businesses which are allowed restrict his hiring to his immediate family, and he has asked the plan commission to make the necessary changes so he can get a helper.

Spot Zoning

The plan commission, however, is reluctant to deviate from its ban on spot zoning. The barber shop would have to be rezoned to C-1 (commercial) which the commission thinks may be undesirable for Washington Avenue.

Ald. William Zelinski suggested, "Instead of rezoning it to C-1, why don't we make provisions in the present zoning for this type of operation.

"We're going to be faced with more requests for this type of thing in the future, so why don't we make provisions for it now?" Zelinski said.

Condominiums

Agreeing with Zelinski was Robert Thom, who said, "I think there's real merit in that suggestion because condominium developments are going to come and there's going to be demands for beauty shops, barber shops, drug stores and other small services."

Ronald Lange, suggested that, instead of just rezoning the barbershop lot, the C-1 designation be attached to the entire north side of Washington between Walnut and Franklin.

"It's a main thoroughfare now so why don't we extend the zoning through the entire block," Lange said.

Ald. Harold Young, Tenth Ward, appearing because the barber shop is located in his ward, opposed spot zoning of it but also asked the commission to check other ways to allow the two chairs.

Zelinski, defending his proposal to rewrite the zoning code, said, "I don't really see where one more chair in a barber shop will overburden the M-1 (multiple family) class."

The commission turned the issue over to City Atty. Duane Phlis to check on the possible alternatives and procedure for allowing the operation in other than the C-1 class.

Location of HUD-235 Housing Depends on Aid of Developers

NEENAH — According to the Fox Valley Council of Governments the only effective way to achieve some control over construction of federally subsidized homes is to "work informally with a developer."

Mayor Roman Hauser, two weeks ago at the city plan commission meeting, had asked what the city could do to protect the value of homes after being depreciated with an onslaught of the subsidized homes, a program commonly called HUD-235.

But, according to Kenneth Theine, COG housing planner, restricting the areas where the HUD homes can be built is being questioned by the courts for being "exclusionary."

Theine pointed out, in a letter to the plan commission, that several communities had tried to control the housing developments by restricting the size of lots within a range of single family zones.

But these moves are being questioned in the courts, especially in areas which intentionally forget to allow for smaller lots, normally the ones purchased for the HUD homes.

"On one side the public would like to see these homes scattered throughout the community with no one large concentration in any single sector.

"On the other hand, since it is new development, it will occur largely in the fringe areas and developers will seek to aggregate land to lower the cost of the housing," Theine said.

"Scattered site purchase of land is much more costly than the purchase of larger, undeveloped tracts. Some citizens would even be in favor of concentrating the homes in one area so long as they do not live in proximity to it," he wrote.

Scattered Approach

"The only way to effectively achieve the scattered approach is to work informally with developers to guarantee implementation of such a strategy. The only method available to the city is persuasion and a commitment by the developer to work for the overall welfare of the community," according to Theine.

Grand Chute Primary Set in Constable Race

A primary election in March will be necessary for the office of constable in the Town of Grand Chute. A race for the town's two supervisor positions has also developed for the April election.

Opposing incumbent Constable John Arft, 415 Sunset Ave., in his bid for a fifth straight term are David Neubert, 5536 N. Richmond St., and Leslie Bast, 700 S. Casaloma Drive. Two of the three candidates receiving the highest number of votes on March 2 will be placed on the April ballot.

Incumbent Supv. Edward Ziegler, route 3, will be opposed by James Gasper, 1330 W. Elsner Road, and Gerald W. Capelle, 3610 W. Florida Ave. Two positions are at stake here. Bernard Tillman, one of the town's present supervisors, took out nomination papers but failed to file them Tuesday.

Tillman cited two reasons for not running again. One, he said, is his time-consuming job as an Outagamie County supervisor. He also wanted to be free in case a prospective business venture materializes, he said.

Two candidates have filed papers for the soon to be vacated post of town treasurer. They are George D. Froehlich, 1502 S. Van Dyke St., and Mrs. William L. Blohm, 2617 First Ave. Present Treasurer Eugene Paltzer previously announced he would not seek re-election.

Three of the town's present officers, including Chairman Ira Livingston will not be opposed. Livingston will be starting his second term. Town Clerk Leslie Woldt, will begin his 12th term, and John Stevens, will start his seventh as assessor.

License Fee Hike Opposed By Froehlich

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Assembly Republican Leader Harold V. Froehlich, R-Appleton, said today he will oppose any attempt to increase automobile and motorcycle license fees, a plan now being considered by a Legislative Council subcommittee.

"Although I recognize the critical need in metropolitan areas such as Milwaukee for improvement in their mass transit facilities, I feel it patently unfair to ask motorists in Appleton or Chippewa Falls to share the expenses for such improvements which will in no way benefit them. As far as I am concerned some other way must be found to aid these operations," Froehlich siad.

"For this reason, I will vote against and actively work against any such proposal if it reaches the Legislature.

"I am inclined at this point to oppose a hike in vehicle registration fees for any reason," Froehlich added.

Dino Martin's Speeding Results in $184 Fine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dino Martin, the 19-year-old son of Dean Martin and an entertainer in his own right, has paid a $184 fine for speeding and failing to appear in court.

Martin received the ticket on a freeway May 13. On Jan. 5 he pleaded guilty. Municipal Court Judge Alan Campbell set the fine Tuesday. The young rock musician wasn't in court, and his lawyer paid it.

Split Vote Bans Sunday Mowing

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — The annual Winnetka Town Meeting has passed an ordinance forbidding the use of power lawn mowers before 10 a.m. on Sundays.

The 151-149 recent vote came on a motion by Mrs. James E. Garvin. She said her husband, a biochemist who teaches at the Northwestern University Medical School, has classes late on Saturday nights and in summer is often awakened as early as 6 a.m. by the mowers.

Correction

One of five candidates for election to the Kaukauna Board of Education is Benjamin Verbeten. The Post-Crescent erroneously reported his name to be Benjamin Verhagen.

Rural Health Study Starts in Outagamie

The first steps were taken Tuesday night toward organizing the rural phase of a public health study in Outagamie County.

Members of the county board's health committee subunit for the study were to have met with a number of rural representatives, but road conditions limited the turnout to two.

A similar meeting is scheduled with urban representatives on Feb. 4 to map out that phase of the study.

The study is aimed at determining the need for and feasibility of a county health department.

Supv. Kenneth Gibson, Appleton, member of the county board's health committee, said the basic question to be answered is whether the rural areas want and need the same public health services as the urban areas.

Plans are to formulate questionnaires to be sent to town officials, health officers and a random sampling of rural residents. The same procedures will be followed in the urban areas.

Ira Livingston, Town of Grand Chute chairman, said he had no objections to conducting a study, but said he did not see any real health problems in the rural areas. "Maybe we just have had good luck in Grand Chute," he said.

"With all the problems we have, you're going to have a hard time selling this (health department)," Livingston said. "If you're going to talk the towns into this, you must have something ready to step in immediately to do the job and do it more efficiently."

Dr. Keith Breyer, Hortonville, health officer for the Town of Ellington, said he did not think it would take too much to beat the services now offered.

He said he wondered how many taverns were serving hamburgers and never have had wells tested.

If a county health department were created, it would replace all of the town and city health officers and departments.

At present, Waukesha County has the only county health department in the state. The director of that department is scheduled to appear before the committee on Feb. 11.

Fuel, Blower System Stolen From Truck

Outagamie County authorities are investigating the theft of a fuel and blower system worth $900 from the diesel truck of a rural Appleton man.

LeRoy Geiger, route 2, reported the missing equipment to the sheriff's department Tuesday. The truck had been parked on Island Road, one-half mile south of U. S. 10 in a gravel pit, he said. Geiger believed the item was stolen during the past two or three months.

Devotion to Scouting Earns Rewards

NEENAH — Awards recognizing devotion to Scouting were presented Monday at the first annual awards dinner of the Tri-City District, Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Four volunteers from the Fox Cities were honored for the services they had rendered through the years, in the surprise ceremony.

A den mother and the only woman led the list of recipients. She is Mrs. Dorothy (Thomas) Alcox, who has worked with Pack 74, Neenah, for a number of years, and assists her husband, who is the cubmaster. In 1967 she received the den mother's training award.

The other three honored are from Appleton, but have worked throughout the district in various posts.

20-Year Veteran

Delmar Otis, district commissioner and a 20-year veteran of Scouting, was honored for "beefing up or salvaging more Scouting units than any other active commissioner," in the words of Richard Schoehnbohm, district advancement chairman, who made the presentations.

Clayton Welson, the third recipient, began his work in Scouting 36 years ago, when he organized a troop, and still works with the troop every week. He has served as committee chairman, a committeeman and in 1967 received the Scouter's training award.

The fourth recipient, Robert Schindhelm, another volunteer who has given his time for a number of years, was particularly recognized for his work with the special education boys at Highland School.

Three other volunteers, who had received the first of the merit awards last year, also were recognized by Schoenbohm.

They are Thomas Hollenbeck, Patrick McCormick, and Richard Mykel, all of whom have devoted a number of years to Scouting.

Cub Scout Assists

Schoehnbohm was assisted in the presentation by Cub Scout Everett Kautz, of Pack 91, Neenah, which was in charge of the dinner.

The seven had been nominated by their volunteer colleagues and selected by a special committee.

Other awards which were presented were the national camping award, by Arthur Snell; national summertime pack awards, Len Schneider; training awards, Leroy Peterson, and Helping Hands awards, by the district executives involved.

Fred Hrubecky presented the new units organized in 1970; Pack 91 and Troop 91 were in charge of the opening and closing ceremonies; Scott Howard brought the introduction and District Chairman F. H. Sprowl gave the district report.

The Rev. Orville Janssen, pastor of St. Bernard Catholic Church, was the featured speaker.

Sharing the spotlight with him were the Sing Out Fox Cities group, with Debbie Wyman as coordinator.

The Rev. Richard Johnson, pastor of Our Saviour Lutheran Church, sponsors of Pack and Troop 91, gave the invocation.

later during his well known interview with children when he asked a youngster, "Why will you refuse to take pills from others? The answer came, without hesitation, "Because I don't want to be stupid.

"Put 'er there," Linkletter grinned and heartily shook the little hand extended to him.

It was this part of the program which once again proved that there isn't anyone who has more rapport with children than this man.

Perched on top of the high stools, the little ones seemed to overcome their shyness and the friendly man went from one to the other with questions.

Although there was the reversal of roles, where the children asked questions of Linkletter, the speaker had a word for everyone.

"Look at those big, brown eyes," he said to one young lady who took care of the compliment with a quick "thank you," and proceeded with her question.

Going to a swankily dressed 6-year-old, Linkletter stepped back to admire the outfit and said, "and here we have a young man in a brand new suit."

"How did you know it was new?" demanded the tot, unbuttoning his jacket to show off the vest.

And he touched on the skinned noses and knees of some of the kids, commented on the pretty red hair of one little girl and grinned at the ruddy complexion of a young man.

And when the interviews were over, he turned to the youngsters and said, "Life will be good and fun. But when the sad times come, you just cry a little.

"You know that when the tears dry, everthing seems better — especially when you have a peanut butter and jelly sandwich."

He then declared, "And remember, I love you all."

Defense Seeks Dismissal in Sherwood Obscenity Case

CHILTON — Briefs were ordered filed last week by Calumet County Judge D. H. Sebora on a defense motion to dismiss the first obscenity case heard in his court.

The case involves a lewd and lascivious conduct charge against Michiels Bar and Bowl, Sherwood, where a Dec. 16 complaint by a patron alleges a female entertainer exposed herself during a performance.

The briefs are to be filed as soon as possible. Sebora indicated that because it is the first obscenity case, a speedy trial may not be possible.

"The public is entitled to know what is and is not obscene in Calumet County," Sebora said.

The courthouse law library contains no U. S. Supreme Court decisions on obscenity, he said. The state law isn't clear on whether such exposure is illegal.

The defense attorney and Calumet district attorney presented oral arguments Friday.

William Hertel, legal counsel for Michiels, which has Julie Michiels as agent, contended the complaint was defective because it didn't name the dancer or the time of the alleged offense.

Hertel filed the dismissal motion Jan. 7, a week after Michiels and its agent posted a $100 bond.

Hertel also argued that no minor was involved nor did the alleged performance assault the sensibilities of an unwiling adult. He said the Michiels front sign advertises exotic dancers, and adults have the option of viewing it or not.

He argued the performance was "freedom of expression protected by the very broad Wisconsin statutes, the 14th Amendment of the Constitution and the First Amendment embodied in the 14th Amendment." He challenged the constitutionality of obscenity laws and said the state could permit greater freedom of speech and the press than allowed in the 14th Amendment but not less.

He cited cases, including one on a topless and bottomless dancer and the recent U S Supreme Court decision on pornographic materials going through the mail, in support of his arguments.

Dist. Atty. Franklin J. Schmieder contended the defendants "are trying to look beyond the statutes in the present case. He said that "indecent exposure in a public place is not a form of expression protected by the constitution."

He argued that Michiels is a tavern and bowling alley and questioned whether the outside sign advertised "naked dancer inside." He cited a state case that indecent exposure isn't a crime unless done publicly and likely to be seen by the casual viewer.

Hertel had argued that court cases have defended the right of persons to read or view pornographic materials in the privacy of their homes.

Schmieder said "There is a lot of difference between a sign advertising exotic dancers and nude females."

She was hurt when a car driven by Joseph Loessel, 25, of the Neenah address, collided in the intersection with one operated by Anthony J. Theisen, 20, Madison.

No money was missing after burglars broke into the Appleton Bicycle Shop, 121 S. State St., late Monday or early Tuesday. Several payment vouchers and insurance slips were gone from a cash register which was pried open, however, according to Appleton police. Detectives discovered that a rear door glass had been broken.

Detectives are investigating the complaint of apparent thefts at 12 more basement storage bins in an Appleton apartment. The manager of the Longview Drive Apartments, 1500 E. It wasn't known if anything was missing.

Sentence was withheld, but two years' probation, with the first 90 days in the Outagamie County Jail under the Huber Law, were ordered Tuesday for Ronald Billick, 26. The Manawa man previously pleaded no-contest to a burglary count. County Judge Nick F. Schaefer also directed Billick to pay court costs and lawyer's fees. County investigators said that Billick took two quarter barrels of beer after breaking into Peck's Beer Depot in the Town of Dale early Jan. 1.

A guilty plea to a count of driving after revocation brought a 10-day Huber Law jail term Tuesday for Larry E. Pagel, 20. Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer also revoked Pagels driver's license for a year. Pagel, of 1197 Hillcrest Drive, was stopped on W. Wisconsin Avenue by city police on Dec. 26.

Dennis Jansen, 21, of 2821 N. Ballard Road, was fined $25 and costs Monday for issuing a worthless $10 check on Dec. 13. The bogus check was passed at the Double O Super Valu store, 2731 N. Meade St., and drawn off the Farmer's and Merchant's Bank of Kaukauna.

Three persons received minor injuries Saturday afternoon when two cars collided in the intersection of State 125 and Lilas Drive, one mile west of Appleton. Outagamie County police said that the drivers of the cars, Suzanna M. Gibert, 19, route 1, Appleton, and Amelia V. Gutreuter, 63, 1321 Riverdale Drive, sustained bumps. A passenger in the Gibert auto, Sally J. Dillenberg, 19, of Hortonville, had a knee bruise.

Sparks from an electrical unit, which ignited nearby paper shavings at the Riverside Paper Co., 800 S. Lawe St., sent five units of the Appleton Fire Department to the mill shortly before 3:30 a.m. Tuesday. Officials said workmen had extinguished the fire before they arrived.

KAUKAUNA — Charles Hegner, 27, 1806 Kernan Ave., Appleton, pleaded no contest to a charge of disorderly conduct and was fined $35 by Municipal Justice Clarence O'Connor Monday. He was arrested after causing a disturbance in a local business place.

Hearings for 3 Suspects Delayed Again

Joint Exam on Burglary Charges Adjourned Tuesday

For the second time in three weeks, the preliminary hearings of three burglary suspects, one who was wounded by police during a stakeout in December, have met delay.

Because of conflicts in the schedules of two defense attorneys and Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller, the joint preliminary examination for Harry Mueller, 28, Madison, and a Combined Locks couple, Irvin Zehren, 40, and his wife Florence, 39, of 500 Hartjes St., will be reopened at 9 a.m. Feb. 4.

Keller arjourned the session at 5 p.m. Tuesday, as the seventh sate's witness was being cross examined. Authorities had hoped the hearing would only take one day. On Jan. 6, Keller refused to begin the hearing, claiming that defense attorneys were tardy in filing motions challenging the criminal complaints naming the trio.

The state's key witness, an Appleton housewife who acted as an informer, testified under oath Tuesday that she discussed with Zehren plans for breaking into Fox Valley establishments Assistant Dist Atty. R Thomas Cane granted her immunity before she revealed those alleged conversations.

She described how her husband had "layed out places" Mueller and Zehren were to burglarize. Answering the inquiries of Cane, she recalled being present in late November when her husband received some of the stolen property, four or five weapons, two of which supposedly were removed from the parked auto of a Milwaukee man in Appleton on Nov. 21.

In turn, she said her husband sold the items in Green Bay. She explained she was instructed to take notes on her activities, and turn them over to police. Alleged burglaries the night of Dec. 12 at Xavier High School and St. Bernard Catholic Church came on her suggestion to Zehren that these might be good spots, she said from the witness stand.

Eight felony charges naming Mueller and Zehren, including six burglaries, were further detailed by her signed affidavits on some of the criminal complaints Tuesday. Mrs. Zehren is charged with burglary of Xavier and St. Bernard Church.

Opposition to Testimony

The informer's testimony, and that of six previous witnesses who told of loss of property and apparent break-ins at their business places, was met with rigorous opposition by the defense attorneys during cross examination.

Melvin Greenberg, defending Mueller, protested that charges naming his client "rest solely on the credibility and reliability of this witness." Similar objections came from Robert Henke, eZhren's lawyer, who drilled store operators with questions about employes who had keys and therefore access to the premises.

Police officers, subpoened to testify to the actual shooting at Xavier which killed Richard Eickhoff, 42, Madison, never got a chance to take the stand. Most of them had stayed at the courthouse for that purpose all day.

Little Chute to Get Playground Equipment

LITTLE CHUTE — Village Jaycees agreed this week to purchase a slide, merry-go-round and swing set for the first lot in their neighborhood playgrounds project.

Proceeds from a Sole Singers concert, 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7 at the high school, will be used to buy equipment for two more "Tot-lots."

Man Faces Probation for Meat Theft

Two year's probation was ordered Tuesday for a former supervisor at a New London meat packing plant who took over 1,660 pounds of meat during an 18-month period. It was part of an alleged scheme with a Milwaukee man.

Harold Dreier, 44, of 1811 Smith St., New London, previously pleaded guilty to two counts of theft, and Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer authorized a presentence investigation. Dreier had been free on bond. Before granting probation Tuesday, Schaefer withheld a prison sentence.

Restitution for his share of the thefts, which totaled $6,530, according to authorities, has been made. Dreier was ordered to pay court costs also.

Dreier formerly worked for the Quality Packing House, Inc., near New London, as a production supervisor. County investigators said he altered invoices so that one of the firm's customers, in Milwaukee, would pay only half of what he owed the packing house.

Dominic Mandella, 55, Milwaukee, faces a preliminary hearing on a theft charge Feb. 15 for allegedly being the one with whom Dreier dealt. Authorities said that in exchange for falsifying the prices on the meat he shipped by Mandella, the second man would give Dreier small payments of cash, plus merchandise.

Voters to Get Special Hours For Registration

Special voter registration hours will be held in the clerk's office at City Hall from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday, City Clerk Elden Broehm announced.

The deadline to register for the March 2 primary election is 5 p.m. Feb. 17.

Citizens also may register during regular office hours, 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Persons must register who haven't voted before in Appleton, or who have failed to vote for the last two years and haven't reregistered or who have moved to Appleton more than 10 years ago and have lived in Wisconsin at least six months.

Those who have changed addresses within the city may report the change by telephone, but voters reporting a change of name must appear in person at the clerk's office.

Church World Service Plans Clothing Drive

The Church World Service, as part of a statewide collection drive, will pick up various articles of clothing in Appleton on Feb. 22. Those who wish to contribute are asked to bring pieces to the First Congregational United Church of Christ no later than Feb. 18.

Last year approximately 3,198 pounds of clothing was received in Appleton. Most of it was sent overseas to help relieve poverty in underdeveloped countries.

Bay of Tonkin Holiday Festivities

The Appleton-born commander of a destroyer operating in the Gulf of Tonkin off North Vietnam was visited by the Navy's top Pacific brass during the holidays.

Within four days, he met and briefed Admiral Cleary, commander-in-chief of the U. S Pacific Fleet. Vice Admiral Weisner of the Seventh Fleet; Rear Admiral Cox, and Rear Admiral Garret, chief of the Navy Chaplain Corps.

Cleary spoke to assembled crew members on changes in Navy life directed by the new Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt.

Men of Song Quartet In Clintonville Feb. 10

Jingo Finds Four Singers, Pianist All Have Outstanding Musical Backgrounds

BY JINGO

Jingo's heard the news from Clintonville the whole valley could heed. The ringing voices of the foursome called The Men of Song will be the next attraction there on the Area Concert Theatre Series.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 10, in the auditorium of Clintonville Junior High School.

Considered by critics as one of the finest quartets ever assembled, The Men of Song have delighted audiences the length and breadth of the North American continent. They have sung about 800 concerts, a few more or less. The Clintonville program is designed to maintain this singing group's popularity; there'll be no stinting on song or melody.

Backgrounds Impressive

None other than tenors Rob Fritz and Jack Horton, baritone Gay Waid, and bass Frederick McDonald. Neil Stannard is their pianist, an accomplished musician in his own right. To prove the point of their collective abilities, here's the background Jingo received.

Fritz is from the greater New York City area; he attended Randolph - Macon College and Juilliard School of Music in New York City. He served in the Navy with the Atlantic Fleet and now is established as an oratorio and opera singer in New York. This is his first national tour with The Men of Song.

Horton, who counts both Virginia and West Virginia as home states, was graduated from the University of West Virginia. There he became a Metropolitan Opera Auditions winner. He has worked with the Lake George Opera Company three seasons, made three national tours with the Goldovsky Opera Theatre and also toured with the Robert Shaw Chorale.

One Westerner

Waid is an Oklahoman who was graduated from Wichita State University. His professional credits include the famous western Central City Opera in Colorado, the Santa Fe Opera and featured roles with Goldovsky Opera Theatre.

McDonald, from Middleport, N.Y., attended Fredonia State University before completing his studies at Mannes School of Music and Juilliard. He has toured as bass soloist with the DeCormier Singers and the Whit-Lo Singers, he has appeared on television with the Ed Sullivan Show singing group.

Stannard was graduated Cum Laude from the University of Southern California and was awarded scholarships to the Music Hochschule in Berlin and to Juilliard School of Music. He played concerts in seven European countries. As a concert accompanist, he has played in Carnegie Hall, Alice Tully Hall and has toured coast-to-coast.

Now you know, Jingo thinks, why this will be a big event in Clintonville, well worth attending.

Young People In CBS News Test Tonight

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Kids! 53 Things to Know About Health, Sex and Growing Up is a CBS News test for young people that will be just as interesting for adults. Correspondent Charles Kuralt spent several days with hundreds of youngsters in Atlanta, Ga., finding out what they knew (and wanted to know) about what's going on in the world today. He came away saying, "The kids I talked to were frank, open, candid and so very honest. When we were talking about sex, I think the film crew and myself were more embarrassed than the kids. It's because they're so well informed and I was greatly impressed."

9-10 Channel 5 — Man's Thumb on Nature's Balance is a very different kind of ecology special, since man doesn't come out as being all that rotten after all. Much of the show was shot in the Pribilof Islands, where the annual harvest of seal fur has become the center of controversy. "Killing is not a spectator sport," says correspondent Jack Perkins, "especially when the killing is done by hitting the seals over the head with clubs, but scientists who studied the situation say that's actually the most humane way to do it. As far as the killing is concerned, the American seal hunters kill only a controlled number and maintain a prosperous and healthy herd. The only seals killed are bachelor bulls between the ages of three and five. The Canadians kill anything that moves."

6:30-8 Channel 5 — There's not a lot of plot in The Men From Shiloh, but there's plenty of humor from a fine but small (Doug McClure and four guests) cast. Ann Sothern and Carolyn Jones play younger versions of the sisters from Arsenic and Old Lace." They live in a ghost town with Edgar Buchanan, their protector, Trampas (McClure) rides into the town and finds himself mistaken for a wanted criminal. When the criminal (Bradford Dillman arrives, the sisters think he's a lawman and they ask his assistance to see that Trampas gets a fair trial.

7:30-8 Channel 2-7 — To Rome With Love has a pleasant script by Joan O'Brien, the lady who created the series. Penny meets an older boy (he's 14) who talks "flat out" and tells her he likes her. When he joins the family for a dinner date, along with Alison's date, he gets a mad crush on Alison.

10:30-11:30 Channel 2 — Medical Center is turned upside down searching for a deadly radioactive implant which has been lost by a cancer patient. She is so distraught over the death (from heart trouble) of her new born baby that she develops amnesia. Meanwhile, the hospital calls her husband, who turns out not to be married to her, and there's a young boy who may have leukemia, and his worried father and enough other little subplots to keep a soap opera going for a decade.

8-9 Channels 11-9 — Johnny Cash Presents the Country Music Story concludes its history of country music with such stars as Faron Young, Minnie Pearl, Merle Haggard, Chet Atkins, Kitty Wells, Tammy Wynette, Takahiro Saito and other of their illustrious ilk on hand.

Unscramble Dog's Name To Win Metal Car Kit

BY CAPPY DICK

Boys and girls! Today introduces a new national grand prize for young Cappy Dick readers to win! It's a pair of Action-Pak Metal Car kits manufactured by Model Products Corporation.

These kits permit a boy or girl to assemble realistic miniature model automobiles. The trunks, hoods and doors open and close, the seats adjust, the headlight covers pop open, the wheels turn to right or left in both forward and reverse with just slight hand pressure and, to top it all, you not only can build them, but you can take them apart and build them again and again.

Two kits will be included in each national grand prize and five such prizes will be awarded in today's contest.

What Breed?

Unscramble the breed name of the dog in the picture. The necessary letters of the two-word name are in the picture. When you know what the breed is, clip out the picture, paste it on a sheet of paper, print the deciphered breed beneath it, print your name, age, address and Zip Code number and decorate the entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts.

Finally address your contest entry to Cappy Dick's Action-Pak Car Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

To qualify for a chance to win one of the Action-Pak kits your entry must first win a local qualifying prize for being one of the 5 neatest and most original correct entries received from boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. These prizes will be a Cappy Dick pocket game called the Solitaire Puzzle. Entries winning these local qualifying prizes will be reconsidered, along with local winners from all other Young Hobby Club cities, to find the five that are the neatest and most original of all. These five will win the national grand prizes.

Names of the winners will be published here. Their prizes will be sent to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Tomorrow: Directions for making a rockhound name plate!

Lew Gets 29 Points and 25 Rebounds

By MIKE RECHT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks had the misfortune Tuesday night of entering Madison Square Garden when New York fans were asking "will the real New York Knicks stand up, please."

The real Knicks responded by not only standing, but also by running, shooting and rebounding, and retained their superiority over the Bucks with a 107-98 victory in a game matching the National Basketball Association's two powerhouses.

"It's a premature thing that these two teams will meet in the playoff final," corrected the Knicks' Dave DeBusschere. "The crowd feels it more than we do. This is still a regular season game.

"But we were pushing a little extra. They caught us at a time when we were struggling to come back from a bad streak."

"Everyone was beginning to say, 'maybe the Knicks aren't as good as they were. Maybe they've lost something,'" added Willis Reed, referring to a recent streak of four straight losses.

In other games, the Baltimore Bullets edged past the San Francisco Warriors 103-98, Philadelphia beat the Atlanta Hawks 129-122. Phoenix clobbered Buffalo 114-82 and Los Angeles whipped Chicago 136-111.

'Our Game'

"We know we can beat Milwaukee if we play our game," said Walt Frazier, recalling how the Bucks had defeated the Knicks recently in Milwaukee when Willis Reed still was not up to par after a bout with the flu.

"The fans are the ones who

Al Embarrassed by Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette Coach Al McGuire was embarrassed Tuesday night following his top-ranked Warriors' shellacking of outmanned Northern Mich 106-57.

"It was a laugher, a mismatch," McGuire said. "What more can you say?"

McGuire then tried to apologize for the size of the score. 'Look, Glenn Brown (Northern Michigan coach) and I are both brick-layers," McGuire said. "I don't want to run up the score on him."

The game, for all practical purposes, was over by halftime. And that caused McGuire a little uneasiness.

"Did you notice the lights flicker at the start of the second half?" McGuire asked. "I thought for a moment: 'Here we are with a 32-point lead and we have to forfeit the game.' Look, if we have to forfeit, why one where you have the game in the bag?"

The Warrior coach then wondered out loud, not directing the question to anyone in particular.

"Do I seem as if I'm not laughing as much this year? Why?"

McGuire might have seemed a little afraid to laugh, but the crowd of 10,472 that saw the game was delighted.

After Northern Michigan jumped off to a 3-0 lead, Marquette stormed back with blistering outside shooting to take a 17-6 advantage.

The lead was built rapidly as Dean Meminger, who led the Warriors with 20 points, Allie McGuire, Gary Brell and Bob Lackey all found the range from 25 to 30 feet out.

Lead 60-27

At the half, Marquette led 60-27.

Northern's Mike Duehning, a 6-foot-6 junior from Slinger, Wis., who started the game sitting on the bench, put on a one-man show at the start of the second half. Although the Wildcats never drew any closer than 25 points at 66-41, Duehning brought the crowd alive again by tallying 16 of 21 points after intermission.

Later, the fans started cheering for Marquette to top the 100-point mark, a goal the Warriors reached with 1:07 remaining in the game.

"We used the game as a workout," McGuire said. "That's why I kept my starters in for so long and why we stayed in the full court man-to-man press. They needed the workout."

It was Marquette's 27th consecutive victory, the longest winning streak in the nation, and brought the Warriors' 1970-71 record to 15-0.

Bays Will Go for Best Athlete on 1st Pick, Says Dan

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The abrupt transition from wooing high school football stars for the University of Missouri to appraising the college crop for the National Football League draft is no small adjustment.

But whimsical Dan Devine, who Thursday will supervise his first draft in his new role as the Packers' head coach and general manager, finds himself adapting with encouraging facility.

"I feel I'm making it better than I thought I would," he confided in his Lombardi Avenue office late Tuesday at the close of a hectic day, filled with conferences, telephone calls and interviews.

This he in large part credited to his aides, reporting, 'Our people have done a great job of getting things together. Pat Peppler, our personnel director, and Wayne Robinson, who has come in to assist him, have done a great deal of the work. And Dave Hanner and Bob Schnelker have been going hard at it, too ... I think they've done an excellent job."

'Better Than I Thought'

Devine flashed a smile and added, "I'm staying out of it ... but I know what's going on better than I thought. I've eaten dinner with Pat and Wayne five or six times since I've been here and you can pick up a lot of things during a 3-hour supper.

What, he was asked, will be his primary objective in Thursday's flesh market?

"My guess would be that the first three picks will be quarterbacks probably Stanford's Jim Plunkett, Archie Manning of Mississippi and Santa Clara's Dan Passtorini," Devine said. "So, being 12th, I think we'd better go for the best athlete. That philosophy is similar to what you do in college — go after the best athlete.

"I don't think," the Packers' new leader noted in this connection, "that we can help the quarterback situation in the draft."

Prime Needs

Asked what he considers the Pack's prime need to be, Devine replied, "Speed at wide receiver; a good strong, fast and durable running back and a defensive lineman who could play either end or tackle."

He appended, however, "I'm not familiar enough with our team at this point to say with any degree of authority just what our needs are. It is my opinion now, but it could change after looking at more film, the injury report and after more discussion with the coaches and with the players.

"I'll know a great deal more by a month from now," he said with quiet conviction. "When they come here in July, I'll know them."

On the subject of the kicking game, improved last season by the acquisition of Dale Livingston after two years of trauma, Devine said, "We're interested in improving every facet of the game and certainly are not going to discount the fact that Livingston is experienced, but a good challenge for the kicking job would do everybody good.

"My guess would be that it would be difficult to improve the kicking game from the draft."

Possibility of Trade

Devine said there is "a possibility of a trade" to improve the Packers' position in the draft, but did not elaborate. As things now stand, they will have no second-round choice. It was dealt to the 49ers last September for defensive tackle Kevin Hardy.

The Pack will select 11th in the third round and rotate with the Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears, who also finished the 1970 season with a 6-8 record, in the 14 rounds to follow.

Seeks Deal With Vikings

Devine Likes Zeke as Player

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The Packers are attempting to reacquire the services of Ass't. Coach Zeke Bratkowski as a player, GM-Coach Dan Devine reported Tuesday.

"We are talking to the Minnesota Vikings daily. "Devine said, adding with a quick and meaningful smile. "sometimes more than daily."

Bratkowski, a Packer quarterback for 5½ seasons following his acquisition from the Los Angeles Rams, has been the property of the Vikings since being claimed on waives by General Manager Jim Finks just prior to the 1969 season.

"I had a long talk with Zeke about the situation this morning," Devine said. "We would like to have him as a player, and I think he would like that."

Unfortunately for the Packers and Devine, the Vikings' price is likely to be high. Not only do they realize the strength of their position but also are not overly interested in helping a Central Division rival. Further, they are interested in Bratkowski's playing services because they have only the largely inexperienced Bob Lee behind Gary Cuozzo

Bratkowski, a vigorous 39, would assure the Packers of a solid and established backup man for Bart Starr, who was plagued with arm problems in 1970

McLain Signs '71 Contract With Nats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversial pitcher Denny McLain has signed his contract with the Washington Senators for the 1971 season, the club announced Tuesday.

Terms were not disclosed but it is understood that McLain, acquired by the Senators in a trade with Detroit involving eight players last fall, will earn approximately $100,000

McLain won 31 games in 1968 and 24 in 1969 but got into only eight games last year as a result of suspensions meted out by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

$17 Million Arena OKd In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta-Fulton County Recreation Authority gave final approval Tuesday to construction of a $17 million all-purpose arena in downtown Atlant Builders said construction may begin within two weeks.

The arena is expected to provide seating of 12,000 for ice shows, 15,000 for ice hockey, tennis, track and circus shows, 16,000 for meetings, 16,500 for basketball and musical events and 17,000 for boxing.

Its height will be equivalent to a 12-story building and it will contain 337,000 square feet. Included in the concession facilities will be restaurants, bars and lounges.

The arena will be built over the Techwood viaduct near Atlanta's main financial district, Five Points.

One of its major tenants of the arena will be the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

Well-Traveled Tommy Davis Signed by A's

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Athletics announced the signing Tuesday of veteran outfielder Tommy Davis.

Davis, 31, batted .290 in 66 games with the A's in 1970. He started the season with Houston and ended it with Chicago, and had a .278 average in 68 games with the two National League clubs

The Cubs recently released Davis, who won National League batting titles in 1962 and 1963 with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Hull Caps Power Play

Hawks Tie Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Bobby Hull capped a third-period power play with a 60-foot shot Tuesday night to pull the Chicago Black Hawks into a 3-3 tie with Vancouver's Canucks.

A sellout crowd of 15,569 National Hockey League fans was on hand to see Hull score his 29th goal of the season and give the Western Division leaders a 14-point lead over the idle St. Louis Blues.

Jim Pappin put Chicago in front midway through the first period, but Ray Cullen tied the score with the Hawks shorthanded and 2½ minutes left in the stanza.

The Canucks took over the lead in the second period when Mike Corrigan wrapped his 10th and 11th goals of the season around a marker by Chicago's Pat Stapleton.

Vancouver's Gary Doak went to the penalty box on an interference call with 7:05 gone in the final period and the Hawks began to apply the pressure. It paid off at the 8:42 mark when Hull beat Canuck goalie Charlie Hodge, who was screened on the play.

Vancouver had three good chances to win late in the game but Chicago netminder Gerry Desjardins saved the day each time.

The game was the only one on the NHL schedule Tuesday.

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It's not often that a basement team is able to rise up and spill the league leaders, particularly when the pace-setters are performing on their home floor and in search of a championship.

And unless the upset of the Central Wisconsin Conference season is brewing, cellar-dwelling Wautoma (1-6) isn't likely to prevent Bonduel (8-0) from moving a step closer to the loop title Friday night when the Hornets and Bears tangle at Bonduel.

In other action on a "double round" weekend in the CWC, runnerup Little Chute (5-2) entertains fourth-place Marion (4-4) Friday, then travels to Shiocton (2-6) Saturday, while third-place Wittenberg-Birnamwood (5-3) plays host to Shiocton Friday, then visits Wautoma Saturday.

Won Comfortably

Manawa has a non-conference engagement at home with Amherst Friday, then the Wolves (2-6) journey to Marion Saturday.

Bonduel, which received a scare from Marion two weeks ago before winning, 59-56, got back to the habit of winning more comfortably last week in an 86-52 romp over Shiocton as Mike Eisch drilled 25 points.

The Bears, averaging 75 points per game in league play and allowing just 50.7, will be heavy favorites over the Hornets, who put up little resistance in a 90-50 loss to Bonduel earlier in the campaign.

With recent wins over Wittenberg and Manawa under their belts, Little Chute will try to keep its hopes for the CWC crown alive. A Little Chute victory over Marion would avenge an earlier 63-62 setback. Coach Al Schmidt's Mustangs already own a 92-59 conquest of Shiocton.

Little Chute encountered few difficulties whipping Manawa last week, 65-45, as the Mustangs grabbed a 34-15 halftime lead. Steve Mollen's 21 points led the way for LC, while Jim Mundt hit 13 for the losers.

Look For Revenge

Wittenberg, still harboring faint title chances, goes against Shiocton looking to atone for a 48-46 defeat to the Chiefs the third game of the league season. Big Harold Mavis, who hit 30 points last week in a 63-57 triumph over Marion, was held to a 6-point effort in the first meeting of the Chargers and Chiefs.

Mavis should be happy to meet Wautoma again. Against the Hornets the first time around, he fired in 32 points as the Chargers came away with a 77-72 win.

Manawa will be hoping to halt a 3-game conference losing skein when it meets Marion Saturday night. The Wolves beat the Mustangs, 66-58, in their first battle.

Manawa must attempt to hold down the scoring of Marion's Goodwin Peterson and Mike Daley, who tallied 24 and 20 points, respectively, in the loss to Wittenberg last Friday. Peterson's 22.1 average is still best in the CWC.

Manawa's efforts will be hampered since two players, Jim Haas and Jim Sexton, will be sitting out until next week for disciplinary reasons and Kent Gehrke is nursing a sprained ankle.

All three sat out in last week's loss. Gehrke is the Wolves' leading scorer through seven games with a 14.7 average.

Gets 'Sport' Award

Howley Keeps Respect For Morton's Ability

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Howley thinks Craig Morton has the tools to lead a Dallas stampede back to the Super Bowl—if the struggling quarterback puts his mind to it.

Morton's erratic performances, up to and including the Cowboys' 16-13 loss to the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl V, came up for discussion Tuesday after Howley was honored by Sport Magazine as the Most Valuable Player in pro football's world championship game.

Howley, an All-Pro linebacker who has seen Morton perform at his best and worst for six NFL seasons, refused to rap the quarterback, as teammate Lee Roy Jordan did recently at an awards dinner in Alabama. But he conceded that the strong-armed Californian wasn't the quarterback he should be in 1970.

"I feel that the level at which Craig has been playing is not the level he's capable of," said Howley, first player on a losing team to win MVP honors in the title game.

"What his problems are, I don't know. He's had a lot of injuries, but it's more than that . . . something within himself. Possibly, its a mental picture. Something is handicapping him from being the great quarterback he could be."

Stout State polished up one of the better season records among Wisconsin college basketball squads Tuesday night with a 101-74 victory over Luther of Iowa.

Ranger-Penguin Deal Involves Three Players

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins have traded veteran left-winger Glen Sather to the New York Rangers for rookie center Syl Apps Jr. and the rights to another player later

Sather, 27, was mostly a penalty killer for the Penguins. In 46 games this season he has scored eight goals and added three assists. Three of his goals came in a game against Detroit

Apps, 23, son of National Hockey League Hall of Famer Syl Apps, played in 31 games with the Rangers this season, scoring three goals. He has spent the last three weeks with the Rangers' Omaha farm club

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League have acquired veteran center Ralph Backstrom from the Montreal Canadiens.

In exchange, the Kings gave up Gordon Labossiere and minor league defenseman Ray Fortin of Springfield of the American League.

The Canadiens then swapped Labossiere to the Minnesota North Stars for center Ray Comeau and an undisclosed amount of cash

Cipriani, West Set Patriot Swim Records

John Cipriani and Greg West combined for three new school and pool records as Appleton East's swimming team trounced Sheboygan South, 71-24.

It was the seventh win in eight meets for coach John Biolo's tankers, who play host to Menasha Thursday, Feb. 4.

Cipriani set two of the new standards, winning the 200-yard freestyle in 2:02.9 and the 400-yard freestyle in 4:27.8. The former "200" marks were 2:07.8 and 2:04.3, while the "400" records were 4:37.5 and 4:35.9.

West won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:03.9, eclipsing the former school mark of 1:04.3 and the pool record of 4:35.9.

Eric Rogers in the 200-yard medley (2:30.8), Dave Sprissler in diving (152.95 points) and Dave Henning in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:53.6) were the other East individual winners.

Wisconsin Soccer Circuit Expands to Four Divisions

The Wisconsin Soccer Association has expanded to four divisions from the original two for the 1971 season, according to Peter Murphy, chairman of the league alignment committee

The Major League will consist of Racine and Schlitz, Millers, Triangles, Blue Ribbons, Kickers Eagles, Serbs, United Serbs and Brewers, all of Milwaukee

The Fox Valley Bombers will compete in the Metropolitan Division, along with Sheboygan Sports, Waukesha Continentals and the Milwaukee Victoria, Nomads, Tigers, Grenadiers and Albanians teams.

Making up the Fox Valley Division will be the Menasha Cyclones, Oshkosh Chiefs, Green Bay Phoenix, Manitowoc Bluedevils, Marinette Buccaneers and Sheboygan Centers.

The Capitol Division will include the Madison 565, Monona Internationals, Blue Dynamos, White Dynamos and 46s B

The champions of the Metropolitan, Fox Valley and Capital Division will enter playoffs for the right to move up to the Major Division, with the cellar team in the latter league dropping down.

League play will start in mid-April with each team playing two rounds.

Negotiations are pending with an Eau Claire team which would be entered in the Capitol Division.

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A packed house is anticipated in New London Friday night as the Bulldogs play host to Hortonville, which has rapidly developed as their archrival.

The Polar Bears, sporting an 8-1 record and a share of the East Central Conference basketball lead, invade the Bulldogs' lair in the feature game of the night. New London is 7-2 and holds hopes of atoning for an earlier defeat at Hortonville's hands.

Other Friday games will have Waupaca at Winneconne, co-leading Ripon at Weyauwega and Berlin at Omro. Saturday, Winneconne is at New London, Weyauwega at Omro, Waupaca at Hortonville and Ripon at Berlin.

Takes 60-58 Loss

Hortonville dealt New London a 60-58 defeat in the first encounter on its floor. The Polar Bears have been beaten only twice all season, while New London has a 9-4 overall slate.

The Bulldogs will have a height advantage and may be just as quick in the backcourt. However, the teams play a different style offensively.

Hortonville likes to drive in for a shot and isn't averse to shooting from outside. New London likes the pattern — preferring the pass over the dribble — and also won't pass up an open shot from the fringe

New London has the best defense in the league, limiting the opponent to 55.9 a game. Hortonville ranks fourth, with a 63.1 yield.

Offensively, there is little to choose between the teams. Hortonville is averaging 68.3. New London 66.2. The Polar Bears have scored 615 points. New London 614.

Double Digits

Hortonville's starting unit is all in double digits, paced by Tom Dorn with a 15.6 average. John Kruel, at 13.5, is next. Roger Warning (12.1), Robing Pankow (11.5) and Mark Everts (11.2) complete the unit.

New London counters with Cal Handschke (13.4) and Gary Werdt (12.3), both 6-3, and Dave Teschke (13.0), a 6-2 cornerman, in the front. Roger Steingraber (11.6) has taken over command of the team from his guard position. Bill Stern, the other starter, is just under 10 a game.

Key Game

The other key game shaping up this week is the Saturday meeting of Ripon, co-leader with Hortonville, and fourth-place Berlin. Berlin will be out to prove that a 90-67 loss to the Tigers in their first meeting this season was a mistake. But Ripon has had little trouble with opponents other than Hortonville and New London.

Ripon has a whopping 75.1 offensive average, while limiting opponents to 60.6. Berlin rides 10 points back in offense, while allowing 63 a game.

Two tough forwards lead the teams. Kyle Wiggs, sporting a 17.5 average, is the key to the Ripon attack, while Doug Parsons averaging 16 a game leads Berlin.

Steve Stellmacher 14.7, Henry Hilscher 14.1, and John Radke 13.7 are also in double brackets for Ripon.

Scoring Leader

Weyauwega's Randy Faulks continues as the scoring leader, with a 17.8 production. The Indians have also been getting good scoring from Jeff Gast (13.6) and Ron Kriese (11.8).

The Indians are clicking for 58.6 points a game, but the defense is allowing 69.6.

Omro is operating under similar circumstance as Ken Tritt (16) and Larry Dobberstein (14.1) are relied on for the bulk of the Foxes punch. Omro is scoring 63.3 a game, fifth best in the league, but the defense has allowed 73.1 — the reason the team is only 1-8.

Show Improvement

Waupaca, a young team, has shown improvement despite losing four of five games The Comets played tough against Berlin, New London and Ripon before succumbing late in the game.

The Comets' Tim Lewis, with a 14.5 average, still is in the scoring race, while Jim Jensen 12.1 and Lee Solberg 10.7 are steady performers.

Randy Kasuboski averaging 14.5 is the only Winneconne player among the scoring leaders. The Wolves, (2-7), put it together last week against Weyauwega and romped 67-38.

High-scoring Freedom carries a 7-2 record into Brillion (4-5) against the Stubborn Lions The Irish lost two of their first three conference outings, but haven't been beaten since — winning six straight

Offense has been the key to the Irish rise — reaching an apex last week when Freedom buried Denmark, 105-74 In their first meeting, Freedom squeaked by with an 81-77 win

Brillion (4-5) is scoring at a 64.3 rate, while yielding 61.8 The Irish are tossing points through at a 75 per game average, while their opponents are managing 60.9

Joe Vandenberg, 6-2 is leading the league in scoring with a 21.8 average Last week Vandenberg hit a season high 38 Earlier he had games of 28 and 30 points Tony Brockman also 6-2 is averaging 16.9 Bob Garvey, a backcourtman 14.2 and Gary Hooyman, a 6-2 cornerman, 10.2

Herve Smith and Jeff Brandes pace the Lions scoring with 11.2 and 14.0 per game respectively Tom Schwahn is hitting at a 10.6 average

Freedom shot Mishicot's tough defense full of holes in an 83-65 showdown last week to atone for a 53-45 loss to the Indians to open the season and Reedsville followed up Friday with a 76-59 scalping.

Mishicot still has a 57-point defensive average to rank second behind Valders, which has yielded only 48.2 per game. Valders is scoring 62.9 to the Indians' 59.9.

Ray Berres, 6-5 pivot, is the top scorer for Mishicot with a 15.6 average The remaining starting contingent is knotted with averages just under 10. Lou Rusch, 6-3, and Ken Larson pace the leaders with 13.7 and 17.0 averages, respectively

Hilbert (3-6) has a good chance to improve its record against Wrightstown (0-9). The Tigers are allowing nearly 26 points a game more than they are scoring. Hilbert is led by 6-5 sophomore Mike Novak with an 11.7 average and John Schneider with 10.8

Reedsville (6-3) seeks its second win of the season against Denmark (3-6). The Panthers posted a 70-62 victory in the first meeting Scott Schultz sporting a 20.4 average, and Elmer Dvorachek, 11.7, pace Reedsville a team scoring 70.2 a game. Jim Leiterman and Dan Karbon pace Denmark, with 13.1 and 12.0 averages

Austin Carr Tallies 36

Irish Whip Michigan State

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Take Johnny Dee's word for it. Rudy Benjamin of Michigan State could be a super player in pro basketball.

Dee, college basketball coach at Notre Dame, made that comment after the fighting Irish whipped the Spartans 104-80 Tuesday night in their first start since upsetting UCLA last Saturday.

Marquette, which took over the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press rankings after UCLA's fall, made it 27 in a row, including 15-0 this season, with a 106-57 romp over Northern Michigan.

Benjamin, a 6-foot-2 senior from Dayton, Ohio, scored 31 points against seventh-ranked Notre Dame. Dee said "I'll recommend Benjamin for the pros. He could be a super player."

Carr Superb

Dee might have said the same thing about his 6-3 senior, Austin Carr, who threw in 36 points against the Spartans. He left that for Gus Ganakas, Michigan State mentor.

"Carr is just superb," said Ganakas. "You just can't keep the ball away from him."

As for Marquette's romp against Northern Michigan, coach Al McGuire said "it was a laugher, a mismatch."

"I didn't want to run up the score, but at the same time I wanted to give my starters a workout."

Dean Meminger led Marquette with 20 points as the Warriors won their 53rd straight at home.

Howard Porter scored 17 points and grabbed 20 rebounds to help 16th-ranked Villanova down Seton Hall. None of the other teams in the AP Top Twenty played.

Joe Sutter's basket in the last two seconds gave Davidson a 56-54 victory over St. John's of New York and Gary Ladd's two free throws on a one-and-one situation in the closing seconds gave Seattle a 97-96 overtime triumph over Creighton.

Ohio U. beat Cincinnati 92-82 to give Jim Snyder, coach of the Bobcats, his 300th career victory. Texas A&M shaded Rice 74-73, knocking the Owls out of the Southwest Conference lead.

Swede Tops Field In Ice Decimated Monte Carlo Rally

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Sweden's Ove Andersson, 32, in a French Alpine Renault, today led the Monte Carlo Rally after a second stage in which ice and blinding snowstorms decimated the field.

Only 45 of the 174 cars which left here Tuesday to race through the mountains of Southern France survived what drivers described as "apalling weather."

Three of the low, blue Alpines led the provisional standings this morning and the firm had five cars in the top 10. Behind Andersson came French drivers Jean-Claude Andruet and Jean-Luc Therier, also in Alpines.

Appeals Court Won't Overturn Haywood Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has dealt the National Basketball Association another setback in its attempt to stop Spencer Haywood from playing with the NBA Seattle Super Sonics.

The NBA wanted a stay of a lower court's injunction allowing Haywood, 21, to play with Seattle. The appeals court refused Tuesday.

Detroit's Harding Taken to Hospital

DETROIT (AP) — University of Detroit basketball coach Jim Harding was taken to a Detroit hospital Tuesday suffering from chest pains.

The cause of the pains was not immediately known, but a spokesman for Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital said Harding, 42, walked into the hospital and his condition was good.

Intense Pressure Bothering Haywood

SEATTLE (AP) — Spencer Haywood says his controversial move from the Denver Rockets to the Seattle SuperSonics has put him under intense pressure.

"I haven't adjusted to the pressure yet," the 6-foot-9 maverick said Monday. "I have this feeling that somebody might come up to me and say 'Thats it—that's the end of the game'."

Haywood said the impending federal court decision on his future with the National Basketball Association looms over him.

"Also, I had to get back into shape quickly," the former American Basketball Association star said. "People were waiting to see me do bad, so I had to push myself no matter how bad I felt."

Haywood said he wants to find his niche on the Seattle team and settle into it. He said he wants to fit into the offense rather than take it over.

Haywood said he believes he disrupted the team unity — "being together," he calls it — when he signed the highly disputed contract with the Sonics.

"I think in another week or so we'll have things really together," he said. "We're practicing more because of my situation."

Haywood said he thinks his performance as a Sonic has been "lousy." He has scored 30 points in each of the last two Sonics games, but that doesn't satisfy him.

"I didn't play winning basketball," he said Monday after the Philadelphia 76ers had swamped Seattle 145-119. "I didn't do the things that help my team."

That game, like all the others since his acquisition, was protested, but Haywood said he sees the challenges as legalities and not as expressions of the opposing players.

Stevens Point Prep Wins Award; Freedom Star Cited

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Mr. Clutch" is what they call him at Stevens Point High School, and Shawano's basketball team will readily agree.

Dan Krueger, a 6-foot junior guard scored his team's last six points in regulation play, then popped in Stevens Point's entire six points in overtime as the Panthers edged Shawano 58-56.

For his performance, Krueger has been named Associated Press Wisconsin high school player of the week by the state's sportswriters and broadcasters.

"I guess I've used all the adjectives, but he's certainly our 'Mr. Clutch.'" said Stevens Point Coach Jim Lind. "He has extreme confidence in his ability at all times, and is the finest all-around basketball player I've ever coached."

Gained Honors

Krueger is the son of Bob Krueger, athletic director and head basketball coach at Stevens Point State University.

He was a unanimous all-Wisconsin Valley Conference selection last year, becoming the first sophomore to be named to the all-league squad since Johnny Kotz, who went on to fame at the University of Wisconsin, did it for Rhinelander in 1937.

The Stevens Point star is averaging 20.5 points per game this season and finished with 32 points against Shawano. His last bucket, a jumper from the corner, came with just two seconds remaining in overtime and broke a 56-56 deadlock.

Bob Falk of Madison West duplicated Krueger's scoring feat as he connected from the corner, also with two seconds left in overtime, to give the Regents a 62-60 victory over 10th ranked Beloit. Falk led all scorers with 23 points, slightly before his 26.9 average for the season.

Freedom's Joe Vandenberg tallied 38 points on 18 field goals and two free throws as his team crushed Denmark, 105-74.

State Schools Are Weak in Conservation

Survey Indicates High School Classes Need Improving

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Conservation education in Wisconsin's public schools is weak, according to the results of a national survey, despite laws dating back to the 1930's designed to require the preparation of teachers to teach the subject and help schools to establish programs in it.

The survey, conducted by the National Science Teachers Association and reported in a recent issue of the State Department of Public Instruction's monthly newsletter, demonstrates that the laws are not serving their purpose and there is need for improvement and expansion in conservation education.

The results of the survey that included 52 conservation teachers in the state at 46 schools raise some questions about the effectiveness of high school conservation courses, according to David Engleson, specialist at DPI in science and environmental education.

Not Major Field

Of the teachers polled, only two had majored in conservation education, despite the fact that Stevens Point State University has a major in that area designed in the late 1940's to fill the need. Six of the respondents had biology-conservation education double majors. The remaining teachers had majors in agriculture education or biology.

The conservation courses at the secondary level reach only about one per cent of the state's high school students, according to the survey, and those students are primarily below average in academic ability.

Field experiences considered a logical part of a conservation program were excluded from many of the courses because of transportation and class conflict problems, it was reported. Most of the field experiences offered were in forestry.

Most of the conservation courses included instruction in plant, soil, water, wildlife and recreational resources, it was reported. But, few considered the political, regional planning or urban conservation aspects of conservation as proper subjects for instruction.

Points Out Questions

Responding to the results of the poll, Engleson asks:

"Are the best prepared teachers teaching them? Do they serve the right school population? Don't all persons need the experiences such a course might offer? Why can't meaningful field experience be offered in these courses? Shouldn't they be field oriented? Why do they largely ignore the study of urban and regional problems when we know that the vast majority of today's high school students will live in an urban area?"

In contrast to the evidence about existing conservation education programs, Engleson reported that school administrators attending a governor's conference on environmental education felt such courses should be available and recommended that the DPI and the state universities develop guidelines for such programs.

Drug Case Will Continue Friday

The case of a 20-year-old rural New London youth, charged with possession of a dangerous drug, was continued until Friday so he could retain an attorney.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer set bond Tuesday for Timothy Schubert, route 2, at $200. New London police brought the count Jan. 1, for possessing marijuana.

According to police, a patrolman signaled Schubert to the side of a city street after noticing he was driving recklessly. Schubert stopped, but then bolted from his auto and ran back to the waiting squa car. He reportedly said he had taken a drug and was afraid "I might die."

While disrobing for observation at Community Hospital, where the patrolman took him, police said, a bag of leafy material fell from a trousers pocket. Tests of the substance inside the bag at the State Crime Laboratory later indicated the material was marijuana, according to police.

Appleton Man Given 2-Year Prison Term

A maximum sentence of two years in the State Prison at Waupun was imposed Tuesday on a 42-year-old Appleton man who kicked and disabled a police officer in November.

William Elliott, 1501 N. Hall Ave., previously pleaded no contest to a court of battery to a police officer. The charge is a felony, and carries the maximum sentence levied Tuesday.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, who passed the sentence, noted from a presentence report that Elliott had a prior criminal record. Elliott had been held in the county jail without bond since last Wednesday pending his sentencing.

Elliott kicked Patrolman Daniel Wouters, 31, in the groin Nov. 15 while being led to a cell in the county jail. The blow disabled Wouters, who spent 13 days in the hospital and required surgery.

Police first went to a north side home earlier that same day, on a report that Elliott was causing a disturbance there. An original count of disorderly conduct was dropped last Wednesday on a motion from the district attorney's office. City authorities had brought that charge after supposedly being met with repeated abuse from Elliott.

Heart Fund Picks Chairman for Business Division

Appointment of Thomas Zuleger of the Northern State Bank as chairman of "Heart-Days - for - Business" in Appleton was announced today by Richard Dratz, 1971 Heart Fund campaign chairman.

The businessmen's solicitation will cover stores, service stations, garages, professional offices, theaters, hotels, city offices and all other nonresidential places in the community.

Zuleger said the business canvass will start Monday and continue through Feb. 15, when visits are to be completed and kits turned in to appropriate campaign directors.

"In the pre-retirement years before 65, diseases of the heart and blood vessels take more lives than the next five leading causes of death combined," Zuleger said, on accepting the appointment. "They pose a constant threat to business and industry, afflicting skilled workers and executives in their most productive years."

Parents Schedule Drug Discussion

An informal discussion of the problem of drug abuse is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at Foster Elementary School, sponsored by the Foster School PTA.

Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James Long and Peter Bishop, of the Appleton Youth Drop-In Center, Inc., will talk with parents and arrangements are being made for two young people who have used drugs to be included in the discussion.

Due to the nature of the discussion, adults only will be admitted, PTA officers announced.

The program is planned as a followup to a presentation held at the school a year ago.

Patients to Pay Slightly More for Medicare Benefits

If you are a Medicare patient hospitalized in January 1971 or after, you will pay a slightly higher portion of your total hospital or skilled nursing home bill. In a typical hospital bill of $1200 you will pay the first $60, and Medicare will pay $1140.

A basic principle of the Medicare program is that the patient must pay a part of his hospital or nursing home bill. The part of the total bill which the patient pays is referred to as a "deductible."

At the inception of Medicare in 1966, Congress provided for an annual evaluation of hospital and nursing home costs with a possible relative change in the "deductible" the patient must pay. These changes in the deductibles are determined by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The changes are these:

— In the first 60 days of hospitalization the patient will have to pay the first $60.00, up from $52 in 1970. Medicare pays all other charges.

— From the 61st day through the 90th day in the hospital the patient pays $15 per day, up from $13 daily, and Medicare pays the rest.

— The person who needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same period has an additional 60 hospital days which he can use as a "lifetime reserve." For lifetime reserve days, the patient pays $30 per day, up from $26 per day. Medicare pays all other covered charges.

— Medicare's hospital insurance can pay for services in an extended-care facility or skilled nursing home if requirements are met. Medicare pays for all services in first 20 day stay. From the 21st to the 100th day, the patient will pay $7.50 per day, up from $6.50.

VOCATIONAL, TECHNICAL, AND ADULT EDUCATION DISTRICT 12 MINUTES OF MEETING — December 14, 1970

The regular meeting of the Board of Vocational, Technical, and Adult Education District 12 was held at the district office, 1919 North Lake Street, Neenah, on Monday, December 14, 1970. The Chairman called the meeting to order at 7:35 p.m.

Present: Messrs. Kirchner, Steinfort, Schneider, Sprister, Berton, and Sirek, District Director.

Absent: Messrs. Smith and Unbehaun.

Others present: Assistant Directors, Bordini, Spanbauer, Gehling, Stevens, and Beno; staff members, Messrs. Singstock, Nagy, Gilchrist, and Mrs. Loberg; legal counsel, Russell Williams; Jane Maosen, Daily Northwestern.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the Board approved the minutes of the November 16, 1970 board meeting.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, vouchers numbered 45002 to 45555, in the amount of $392,044, as filed in the Director's office, were approved and ordered paid.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, the Board accepted the Financial Report dated December 1, 1970, and ordered it to be placed on file.

A letter was read inviting board members to a meeting at Madison on December 17 for the purpose of trying to create an association of Wisconsin Boards of Vocational, Technical, and Adult Education.

Mr. Steinfort read a letter from the Welfare Committee of the Faculty Association requesting a meeting on January 7 or 12. The Board Salary Committee will answer the letter.

Mr. Sirek gave a brief report on the American Vocational Association Convention held in New Orleans.

Considerable discussion was held regarding the islands in the parking lots at the new facility. Since a motion was passed at the September 21 meeting to eliminate the islands in the parking lots, Mr. Berton questioned who authorized the architect to draw new plans with the islands in the parking lots. Mr. Steinfort commented that he also had several questions for the architect.

It was moved by Mr. Sprister that we stay with the original motion of September 21, 1970, and approve the change order to eliminate the islands in the parking lots at a cost of $2,093. The motion was lost for want of a second.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the decision on the islands in the parking lots was tabled until the Building Committee meeting, December 21, and the committee can poll the other board members if necessary.

Upon presenting the bids for a motorized coach, the following explanation was given: as a result of the fact that R & R Dodge did not deliver the mobile coach per their bid and contract of June, 1970, administration turned the matter over to the attorney. Since the next lowest bidder could no longer meet the price bid in June, the attorney advised administration to rebid the mobile coach on the same specifications.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the Board accepted the bid of Circle R Lease, Inc., Appleton, for a motorized coach, in the amount of $15,469, stating the reason they did not accept the lowest bid of Baur Truck, Appleton, was due to the safety features in the Circle R coach, such as the different type of steps.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the Board authorized their legal counsel to collect damages that the Board will incur due to the failure of R & R Dodge to carry out their contract.

Discussion was held on the 103 acres of land across from the site of the new central facility.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Sprister, and carried, the Board instructed the Building Committee to discuss the 103 acres with the architect and also recommended that administration prepare some long-range land use plans.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, the Board approved payment of invoices for the construction project, in the amount of $354,285.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Sprister, and carried, the Board authorized the architect to issue a change order to Pieper Electric to provide lighting on the west and south parking lots, including standards and wiring, at a cost of $19,636.

On motion by Mr. Schneider, seconded by Mr. Steinfort, and carried, the Board authorized the architect to issue a change order for the modification of rooms C-214 and C-215 for telephone equipment and also to expand room E-150 for the Johnson Heating Control System, for a total increase of $939.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Steinfort, and carried, the Board approved the change order with Hutter Construction for substitution of breaker run in lieu of lime stabilization, at no change in price.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Sprister, and carried, the Board rescinded the following motion made on November 16, 1970:

"The Board requested a change order authorizing the lighting standards in the west and south parking lots, comparable to the lighting standards in the north parking lot, at a cost of $4,449."

On motion by Mr. Berton, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, the Board accepted the bid of Baur Truck and Equipment, Appleton, for a truck with snow plow, at a cost of $4,149. The motion was carried by a vote of 4 to 1 and Mr. Steinfort asked that it be recorded that the reason he voted against the motion was because of the delivery date of 90 days.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, the Board instructed administration to investigate the possibility of initiating the Social Service Assistant and Production Agriculture programs.

On motion by Mr. Schneider, seconded by Mr. Steinfort, and carried, the Board authorized administration to make application for approval to proceed with the Interior Decoration program.

Mr. Sprister asked that the Board be given a report as to where these programs will be initiated if they are approved by the State Board.

Mr. Steinfort presented the salaries, as recommended by the Salary Committee, for the Assistant Directors Bordini, Spanbauer, Gehling, and Stevens.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Schneider, and carried, the Board accepted the recommendation of the Salary Committee in regard to the salaries for the Assistant Directors Bordini, Spanbauer, Gehling, and Stevens.

On motion by Mr. Sprister, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the board approved attendance by one staff member at the American Personnel and Guidance Association Convention, at Atlantic City in April.

Mr. Bordini reported that the Building Committee would meet on December 21 for the purpose of making final recommendations as far as color is concerned for the new facility.

Mr. Sirek reported that Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission would like to have someone, representing the VTAE District 12 Board and administration, serve in an advisory capacity regarding student housing. They would also like to have two students involved in an advisory capacity. Board members suggested that administration act as resource people only, but not get too involved.

On motion by Mr. Steinfort, seconded by Mr. Berton, and carried, the Board adjourned to an Executive Session on Personnel at 10:25 p.m.

State Property Tax Assessment?

The casual way in which Gov. Lucey in his first major address to the legislature proposed outright junking of the historic system of local government responsibility for local property tax assessments and the transfer of that responsibility entirely to the state Department of Revenue suggests important questions.

The governor remarked that a system of civil service assessors with county-wide jurisdiction, a major reform offered by the Tarr commission for the improvement of local government two years ago, would be only a "second best solution" of the problem of assuring fair and accurate and equal assessment techniques state-wide.

The governor is entitled to his conviction. But the brevity of his statement suggests the possibility that he has not fully considered its implications. As the new leader of the state government is fond of observing, politics is the art of the possible. Is it likely, or even conceivable, that the legislature, which only a year ago dismissed the idea of a professional assessment method under county management, would seriously consider the transfer of the job of valuation of homes, farms, factories, stores, cattle and other personal property to the faceless bureaucracy in distant Madison?

The governor is demonstrably on sound ground when he talks about the need for more reliable assurance of the individual property taxpayer in a period of vaulting tax liability that he is getting an accurate valuation, first, and one that is established on the same rules and principles as applied to others, not only in his own locality, but everywhere in the state.

A qualified county assessment staff, appointed as are other technicians in public service on the competitive merit system rule, would be a reasonable method of attaining that objective. We are confident that as there is a greater public awareness of the need for such assurance of fair play, the legislature will respond.

Assessment of hundreds of thousands of parcels of land, a couple of millions of items of real property and an infinite number and variety of personal property inventories would be a virtually insurmountable task for a state agency. The management of the review and appeal procedure would be frighteningly cumbersome and inefficient. We must wonder whether Mr. Lucey, preoccupied as he is by an already sobering state budget deficit, has considered the immense cost that would be added to his state government operations by such a transfer.

Because he is a realtor in private life, we must assume that the governor knows that the present state assessment service — which he uses as a foundation for his plan — is more nominal than real. It is a sampling device, based on selected property transfer records, which is used as a general guide for the distribution of state aids, state taxes shared, and the distribution of county and other district-wide taxes to constituent local jurisdictions. To establish the machinery for parcel by parcel valuations within the state government structure would require a staff of thousands, uncomfortably far removed from accountability to the taxed. We must learn to crawl before we attempt to walk in tax assessment reform. The county assessment service is a good start, and may be difficult enough to achieve without such distractions as the governor has proposed, albeit with the best of intentions.

Un-American Taxes

At last someone has suggested some sensible legislation.

In Arkansas, Representative Leroy Blankenship introduced legislation to repeal taxes which he called "contrary to the teachings of our forefathers." If Mr. Blankenship's measure goes through, there will no longer be any sales taxes on the American or the Arkansas flag, on aprons worn by mothers and grandmothers or on apple pie, "either whole or in parts."

This opens up a whole Pandora's box (even though she wasn't American). If apple pie is to be excluded, what about cherry pie in Door County and certainly pumpkin pie at Thanksgiving time? What about turkey? What about Oshkosh overalls or the ingredients for corn pudding or cranberry sauce? What about the Pinto Pony, the Alley Cat, the Rainbow Trout? And then there are such things as blue jeans, cowboy boots, fringed leather jackets, western saddles, shrimp for gumbo, lobster for beach parties, bay crabs, and certainly Milwaukee beer.

But what about that apron bit? We suspect all kinds of young brides will be donning them, even though they have been sort of out of fashion for several years. Maybe even a mini skirt variety — as what apron isn't?

Fine Coach — Poor Slogan

A new slogan was in order, and so, understandably, came the temptation — given a name to play with like "Devine" — to choose one which strikes this writer as being about as superficial and out of character as it is obvious.

The previous slogans were at least understandable. "Win with Bengtson," while not exactly imaginative, came from the heart and spoke to the point. "The Pack Will Be Back" had the virtue to rhyme, plus a feel of determination, and an expression of confidence.

But "The Packers are Devine!"? And in a quantity of 50,000 yet! About the best you can say for that phrase is that it may reflect the way a few Packer players felt last season, which helps a little to account for the disappointing 1970 record.

We liked the choice of Dan Devine as the new Packer head man the day it was announced. A native of our state with a truly outstanding record, he has the potential to do the job, we felt.

We like the choice even better, in view of the manner in which Dan Devine has deported himself since. You get the impression that this man is humble, sincere, that he knows what is needed, and that underneath that quiet exterior is a large supply of firmness, grit and determination. He's not going to "mouth off" at inopportune times, but he's going to speak with authority when it is needed. And it is needed, even by professional football players.

So we wish Dan Devine and the Packers well. But "The Packers Are Devine!"???

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Jan. 27. 1871.

Another of those Church "sociables" occurred at the residence of Capt. J. N. Stone, of the Times, on Tuesday evening last. There was a large gathering present and the enjoyment was general by the happy faculty with which the genial host and hostess made the guests welcome.

There also was a similar sociable at the home of G. I. Brewster, under the auspices of the Congregational Society, of which there was a crowd.

Thursday evening of next week, Boynton's Band will have a "calico" sociable at Odd Fellow's Hall. The mere announcement will be sufficient to gather together a happy throng on that occasion to trip the light fantastic and have a good time.

Mr. Roberts, mine host of the National Hotel at Menasha, is to give a grand party at his House on the 22nd of next month, at which time we have no doubt that a number of our citizens will put in an appearance, as they always are treated well by Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, who do know how to keep a hotel.

Students presenting a talk on and demonstration of ballet in Neenah grade schools were Bonnie Engebretson and Jocelyn, members of the Appleton Civic Ballet, who demonstrated the dances; Jacqueline Miller, Kimberly 7th grader, who told the story of the Nutcracker Suite; Gloria Mortensen, Kimberly 8th grader, who discussed the ballet and its work, and Barbara Kuether, Kimberly 7th grader, who talked about different ballet themes.

A Benign Nixon

President Actively Seeking Aid of Progressive Opinion

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — The State of the Union message makes it official. President Nixon really is trying to win the support of progressive opinion in the country.

Kraft

He wants revenue-sharing at a level of spending and in a form attractive to most forward-looking Governors and mayors. His new health program with its emphasis on the delivery of a wide range of services is more comprehensive than the scheme concentrating on insurance which the most prominent Democrats support. His family assistance plan remains probably the best way to move from the chaos of welfare to a guaranteed annual income.

In economic policy, Mr. Nixon is drawing on all the most advanced prescriptions for stimulating "prosperity in peacetime." He is practicing deficit-financing, in the best Keynesian manner. He is nudging the Federal Reserve to put more money into the banking system, after the teachings of the so-called Chicago school. And thanks to the opportunity given him by the steel industry, he is even borrowing the jawboning techniques of the Kennedy and Johnson economists to check inflationary pressures.

Major Structural Changes

On top of all that, Mr. Nixon is recommending sweeping structural changes which would virtually eliminate the Cabinet to bring the shape of Federal government in line with the functions actually performed. He is breaking out new money for city parks and water pollution. And the music of his message should please students and other groups whose enemies Mr. Nixon has, in the past, been wont to court.

In describing the new program, the President's aides have been using the term "revolutionary." At that point a familiar, sinking feeling asserts itself. The Republican good angels now dominant in the Nixon administration are about to be let in on a secret learned by Democratic good angels in past Administrations but never advertised.

It is that the national enthusiasm for righting wrongs is distinctly limited. Good government, these days, is not particularly good politics.

Those of us who are employed, some 94 per cent of all working Americans, don't really care all that much about the less fortunate. An activist economic policy is only what we have expected all along — the least a President can do. For the rest, the reform proposals are technical stuff — examples of what Pat Moynihan used to call "the professionalization of reform."

To most ordinary people, revenue-sharing is a kind of game played to see whether the pea ends up under the Federal, state, or local shell. Health costs are already too complicated for anybody but accountants. Restructuring of agencies is a public administration thing that won't change much anyhow except the prerogatives of the various Congressional committees. And as to welfare, it is nobler in the mind to criticize than to change the system.

The Democrats in the Congress, accordingly, are not going to be under great public pressure to act on the President's program. On the contrary, in the House, the new leadership headed by Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Leader Hale Boggs will be straining to show that it is savvy and tough and very good at serving the Democrats' partisan interest. That means obscuring, delaying, obstructing, and transforming large parts of the President's program.

No Public Pressure

In the Senate, the absence of public pressure to do the President's business will afford maximum scope for the various Democratic Presidential aspirants to show their stuff — the more so since Sen. Edward Kennedy's setback in the race for whip the other day.

That means a heavy emphasis on foreign affairs. For the President can now be made to pay for his Cambodian venture and for his cuteness in using the anti-ballistic missile, or ABM, as a bargaining chip in the arms control talks with the Soviet Union. It is practically certain that the next session in the Senate will see battles over Southeast Asia and the ABM even more bitter than those fought last year.

The true test of the President, in these discouraging circumstances, is not good intentions but staying power. The important thing is whether Mr. Nixon is prepared to play it out with the Congress, higgling and haggling with the Democratic leaders and accepting what he has to in good grace instead of outraged hostility. The question is whether he has truly learned as Henry Kissinger of the White House staff put it in a remarkable toast the other evening, that "compassion is more important than righteousness."

Everybody has to hope so. For whatever the motives that led Mr. Nixon to become so benign, it is a far better thing he does now than the sharp partisanship rooted in willingness to exploit community and national tensions that has characterized his performance in the not-too-distant past.

Lucey Is Preparing To Seek Unification Of Higher Education

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The signs and the hints in official quarters and those closely enough associated with the new state administration to be likely to know have become persuasive.

Wyngaard

The Lucey administration is seriously considering, if it has not yet decided, to achieve what other regimes have attempted but failed to bring off — namely, a unification of the administration and programs of the enormously costly and fragmented state-financed program of education beyond the high school.

Gov. Lucey discussed such possibilities when he campaigned last year. He pointedly remarked at his first formal news conference this month that there is nothing sacred, as he sees it, in the existing arrangements which are historical accidents if considered without regard to institutional prejudices, loyalties, and long habit.

Aides Making Hints

In his first general message to the legislature he made another reference to the probability that he will have organization changes to relate to financial policies when he proposes his budget next month on major state programs including education.

Meanwhile, executive office staffers are evidently making guarded remarks to statehouse reporters intended to develop a climate of opinion that will be somewhat accustomed to the new governor's new ideas on education reorganization — when he feels the time is ripe for unveiling them.

If a political leader could somehow devise a method by which such changes could be considered antiseptically, as simple and plain housekeeping arrangements, as logical administrative machinery, it is doubtful that there would be any serious reservations about the merit of a single responsible management of the whole state higher education complex under the direction of a single board having in mind the welfare of a single body of student constituents and a single body of state taxpayers to which it owes responsibility.

Ideal Climate Impossible

But such an ideal climate will never be attained. If Lucey had been fated to be the first governor and if the current legislature had been the first to be elected, it would require a considerable gift of imagination to visualize a decision to create the series of unrelated uncooperative, sometimes competing and always independent boards that function today.

The separation exists for no more valid reason than that the several elements of the system were created in different periods. First, the University of Wisconsin; a couple of generations later the state universities (which were originally normal schools, then teachers colleges, then state colleges, and finally universities); and even later, the vocational school system which now is blossoming into a formal plan of accredited post-high school training that is as important as either the UW or the state university system were a quarter of a century earlier — at least in numbers of students served.

It is not merit that is involved here. It is institutional power, prestige and advantage, and notably the superior position of the University of Wisconsin. The sister state universities have protested for years the favoritism, as they see it (and as outsiders cannot easily refute), toward the UW. Putting aside the question of graduate and professional school programs, the evidence is persuasive in support of the complaint of unequal treatment.

Has Vast Power

Gov. Lucey will have some support among those who have begun to ask questions about undergraduate teaching at the university in Madison, which must be considered as quite distinct from the graduate programs. But the university's power is vast when it is mobilized, and nobody can doubt on the basis of its previous political wars that it will be mobilized again.

An early judgment must be that if Walter Kohler, with the political backing he held at the crest of his gubernatorial career 15 years ago, could not achieve this prime goal of his administration, Gov. Lucey will be undertaking a hard fight, indeed, if he asks the divided legislature of today to achieve it for him.

Father of Computer Went Broke on Horses

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Children think that some one person "invented" everything, just as Edison is said to have invented the electric light, and Bell the telephone. It is hard to explain to children the "cumulative" and "collective" nature of scientific and technical invention.

My younger son the other day asked me who "invented" the computer. An accurate answer would involve a dozen or more names, all collaborating or building on the efforts of the others. And, of course, the roots of every invention usually go back much farther than we imagine.

The modern computer, in fact, had its origin in the mind of Charles Babbage, an English mathematician who died exactly 100 years ago, and who was born while George Washington was still alive. The son of a banker, who inherited independent means, Babbage was self-taught in mathematics and a classic example of the British upper-class crank or eccentric who pursues his own interests regardless of what people think of him.

He began what we would call today "operations research," and is largely responsible for the modern postage system. Before his research mail was collected and stamped for varying sums, depending on the distance it was to travel. He showed that it would be cheaper to send all ordinary mail for the same flat sum no matter how far it traveled in Britain.

En route to devising the computer idea, Babbage also worked out the first reliable actuarial tables — which the modern insurance company lives by — devised the first speedometer, invented an ophthalmoscope for studying the retina of the eye, and also the locomotive "cow-catcher."

Before he was 30, he began brooding about the possibility of using mechanical means for computation, and succeeded in getting the British government to invest heavily in the project. According to one scientific encyclopedia, "he conceived of a machine that could be directed to work by means of punched cards that could store partial answers in order to save them for additional operations to be performed upon them later, that could print the results."

In short, the encyclopedia goes on, "he thought out all the basic principles that guide modern computers, but he had only mechanical devices with which to put them into action." It was not until a century later, when electronic devices came into use, that his principles were able to be utilized.

Disappointed in this project, Babbage spent the rest of his life working with the Countess of Lovelace (Lord Byron's daughter) on a system for beating the horse-races. The father of the computer died broke.

Drug Use a Symptom, Linkletter Tells Parents

BY WILLIAM KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

An entertainer who for years has pried into the minds of youngsters Tuesday night told 2,700 parents why their children take drugs and what they should and should not do to stop it.

"The drug abuse problem is just part of the bigger problem," cautioned Art Linkletter who concluded a full day of appearances here with a talk to a gymnasium full of people at Appleton High School-East.

He said the problem hides a sickness in society that results from a relentless pursuit of material things, affluence and fun.

"And the more we pursue those things, the farther down the list of priorities go our children," Linkletter said.

Not Deprived

Children today aren't being deprived of anything, he explained. "It's just the opposite. They're getting too much too soon, too early and too fast." What they are not getting, he warned, is love and attention.

"A family today can sit at home seven nights a week—all of the family together in one room—and never say a meaningful word to each other because they are all encased in little invisible tubes of attention riveted on a set and they're not talking but they're living the vicarious life of Bonanza or Lucy or the Interns or The Medics or something else."

Linkletter, who has had popular radio and television shows on all three major networks, informed parents that "... the average kid, by the time he reaches high school, has sat in front of a tube for 15,000 hours. By the time the average kid goes to first grade, he's watched television more than he will go to school in the next five grades."

Easy Answers

He warned that some of the things the youngsters are watching are influencing the drug problem. "They see every kind of an example of this wonderful thing about anxiety and pain and problems and troubles being just a swallow away."

Linkletter drew applause when he remarked, "I don't believe a family should be a democracy, but it should be a loving dictatorship."

There are other things built into our civilization that most people do not think of in terms of contributing to the drug abuse problem, Linkletter said. Things like divorce, working mothers and a mobility that does not allow for the endurance of strong relative and neighbor ties.

All those factors not only are relative to the drug abuse problem, which Linkletter said "you can no longer think of as somebody else's problem," but also have contributed to the increase in the number of runaway youths and a general sexual permissiveness that has resulted in a "venereal disease rise in this country that is without precedent in the history of the world."

Dead Daughter

Truman Has Diverticulitis

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman's physician says a moderate amount of diverticulitis in the intestinal tract is the apparent cause of the former president's abdominal difficulty.

The disorder is one in which material from the intestinal tract collects in sac-like appendages to the large intestine, causing irritation.

Dr. Wallace Graham said Tuesday that Truman also has some hardening of the arteries but in no greater amount than is commonly found in a person Truman's age. Truman will be 87 May 8.

Tuesday night, John Dreves, hospital information director, said Truman continued in good condition and his appetite showed steady improvement.

Graham gave no indication of how long Truman will be hospitalized. He has been in Research Hospital since last Thursday.

Medical Cost Help Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal assistance to Americans faced with spiraling medical costs, particularly for the so-called catastrophic illnesses, is being pushed in Congress with three bills being introduced so far.

The latest move was introduction Tuesday of a bill to provide middle-income Americans financial protection against very expensive illnesses.

Sen. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., one of three Senate sponsors, said the measure provides for creation of "pools" by existing private insurance companies. Their cumulative resources would make them rich enough to offer reasonably priced medical insurance previously too expensive for middle-income families.

"The federal role," Boggs said, "would be limited to re-insuring, where necessary, private insurance companies or insurance pools against loss."

Costly Illnesses

An aide to the chief sponsor of a similar House measure, Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., explained that situation would come about only if there were so many very expensive illnesses among policyholders at one time that the pool could not pay all the bills.

Hogan's office said a family with an annual adjusted income of $10,000 would have to buy its first $8,500 worth of medical insurance a year under existing programs. Only medical costs over $8,500 would be covered by the legislation.

"It's not an all-encompassing health-care proposal," Hogan said. "It's aimed at that middle section in the middle-income level.

Goes Beyond

"Ours certainly goes beyond this," an aide to Kennedy said. "Eighty-five hundred dollars is out of sight. It's not that much less than what most middle-income families are making a year."

He said Kennedy supports the concept of catastrophic insurance, but said any minimum level should be well below $8,500.

President Nixon, in his state of the Union Address Friday, said he too will propose new hospital insurance legislation.

But the President said his program will "ensure that no American family will be prevented from obtaining basic medical care by inability to pay."

In another action Tuesday, Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., proposed the federal government repay the educational debt of doctors and other health professionals who agree to practice for three years in areas short of medical facilities and personnel.

Galifianakis has introduced the same proposal in the past and seen it die.

Crew Tests Procedures for Possible Apollo Emergency

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts climbed into spaceship trainers today for a stern test of how they would react to possible emergencies on the moon journey which starts Sunday.

Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell worked in the lunar module simulator and Stuart A. Roosa in the command ship trainer.

The plan for the lengthy exercise called for Mission Control center in Houston to advise them to run through a certain phase of the flight, such as lunar descent or liftoff. The controllers would then simulate a malfunction of a system aboard either or both craft and evaluate how well the astronauts take corrective action.

Later in the day, the spacemen were to be briefed by engineers on modifications made to the Saturn 5 rocket and the spaceships. Roosa planned to make proficiency flying runs in a jet plane at nearby Patrick Air Force Base.

The controllers probably had trouble fooling Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa with emergency simulations. They have had more training than any previous Apollo crew, especially on trouble procedures.

"We've practiced reaction to real emergency—the oxygen tank explosion that aborted the Apollo 13 mission near the moon last April and forced the three pilots to wage a four-day fight for survival before they returned to earth.

The Apollo 14 liftoff has been delayed nearly four months while design changes were made to prevent a recurrence of many failures that previous crews did not have time for," Shepard said recently.

The astronauts gained the extra training time because of a the tank rupture.

That was the second major setback in the Apollo program. The first occurred four years ago today, Jan. 27, 1967, when the Apollo 1 team—Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee—died in a launch pad fire during a test at Cape Kennedy.

At the launch pad today, the countdown was proceeding on schedule toward liftoff of the Saturn 5 rocket at 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday.

Major procedures today include loading gaseous helium used for pressurization aboard the command ship Kitty Hawk and pressurizing the propellant tanks in the lunar module Antares.

Shepard and Mitchell on Feb. 5 are to ride Antares to a landing in the Fra Mauro highlands to search for pristine lunar soil.

Police and civic officials meanwhile prepared to handle the half a million visitors Brevard County Sheriff Leigh Wilson predicts will converge on the area to watch the launching.

Heavy traffic is expected on all highways, but state, county and local officials are used to it.

"If we handled the Apollo 11 shot with a million people, then we can handle this one," Wilson said.

Ringside Seat

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two families will have ringside seats for the Apollo 14 launching Sunday as a reward for three people who helped rescue astronaut Eugene A. Cernan after he crashed a helicopter in the Indian River south of here last Saturday.

Cernan, backup commander for Apollo 14, was flying alone when the chopper crashed and burned. He was thrown clear and suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

Jerry Blevins was picknicking on a small island with his wife and three children. Blevins jumped in his motor boat and sped to the crash site. He threw Cernan a life preserver and helped him to the side of his boat.

Another boat came alongside, carrying Mrs. Joseph Dickerson and her son Terry, 19, who were crab fishing. They helped Cernan into their craft and took him to a marina.

Snow, Cold Swat Much Of Nation

Fierce winter weather left a trail of damage today from the Midwest to the Atlantic, numbed the Fox River Valley and much of the rest of the nation's midsection with subzero cold and encased Canada's Quebec and Ontario provinces in a blizzard.

The low temperature in Appleton this morning of minus 11 found many residents shivering and cars refusing to start. Subzero temperatures are expected here into the weekend.

Struck Midwest

The storm struck the northwestern Midwest Tuesday and as it moved eastward into New England, it pulled more arctic air into its wake. The thermometer registered 28 below zero this morning at International Falls, Minn.

North Dakota, Minnesota and Wiscosin were solidly subzero territory. The National Weather Service said the Northeast was in line for similar cold tonight.

Adding to the discomfort were blustering winds that called forth gale warnings on all the Great Lakes and along the Atlantic Seaboard from Maine to Georgia.

The National Weather Service calculated the wind chill factor—the combination of temperature and wind velocity—at -40 degrees in Chicago this morning. The actual low there was -2.

In contrast, the weather was fair and mild most everywhere west of the Rocky Mountains. Morning low temperatures were above freezing in such unlikely places as Helena, Mont., and Casper, Wyo.

Blinding Fog

In the San Joaquin Valley north of Bakersfield, Calif., 70 cars were involved in two pileups in a blinding fog. Four persons were killed, but casualty reports were incomplete. A highway patrol dispatcher said, "We're still digging."

In the eastern storm area, many Ohio schools and Kent State University suspended classes because of the snow blockade, wind and cold.

At least three highways were closed in the Ashtabula area. House and camping trailers were banned from the Ohio Turnpike because high winds, and the speed limit was reduced from 70 miles an hour to 40.

Some 50 persons were treated for storm-caused injuries at Cleveland, where wind gusts hit 75 m.p.h. Around 2,000 travelers and commuters were stranded overnight in Cleveland motels and hotels.

A Canadian Coast Guard cutter recorded a gust of 98 m.p.h. on Lake Erie near Ashtabula Tuesday.

In New York State, the Thruway was closed from Schnectady to near Buffalo as windblown snow dropped visibility to near zero. Numerous schools and businesses were shut down for the day. The City of Batavia opened firehalls as havens for stranded motorists.

All roads in New York's three westernmost counties were blocked by deep and drifting snow Tuesday night. Troopers near Buffalo even withdrew highway patrols except for emergencies.

In neighboring Ontario, a blizzard closed many major highways Tuesday and left more than 15,000 school children stranded in rural school buildings and nearby farmhouses. London, Woodstock and Barrie were termed "completely isolated" late Tuesday.

The storm walloped much of Upper and Lower Michigan and Ohio earlier Tuesday. All roads were closed for a time in 13 Lower Michigan counties.

60 m.p.h. Winds

The wind destroyed three house trailers in Page County, Va. One trailer with four persons inside was overturned and slammed down on a nearby road, but no one was injured seriously.

A Norfolk man experimenting with a parachute was picked up and blown onto the roof of a house. Police got him down. He was hospitalized with a broken leg.

Three walls of a 65,000-square foot building under construction in Bedford County, Va., were blown down. No one was injured.

Gale warnings flew over all

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army WO Terry F. Mezera, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Mezera of Eau Claire, was killed in action in Southeast Asia, the Pentagon reported Tuesday.

More School Aid Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says federal school aid would increase from $2.9 billion to $5.1 billion under the general revenue sharing plan proposed by the President.

Officials say some $2 billion of the increase would be the portion of the proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing pool which states and local governments would use mainly for public school aid. The remaining $200 million would be new money.

As outlined by administration education officials Tuesday, the states would share the $5.1 billion on the basis of population alone. The biggest states, therefore, would get the largest share.

The money would be funneled through five broad categories of elementary and secondary education spending rather than the present 100 sometimes overlapping, special purpose aid programs. The five categories would be compensatory, impact aid to districts with large numbers of federal employes, vocational, handicapped, and equipment and facilities.

"Federal bureaucrats would no longer approve specific projects," one official said. "They would be freed to provide technical assistance to states and cities."

Officials of established educational organizations have complained the federal share of public school spending has dropped from eight per cent to 6.9 per cent in the past three years. These organizations are weighing details of the revenue-sharing proposal before endorsing or opposing the plan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking for the Democrats on Capitol Hill, Sen. Mike Mansfield said nothing particularly good nor bad about President Nixon's legislative program in a nationally televised "conversation with the Senate Majority Leader."

The Montana Senator said Nixon's major proposals deserve congressional attention—but withheld specific endorsements until the bills are introduced.

Mansfield was interviewed for 45 minutes Tuesday by four broadcast journalists. Although he denied any intention of giving a Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union address, he was questioned on major portions of the President's speech.

The format approximated one used by Nixon earlier this month when he was interviewed for an hour on television and radio.

Federal Bureaus

Mansfield agreed it may be wise to consolidate some federal departments, as recommended by President Nixon.

"This is a step in the right direction," he said. "We are top-heavy in federal bureaus and agencies.

"We have been slap-happy, piling agencies upon one another," he added.

Mansfield noted strong opposition to Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal, under which states would get federal funds with no strings.

Asked about a move to junk the seniority system, under which congressional committee chairmen are elected on a basis of length of service, Mansfield said the system has worked remarkably well but he would support an age limit for senators.

Jeopardize Troops

Mansfield voiced doubt Congress will vote to cut off funds for use in Indochina in fear of U.S. troops there would be jeopardized.

But he declared Nixon should set a definite timetable for removal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and withdraw about half of the American troops in Europe.

South Vietnam has a million-man army which should be able to defend Indochina, Mansfield said, and European nations should be encouraged to provide troops for their own protection.

Mansfield voiced no reservations about his relationship with the new assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who unseated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

"Bob Byrd and I have voted together on some legislation and differently on some," he said. "He has a flexible understanding of his duties and the policy is laid down by the policy committee."

Linkletter Answers Darnedest Questions

BY MALIA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Kids still ask the darnedest questions.

And, "What's a bad trip?"

For 6- and 7- and 8-year-olds, those were some pretty steep questions, but they had no trouble understanding the answers.

That's because they came from a man who knows all about what children can understand.

They came from Art Linkletter, who talked to 6- and 7- and 8-year-olds for more than 30 years, all over the country.

Tuesday he was at Huntley Elementary School as part of a visit which included personal appearances, to stimulate interest in combating drug abuse. For the most part, he met and talked with adults during the day.

But that hour right after lunch was just Linkletter and the children, an unbeatable combination.

"Has everyone had lunch?" asked Linkletter as soon as the excitement had subsided and every little body on the floor of the gym settled in place to pay attention.

"YES," chorused the children in unison.

"Has everyone gone to the bathroom?" Linkletter asked with concern. Again, the chorus of 900 voices replied, "YES."

"Now, don't laugh, the speaker reprimanded the grinning adults. "They're going to be here for an hour, you know. And I want everyone to be comfortable."

From then on, it was just Linkletter and the kids. The topic was drugs, an overwhelming and very adult topic, but there was no communications gap.

"You are starting out on the most wonderful and beautiful adventure in the whole world—growing up.

"There will be risks and there will be bad times and there will be problems," he said.

"And sometimes people take drugs to forget the problems. They take pills so they don't have to face the cold and the hunger and so they forget how miserable they are," he said.

Then, coming in a little closer to the group of little ones, he added, "But you know that problems won't go away. When you wake up from your strange dreams, they will still be there and they will be worse, because then you will have done another bad thing. You will have taken drugs, which is illegal."

Although he concentrated on explaining drug abuse in the most simple way, to make the problem understandable, he liberally sprinkled his talk with little reminders of love and friendship.

"As you grow up, you should have friends and not all of them should be your age. And the best friends you should have are your parents. They love you. And if you have problems go to them first. They may not always understand why you are doing things but they will always try. That's what love is," he told his rapt audience.

And as you grow older, he continued, there also will be other people to tempt you to go along with them and do many bad things. One of them will be to take those little pills.

"When that happens, you just remember old Uncle Art

Farmer Shovels Snow, Dies of Heart Attack

STEPHENSVILLE — A 65-year-old New London farmer collapsed and died of a heart attack Tuesday afternoon while digging out a snowplow-tractor from a ditch near the farm he rented from his brother.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps identified the victim as Harvey H. Lemke, 1311 Lawrence St., New London. Lemke, who was stricken on the Cummings Road near here, was dead on arrival at New London Community Hospital at 3 p.m.

Kemps said Lemke was en route to the farm, by car, when he confronted a snowbound driveway. His brother, Loy, cleared the driveway for Harvey with a tractor. Harvey then drove the auto in the driveway, but returned with the tractor to clear away more snow. He got stuck with the plow, and was stricken after digging for about 15 minutes.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Borchardt and Moder Funeral Home in New London.

"There will be risks and bad times."

The Appleton-Linkletter Plan on the drug problem is presented Tuesday evening to Art Linkletter by Mrs. David Patterson, co-chairman of the sponsoring Outagamie Drug Council, Inc.

Drug Program Draws Linkletter to Appleton

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Art Linkletter settled back on a motel couch and calmly fielded questions that ranged from "What do you think of marijuana?" to "Do you think you failed your daughter?" to "Why isn't your afternoon television show on any more?"

But first he told reporters summoned for a press conference that he came to Appleton because here there is a feeling of "America as it used to be. It's where families are still closely knit."

He said Appleton is "the kind of a middle size town representative of most of the United States" and is the kind of town that will give strength and support to other cities across the country that are wrestling with the drug control problem.

But Art Linkletter really came to Appleton — and a long list of other cities — because in October 1969, his 20-year-old daughter, Diane, plunged to her death, apparently while under the influence of LSD.

Not Really Concerned

Linkletter admitted that before her death, he was "no more concerned about the drug problem than I was about a lot of other things."

Now he not only takes his anti-drug appeal to all parts of the country, but also "personally counsels a half dozen children of some of the most famous stars in Hollywood" — children with severe drug hangups.

Did he fail his daughter, whom he had known was an "experimenter" with drugs? The only way he could have failed her, he pondered, was by "being in show business; by being a celebrity."

He spoke distastefully of a show business that included young people like Grace Slick (of Jefferson Airplane), Mia Farrow and Peter and Jane Fonda.

And he said it was "a big risk" for a child to be in Hollywood as a part of a show business family.

Linkletter also talked about drugs in general. He said the biggest reason young people take them is their upbringing in a "pill-popping society."

But the roots of drug abuse, go deeper, he said. He said the "spark that set them off was the whole new kind of life style of their favorite idols." He named the Beatles and others.

Idolize Drug Culture

He sees LSD as "the most dangerous drug ever created by mankind." But his views on marijuana have changed "two or three times." At first he thought it was deadly and addictive, then, like some doctors and scientists, he took a more liberal attitude toward it.

Now he thiniks "the jury is out" on marijuana. He can tolerate the thought o fa "very mature, well - settled person using marijuana "once or twice a week," but he feels marijuana should never be legalized and is "a door opener to everything else."

Linkletter, who does not smoke or drink, sees alcohol as "an accepted social custom" that is not addictive. But, he told reporters, "I don't think any father who gets smashed every Saturday night on martinis has any business telling his children not to use drugs."

Linkletter frequently brought his daughter into his conversation with reporters. At one point he said that had he known she was so deeply involved with drugs, he could probably have helped her by "forcing her" to move back with the family.

Drug Pushers

He said that immediately after her death, his opinion of drug pushers was that they should all be "killed." He has altered his opinion on drugs and pushers.

"Most of the pushers are our children," he explained.

He sees little chance of stopping the drug supply to the young people. "We have to stop their reason for taking them," he said.

About the absence of his NBC afternoon television program. The question was asked by a man who said he represented an NBC affiliate. Linkletter told him the show no longer was on simply because NBC didn't want to spend the money.

Clintonville Amends Snowmobile Control

Limited Operation on Streets Authorized

CLINTONVILLE — An ordinance amending regulations for the operation of snowmobiles was passed by a majority vote by the City Council Tuesday at a special meeting.

The session began at 5:05 p.m. in the council room of the city hall, and before adjournment about an hour later, there was a short outburst and flare-up of tempers between some of the aldermen and representatives present of the Truck City Riders Snowmobile club.

This was the fourth meeting of the council at which the snowmobile ordinances were the principal item of business. The ordinance committee had spent many hours in meetings with representatives of the Truck City Riders club and the safety committee, as well as with Police Chief James Beggs and City Atty. Ralph Lauer, in trying to establish snowmobile routes in the city, for the purpose of travel to and from snowmobile trails within or outside the city.

Present from the Truck City Riders club were Herb Reimer and John Schafer, who assured the council that the club members wanted to cooperate in every way possible and adhere to the regulations. They said, "You can't legislate accidents," when safety was being discussed.

Reimer commented that there is a short travel time for the snowmobiles on the designated routes and the operators drive with their lights on . . . "and that probably they look out more so than people walking along a street."

Lot of Static

Ald. Leon Steenbock said, "I've got a lot of static in this area . . . In fact, I had a snowmobiler on Anne Street say that he didn't think it should be open." He said that some of the people are unhappy on 15th and 16th Streets, and over to Robert Street, in his (First) ward.

Ald. Donald Thompson, asked Chief Beggs if he can enforce such an ordinance. Chief Beggs replied, "All I can do is try on anything you pass."

Mayor Frank Sinkewicz suggested that the routes within the city could be reduced by providing parking spaces for snowmobiles in a building at the airport, for which a fee could be charged.

An Experiment

Ald. Calvin Waite, chairman of the ordinance committee, reminded "Take into consideration that we are trying this and this is an experiment this year. We are probably going to have amendments 10 or 15 times in the next three or four years."

The ordinance restricts the speed of snowmobiles on public highways designated as snowmobile routes to a maximum of 10 miles per hour.

Thompson asked what the safety committee had to say. Ald. Robert Kitzman, committee chairman replied, "When I made a little telephone poll this afternoon, there were no major complaints. One of the things brought up was safety with the large snowbanks now. With the ones I called, only two actually said 'no' and I am about 50-50."

Elimination Proposed

2 Attorneys Seek Judgeship Of Doubtful Waupaca Court

WAUPACA — Dist. Atty. Gerald K. Anderson, Waupaca, and A. Don Zwickey, Clintonville, will vie for the judgeship of county court branch 1 in the April 6 election.

Both attorneys have been practicing law in Waupaca County since their graduations from the University of Wisconsin Law School, Anderson in 1948 and Zwickey in 1932.

The new judge will take over for Judge Wendell McHenry, who retires Sunday.

The candidates' filing has been routine despite the uncertain future of the court. Branch 1 has been the object of considerable interest since the administrative committee for the state courts last December filed a recommendation to eliminate it.

Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows of the State Supreme Court, chairman of the State Judicial Committee, recommended to the governor and legislature that branch 1 courts in Waupaca County and Douglas County be eliminated.

In the same recommendation, it was proposed that four new circuit and county courts be established in Milwaukee and that county courts be formed in Waukesha, Racine, Dane, Outagamie and Eau Claire counties.

Bar Association

Local interests, however, are working to forstall the elimination of branch 1. Several bills are pending, it is reported, concerning the court, and lawyers in Waupaua County are working through the bar association to retain it.

An unanswered question is: if the spring election for the judgeship is held with the court still intact, will the winning candidate take office on Jan. 1, 1972 if the court is removed later in the year?

There are those who believe that no elimination can occur once a judge to succeed McHenry is elected. There is no legal precedent where an elected judge could not hold office by elimination of the court.

The logic for retaining the Waupaca County court Branch 1, expressed during the weeks since Chief Justice Hallows' recommendation, falls in three major areas:

—A second county court, formed in July, 1969, has expedited litigation in the county. Cases are current; there is no backlog. The situation is favored by attorneys and clients.

Former State Rep.

Anderson, a native of the Town of Waupaca educated in Waupaca public schools, served as district attorney from 1954-60 and from 1962 to 1964. He became district attorney again on Jan. 4, 1971. From 1965-1968, he served as state representative for the county and was chairman of the Assembly Judiciary Committee from 1967-1968.

Zwickey has served the county as circuit court commissioner and whas chosen by the Waupaca County Bar Association for two decades to discuss legislative needs for operation of the courts.

Defense Seeks Dismissal in Sherwood Obscenity Case

CHILTON — Briefs were ordered filed last week by Calumet County Judge D. H. Sebora on a defense motion to dismiss the first obscenity case heard in his court.

The case involves a lewd and lascivious conduct charge against Michiels Bar and Bowl, Sherwood, where a Dec. 16 complaint by a patron alleges a female entertainer exposed herself during a performance.

The briefs are to be filed as soon as possible. Sebora indicated that because it is the first obscenity case, a speedy trial may not be possible.

"The public is entitled to know what is and is not obscene in Calumet County," Sebora said.

The courthouse law library contains no U. S. Supreme Court decisions on obscenity, he said. The state law isn't clear on whether such exposure is illegal.

The defense attorney and Calumet district attorney presented oral arguments Friday.

William Hertel, legal counsel for Michiels, which has Julie Michiels as agent, contended the complaint was defective because it didn't name the dancer or the time of the alleged offense.

Hertel filed the dismissal motion Jan. 7, a week after Michiels and its agent posted a $100 bond.

Hertel also argued that no minor was involved nor did the alleged performance assault the sensibilities of an unwiling adult. He said the Michiels front sign advertises exotic dancers, and adults have the option of viewing it or not.

He argued the performance was "freedom of expression protected by the very broad Wisconsin statutes, the 14th Amendment of the Constitution and the First Amendment embodied in the 14th Amendment." He challenged the constitutionality of obscenity laws and said the state could permit greater freedom of speech and the press than allowed in the 14th Amendment but not less.

He cited cases, including one on a topless and bottomless dancer and the recent U. S. Supreme Court decision on pornographic materials going through the mail, in support of his arguments.

Dist. Atty. Franklin J. Schmieder contended the defendants "are trying to look beyond the statutes in the present case. He said that "indecent exposure in a public place is not a form of expression protected by the constitution."

He argued that Michiels is a tavern and bowling alley and questioned whether the outside sign advertised "naked dancer inside." He cited a state case that indecent exposure isn't a crime unless done publicly and likely to be seen by the casual viewer.

Hertel had argued that court cases have defended the right of persons to read or view pornographic materials in the privacy of their homes.

County Health Study Begins

The first steps were taken Tuesday night toward organizing the rural phase of a public health study in Outagamie County.

Members of the county board's health committee subunit for the study were to have met with a number of rural representatives, but road conditions limited the turnout to two.

A similar meeting is scheduled with urban representatives on Feb. 4 to map out that phase of the study.

Supv. Kenneth Gibson, Appleton, member of the county board's health committee, said the basic question to be answered is whether the rural areas want and need the same public health services as the urban areas.

Plans are to formulate questionnaires to be sent to town officials, health officers and a random sampling of rural residents. The same procedures will be followed in the urban areas.

Ira Livingston, Town of Grand Chute chairman, said he had no objections to conducting a study, but said he did not see any real health problems in the rural areas. "Maybe we just have had good luck in Grand Chute," he said.

"With all the problems we have, you're going to have a hard time selling this (health department)," Livingston said. "If you're going to talk the towns into this, you must have something ready to step in immediately to do the job and do it more efficiently."

Dr. Keith Breyer, Hortonville, health officer for the Town of Ellington, said he did not think it would take too much to beat the services now offered.

He said he wondered how many taverns were serving hamburgers and never have had wells tested.

If a county health department were created, it would replace all of the town and city health officers and departments.

At present, Waukesha County has the only county health department in the state. The director of that department is scheduled to appear before the committee on Feb. 11.

Works Board Plans New London Projects

NEW LONDON — The board of public works took advantage of a special City Council meeting Tuesday night to tie up several loose ends on projects scheduled to be enacted during 1971.

The board received council authorization to have Donahue and Associates, the city's consulting engineers, draw up specifications and plans for change-orders on the city's contract with DeVeeleesbouer Construction Co. on storm sewer separation projects in the city.

Included will be a section of storm sewer on Fremont Street north of Beacon Avenue and Neenah, Menasha, and Warren streets in the Radtke-Dobberstein plat.

Sanitary Sewer

The board also received authorization to have Donahue draw up plans for the connection of the sanitary sewer that runs in the alley between Wolf River Avenue and S. Water Street.

The sewer presently empties directly into the Wolf River. The city plans to have the sewer connected to the regular sanitary sewer so that raw wastes are treated before being dumped into the river. The work will be included in the N. Water Street sanitary sewer replacement project this summer.

Several other projects will be started, with Rice and Urban doing the engineering of a sanitary sewer to the Lyon's Industrial Park. The sewer is to run down Montgomery Street to Curwood Inc., down High Street and then south to the industrial park.

Included in the study of this sewer project will be a study of sewer depth and run off to provide service on Ridgeway Road.

Mayor S. W. Krostue pointed out that the entire area should be studied at the same time, because "this isn't a small area that has to be planned."

Director of Public Works Robert Martin stated that the pipe put in would be a large one, probably 36 inches in diameter, in order to allow for continued growth in the area, and possibly future expansion.

The public property committee had a report on the rental of the room in the community building. The council established a rental fee of $5 for any meeting four hours or shorter and $10 for any meeting longer than four hours.

The fee will be charged to any outsiders wishing to use the room. The public property committee will do a further study to decide just who will be charged the fee on both the local and area level.

Among the ideas discussed were the possibility of charging the fee only to groups or persons who would be making money as a result of the meeting. It was noted that the Chamber of Commerce presently is paying all utilities and heat for the building as an exchange for their offices in the building, rent free.

The council authorized the expenditure of $336 for the city's share of boat to be used for Wolf River patrol in Waupaca County. The city will receive 70 per cent of its expenditure back from the state over a five-year basis.

The boat will be manned by a deputy sheriff, who will be paid by the county from a $4,800 fund for operation of the patrol.

Ald. Jerome Freiburger pointed out that the duty of the patrol would be to provide an educational and courtesy program, as well as promote safety on the water. The deputy will be uniformed and will have full authority of arrest.

Money Well Spent

Krostue noted that the $20 per year the city actually would spend would be well worth it. He pointed out that the patrol had been the product of New London's neighboring township of Mukwa.

Krostue introduced an ordinance to establish an industrial park board, using the officers and representatives from New London Industrial Opportunities Inc. The mayor would act as liaison between the committee and the council. The purpose of the committee would be to operate the Lyons Industrial Park, recently purchased by the city.

The council will take action on the ordinance at its next meeting.

Incumbent trustees Ralph Koffarnus and Clarence Hemauer will have their names on the April 6 ballot. Both filed nomination papers. Incumbent trustee Clarence Stengel will not seek re-election.

Village Clerk Mrs. Arthur Pruess said the president and assessor positions probably would be filled by write-in votes. Nomination papers were circulated for Manz, and the necessary number of signatures were obtained she said, but he declined to file them.

In the Village of Sherwood all incumbent officers whose terms are expiring filed nomination papers by the deadline Tuesday, as well as one newcomer, William Mader, who is seeking a trustee spot on the board.

Clifford Mayer Renamed Chief

Volunteer Firemen At Stockbridge Hold Annual Meeting

STOCKBRIDGE — Clifford Mayer was re-elected chief of the Community Volunteer Fire Department at its annual meeting. He has been chief since the department was organized 23 years ago.

Paul Westenberger was re-elected assistant chief and David Hemauer was renamed first lieutenant. Paul Karls is the new second lieutenant and Robert Wilson will continue as secretary-treasurer. William Nushardt was elected director and delegate to the safety league.

During 1970 the firemen were called to seven fires, five in the Town of Stockbridge and two in the village. These included two barns, two houses, one garage, one grass fire and one tractor fire. The loss is the lowest in the department's history, Mayer said, pointing out that area persons are becoming more fire conscious.

The number of fire runs was cut in half, Mayer noted as there were 14 fires in 1969 with the same ratio, 10 in the Town of Stockbridge and four in the

Three Aldermen At Clintonville Face Opposition

CLINTONVILLE — Three of the five incumbent aldermen seeking re-election in the April 6 election here will have opposition according to nomination papers filed by the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday at the office of City Clerk Lloyd Egleston.

Ald. Leon Steenbock (1st) and Ald. Robert Kitzman (2nd) are unopposed.

Ald. Clarence Smith (3rd) is opposed by Donald W. Krueger; in the 4th Ward, Ald. James Born is being opposed by Kenneth Suehring and Charles Hamilton; and in the 5th Ward, Ald. Fred Hangartner is opposed by Gordon Poole and Mrs. Ben Tellock.

All of the candidates other than the incumbent aldermen are newcomers in city council politics.

Devotion to Scouting Earns Rewards

NEENAH — Awards recognizing devotion to Scouting were presented Monday at the first annual awards dinner of the Tri-City District Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America

Four volunteers from the Fox Cities were honored for the services they had rendered through the years, in the surprise ceremony.

A den mother and the only woman led the list of recipients She is Mrs Dorothy (Thomas) Allcox, who has worked with Pack 74 Neenah, for a number of years, and assists her husband, who is the cubmaster. In 1967 she received the den mother's training award

The other three honored are from Appleton, but have worked throughout the district in various posts

20-Year Veteran

Delmar Otis, district commissioner and a 20-year veteran of Scouting, was honored for "beefing up or salvaging more Scouting units than any other active commissioner," in the words of Richard Schoehnbohm, district advancement chairman, who made the presentations

Clayton Welson, the third recipient, began his work in Scouting 36 years ago, when he organized a troop, and still works with the troop every week. He has served as committee chairman, a committeeman and in 1967 received the Scouter's training award.

The fourth recipient, Robert Schindhelm, another volunteer who has given his time for a number of years, was particularly recognized for his work with the special education boys at Highland School

Three other volunteers, who had received the first of the merit awards last year, also were recognized by Schoenbohm.

They are Thomas Hollenbeck, Patrick McCormick, and Richard Mykel, all of whom have devoted a number of years to Scouting.

Cub Scout Assists

The seven had been nominated by their volunteer colleagues and selected by a special committee.

Other awards which were presented were the national camping award, by Arthur Snell; national summertime pack awards, Len Schneider; training awards, Leroy Peterson, and Helping Hands awards, by the district executives involved.

Fred Hrubecky presented the new units organized in 1970; Pack 91 and Troop 91 were in charge of the opening and closing ceremonies; Scott Howard brought the introduction and District Chairman F. H. Sprowl gave the district report.

The Rev. Orville Janssen, pastor of St. Bernard Catholic Church, was the featured speaker

Sharing the spotlight with him were the Sing Out Fox Cities group, with Debbie Wyman as coordinator

The Rev. Richard Johnson, pastor of Our Saviour Lutheran Church, sponsors of Pack and Troop 91, gave the invocation.

Linkletter Answers Darndest Questions

saying 'o you how bad it is to put anything in your mouth when you don't know what it is

"When you do that, you are nothing but s-t-u-p-i-d." Linkletter spelled it out and was immediately answered again by the 900 voice-chorus pronouncing "STUPID."

And he was amply rewarded later during his well known interview with children when he asked a youngster, "Why will you refuse to take pills from others? The answer came, without hesitation, "Because I don't want to be stupid

"Put 'er there." Linkletter grinned and heartily shook the little hand extended to him.

It was this part of the program which once again proved that there isn't anyone who has more rapport with children than this man

Perched on top of the high stools, the little ones seemed to overcome their shyness and the friendly man went from one to the other with questions

Although there was the reversal of roles, where the children asked questions of Linkletter, the speaker had a word for everyone.

"Look at those big, brown eyes," he said to one young lady who took care of the compliment with a quick "thank you," and preceeded with her question

Going to a swankily dressed 6-year-old, Linkletter stepped back to admire the outfit and said, "and here we have a young man in a brand new suit."

"How did you know it was new?" demanded the tot, unbuttoning his jacket to show off the vest

"That's right," encouraged Linkletter, "when you have a new $8 vest, don't hide it."

And he touched on the skinned noses and knees of some of the kids, commented on the pretty red hair of one little girl and grinned at the ruddy complexion of a young man.

And when the interviews were over, he turned to the youngsters and said, "Life will be good and fun. But when the sad times come, you just cry a little.

"You know that when the tears dry, everthing seems better — especially when you have a peanut butter and jelly sandwich"

He then declared, "And remember, I love you all."

had been asked at a previous meeting to check regarding the city's liability regarding snowmobiles and he reported that the city's liability on this is no different than with cars — there is only liability on the city's part if accidents are caused by neglect of an employee.

Voting in favor of adoption of the ordinance were Steenbock, Wanta, Kitzman, Clarence Smith, Waite and James Born. Voting against it were Evan Hedtke and Thompson. Ralph Hall, and Fred Hangartner were absent.

It was also suggested that a marked copy of the city's map be kept at the office of the city clerk

Christmas Trees Do Not Hurt the Ecology

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I have just finished reading the article in the January 17th Post-Crescent written by Giles Clark in which he suggests that a law be passed banning Christmas trees. As a Christmas tree grower, I feel that I have a duty to provide some facts to curb such thoughts as Mr. Clark suggests when he ties Christmas trees to the pollution problem.

The Christmas tree business is not as wasteful as first appears. Today, practically all of the trees sold in Wisconsin are plantation grown. These are planted specifically for this purpose. We are not robbing future generations of forests because these trees would not be planted if it was not for the Christmas tree market. Also, the bulk of excess trees hauled to the dump the day after Christmas are the poorest trees. Every industry has its culls and seconds and these trees are the ones that the grower would destroy, even without a market, because they are no longer economical. For every tree that is cut here at "Evergreen Acres" a new one is planted in its place next season.

As for the pollution caused by the disposal of wood products, this is in no respect as serious as it is with many other products. Wood will decay and form a useful part of the soil. If burned, its waste products are by no means as dangerous as are the exhausts from automobiles or industrial smoke stacks that are laden with lead and sulfur fumes.

Christmas trees, while growing, are air purifiers in that they absorb the gases in the air and return pure oxygen to the atmosphere (process of photosynthesis). Without green plants no living animals (humans included) could exist. So the tree plantation is actually counteracting pollution.

Furthermore, the tree plantation is one of the best means of soil and water conservation known. The U.S. Department of Agriculture recognizes this by encouraging regular farmers to plant trees by paying part of the cost of this planting. When we bought the land for our plantation, it was entirely under plow. With every strong breeze, clouds of soil would be carried to distant areas: (Indeed, a picture in the "Post" a couple of years ago showed the wind erosion that had taken place on a bordering farm that was being farmed by conventional methods.) Heavy rains produced gulleys on the slopes. Today the soil at "Evergreen Acres" is completely covered with trees and sod. Soil erosion is almost nonexistent. Also, the annual needle fall from trees and the decaying grasses are building up the humus content of the soil. Annual applications of commercial fertilizers are more than replacing the soil nutrients removed by the harvested trees. We have reversed the process of soil deterioration and are heading back toward the virgin forest soil. This is true conservation and instead of costing the government, it is paying its way in taxes. The Christmas tree industry receives no government subsidies, price supports, or low interest loans.

I would also like to point out a bit of the economic side of producing Christmas trees. There is much more work involved than merely planting and harvesting. The summer months are busy ones with shearing, pruning, mowing, and spraying. The producers in the heavy production areas of the state have sizable payrolls. This labor force consists mainly of the unskilled portion of our population that so often finds itself on the welfare rolls when this type of work is not available.

I am as concerned about pollution control and conservation of natural resources as the most devoted ecologist. However, when a problem such as pollution receives so much publicity in such a short period of time, there are bound to be numerous evangelists and crusaders taking up the fight. This is good and I am all for them, but we must not let our emotions lead us into a state of hysteria.

This letter is written for the purpose of providing facts so we can work together in a common cause instead of jumping to conclusions which would lead us to take action which produces more harm than good.

Differs on Interpretation Of Second Amendment

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

A recent editorial of yours using a story about a gun cache in Door County as a reason for better gun controls was anything but that:

Instead it points to the fact that we already have gun registration of a sort and according to your story at least some of the weapons involved which should have been registered were not. So as always your answer is more restrictive laws. You are entitled to your opinion on this of course.

There is one sentence in your article, however, which comes to a conclusion that should be refuted. I refer to your sentence "The Bill of Rights clause about the right of citizens to bear arms has been dug up time and again although it is generally interpreted that the Constitution writers were referring to members of the state militias."

I'm going to write out the complete language of this so-called clause, the Second Amendment of the Bill of Rights.

"A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

The inference in your sentence seems to be that courts and authorities on constitutional law generally interpret it as you say. This is at best wishful thinking, and at worst a downright untruth! Those of liberal political persuasion, and they are the ones mainly who see red when this Second Amendment is mentioned, have sometimes advanced this interpretation but no major court, including the U. S. Supreme Court, has ever to my knowledge come to this decision.

That word people in the amendment means just what it says, and just what its use everywhere in the Constitution means. And the people themselves for more than one hundred and seventy years have so construed it.

Liberals strictly interpret the First Amendment, Freedom of Speech and the press — as absolutely restrictive on the power of the Federal government to legislate against even obscene and pornographic speech or writing. Likewise they fight like tigers against any encroachment of the Federal government on their rights under the 4th and 5th Amendments. Yet the 2nd Amendment comes in for all sorts of strange interpretations by the "in crowd."

Is the Bill of Rights just that or is it a Bill of Exceptions?

Muskie in No Hurry to Make Candidacy Official

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says he is working "to build the basis of a solid political organization" and is in no hurry to announce his Democratic presidential candidacy because the politicians who count already assume he is running.

After four days of speeches and private meetings with California Democrats, Muskie said politicians and potential financial supporters base their conversations on the premise that he is a candidate, "which is a good reason not to announce."

The Maine senator is the leader in the public opinion polls on a 1972 Democratic nominee. Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota is the only announced candidate.

Raise Money

"You've got to take things in some kind of order," Muskie, his shoes off and his shirt open, told reporters Tuesday night in the President's Suite of a suburban San Mateo motel. "Right now, in order to do this job effectively, we have got to raise money to provide staff."

Muskie said when that is done he would "like to get to the stage as quickly as possible" at which Democratic leaders on his side will begin to make public commitments of support.

"Finances are tough to come by," Muskie said in part because of the economic situation. "It's damn tough to raise money . . . We're talking about a lot of money." He would not say how much.

Private Dinners

He termed his California visit useful. "I came here to make friends and influence people," he said. "I think maybe from that standpoint I've made some progress in the past few days."

Explaining remarks he made in a Sunday night television interview, he denied raising the administration or its policies as a targe for criticism or rivalry during his Jan. 15 meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

"I did not in the case of Mr. Kosygin set up the administration's policy in any field as a target for criticism," he said. ". . . What I did with Mr. Kosygin is present my point of view without suggesting where it might differ from the administration point of view."

Consequences for Peace

In the CBS television interview, Muskie said, "I wanted to tell him that there was a strong body of opinion in the United States, indeed, that I thought it included a majority of Americans, who are concerned not only about the cost of armaments but the consequences for peace and for our capacity to deal with the day by day problems of human beings."

Sen. Edmund Muskie

In San Mateo, Muskie told a labor-sponsored conference on medical care that Congress "must draft, debate and enact a program of national health insurance without delay."

But he said it must be accompanied by an overhaul of the health care system. Otherwise "we shall only succeed in pushing our present health care system to the point of total collapse," Muskie said.

Muskie also visited the San Francisco Zoo to observe and congratulate the volunteers working to save sea birds caught in the oil spill that followed the collision of two tankers near the Golden Gate Bridge.

Charges Possible In Mine Explosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities may seek civil and criminal penalties for the owners of a Kentucky coal mine where an explosion killed 38 men last month, it has been learned.

But strong federal action against mine operators is so rare the Bureau of Mines has been required to clear its moves not only with acting Secretary of the Interior Fred J. Russell, but with the White House as well, administration sources told the Associated Press.

Mines Bureau Director Elbert F. Osborn met with Russell late Tuesday, and the sources said Interior Department representatives would discuss the matter today with the Office of Management and Budget, a key White House satellite.

Hyden, Ky.

The explosion occurred Dec. 30 at Hyden, Ky., in twin mines opened last March by brothers Charles and Stanley Finley.

During nine months of operation, the mines were cited by federal inspectors for dozens of health and safety violations.

A Bureau of Mines investigation after the blast drew testimony indicating that primer cord—barred from the mines by law—may have been used inside the Finley mines, igniting coal dust which spread the explosion through the tunnels.

Mine safety violations could bring large fines but it was learned officials were contemplating also some sort of criminal charges, possibly based on conflicting testimony given at the bureau's hearings.

Four weeks after O'Leary's appointment in 1968, a mine explosion at Mannington, W. Va., killed 78 men.

Costumer's Slug Really 1,000 Year Old Coin

GENEVA (AP) — The customer who put a slug in the self-service box for a 9-cent Geneva newspaper wasn't so smart. The coin turned out to be a 1,000-year-old piece from the reign of Byzantine Emperor Romanus II worth at least $6.

Obscenity Encouraged, Congressman Upset With Supported Theater

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Iowa congressman says federal funds should be withdrawn from a theatrical group that encourages children in the audiences to shout obscenities.

At a recent performance in Baltimore, says Rep. William J. Scherle, the group, Living Stage '71, instructed the children to shout "bull . . . whenever they saw or heard something they disagreed with.

Republican Scherle, wrote to Nancy Hanks, Chairman of the National Council on the Arts, objecting to continued federal support for Living Stage '71, which he said has received $50,000 from the National Foundation on the Arts.

"It is difficult for me to understand how the cause of art or humanity is furthered by instructing young children to shout 'bull . . .' in response to a stage presentation that does not please them," Scherle told Miss Hanks.

"This is neither 'creative expression' as one of the proponents calls it, nor even rational criticism. This is irresponsible frivolity of the worst kind."

After learning of the invitation to the Baltimore children to engage in instant criticism, Scherle telephoned Living Stage '71 and asked director Robert Alexander why it was necessary to have the youngsters shout the barnyard epithet.

"He said it is only adults who get upset by such words," said Scherle, "and that there wasn't any difference between shouting 'bull . . .' and shouting 'horsefeathers.'

"I'm an Iowa farmer," said Scherle, "and I told him if he ever stepped in them he'd know the difference."

State Lawmaker Tells of Kidnap Plot Against Him

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A state senator says three black militants plotted to kidnap him and a state representative, take them to Cuba on a hijacked airliner, and hold them hostage for the release of Angela Davis.

"It was a harebrained, horrifying scheme," Sen. John Lindsay of Bennettsville, whose wife and son were kidnaped for a short time, told the Senate Tuesday on the basis of an investigation by the State Law Enforcement Division.

He said the original intent was to kidnap Mayor John Belk of Charlotte, N.C., but the plotters "settled on a small, rural town as their best chance of getting away with it." Belk, a millionaire, is an executive of a chain of Southeastern states department stores.

Three persons were accused in the kidnaping of Mrs. Lindsay and her son in Bennettsville on Jan. 15. They also allegedly went to the nearby home of state Rep. Edward Cottingham, but found him away, then went to the neighboring home of former state Rep. Jamie Lee.

Lorge Promotes Janesville Man As GOP Chairman

MADISON (AP) — State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, started a boomlet today for John Hough of Janesville as Republican state chairman.

Lorge said the chairman should be a person who can "create a warm feeling toward the working class of people, the small businessman and the farmers of this state."

"Mr. Hough is a self-made man, the son of a wood worker," and is a successful businessman, Lorge added.

The Republican Executive Committee will meet Friday in Madison ot select a successor to Reed Coleman, 37, Madison, who is stepping down to devote more time to his business interests.

Stand-Up Breakfast Is Surprise Necessity

NEWBERG, Ore. (AP) — There was a stand-up breakfast Tuesday at George Fox College. Pranksters had made off with the 350 chairs in the Quaker school's cafeteria.

The chairs were found a short time later in the third floor attic of another campus building.

Surgical Repair Best For Correcting Hernia

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is meant by a "reducible inguinal hernia"? In the case of a small incisional hernia, can it be corrected without surgery — by injections which cause adhesions that close up the opening? — I.M.K.

Dr. Thosteson

A hernia is a rupture or break in a restraining tissue, and most commonly (although not always) this refers to the wall of the abdomen. "Inguinal" means that the hernia is in the groin area.

Now when there is such a rupture, or flaw, some of the contents of the abdomen can push through the gap, producing the bulge which is noticeable.

"Reducible" means simply that the bulge can be readily pushed back through the opening. Of course, you can't expect it to stay back in place. When one lies down, the bulge quite often will disappear by itself — just by the force of gravity. Stand up, and the bulge appears again.

An incisional hernia, like the other hernia, also is a rupture or gap, and usually although not necessarily in the wall of the abdomen. The difference is the fact that the hernia has developed where an incision has been made for one reason or another, but otherwise it is essentially the same type of flaw.

The big danger, besides such discomfort as might be present in some instances, is the possibility of a loop of bowel being pushed through the gap and then caught there so it can't slide back where it belongs. This is a "strangulated hernia," and it is an urgent emergency which has to be treated surgically, and treated without delay.

But while the hernia is still reducible, it can be repaired safely and very easily as compared to the task involved if it ever becomes strangulated.

Generally speaking, all of these hernias require surgical repair sooner or later — preferably sooner, because they can progress in only one direction as time passes. They get bigger and more dangerous

There are a few advocates of the "injection method," which involves injections of an irritant type, the purpose being to cause enough scar tissue and adhesions to close the gap. This technique is not always satisfactory, and I for one recommend surgery in the first place rather than spending time on the injections, since surgery may still be required anyway.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My navel seems to have a crust inside. Anyhow it is not open as it should be. Is this serious? Does this have anything to do with the stomach or anywhere else? — S.H.

Most likely it's an infection of some sort — fungus or bacterial. Not serious. Has nothing to do with your stomach.

Keeping it clean and dry after your bath (use a cotton swab to dry it) should help. You can try hydrogen peroxide or alcohol to subdue the infection. If it persists, check with your doctor as to possible use of an antibiotic.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 20 and haven't been circumcised, and cleaning is difficult. Are there any complications in having the operation at my age, and how long a hospital stay would this require? — S.A.

If the foreskin is taut, adhesions can occur, and that is valid reason for having the circumcision done regardless of age. Hospital stay would be brief — one to three days.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Thosteson's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

State Bar Membership Increases Over Last Year

MADISON — A year-end membership analysis of the State Bar of Wisconsin showed 8,302 members, an increase of 121 over the 1970 mid-year total.

Inactive members include those in good standing with the Bar, but not employed in any capacity of law practice.

A breakdown according to area counties is as follows: Outagamie, 124 members, 115 active, five inactive and four judges; Waupaca, 26 members, 23 active, 2 inactive and one judge; Winnebago 119 members, 107 active, seven inactive and five judges; Calumet 15 members, 14 active and one judge.

Byrnes Recommends 3 For Environmental Education Council

WASHINGTON — Rep. John W. Byrnes has urged Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to appoint representatives of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay to the newly created National Advisory Council on Environmental Education.

Byrne's recommendations include Chancellor Edward W. Weidner and Dr. George O'Hearn, faculty members, and Dennis Borkovek, a student and past president of the school's student government.

Your Money's Worth

Definite Signs Things Are Going to Improve

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Your college son and his friends, all of whom will be first-time voters next year, are sitting in your kitchen, drinking beer and bitterly attacking President Nixon for his rate of troop withdrawals from Vietnam and his "softness" on pollution problems.

They vow to make Vietnam and environment the key issues of '72's election, and to defeat Nixon on these alone. You interrupt, defend the President's policies as "just right" and forecast if they are correct on '72's issues, Nixon has it made.

Your two best friends are having cocktails at your house and, during the talk, they suggest Nixon has contributed to campus radicalism and actually has accelerated the "breakdown" in law and order. You scoff at so strong a word as "breakdown," insist that if they are correct on '72's issues, Nixon is in.

Your husband and you are having a quiet talk about your own 1971 family budget. Suddenly he says, "I've been waiting for a chance to tell you this. The company just got our 1970 earnings figures and we're much deeper in the red than any of us expected.

"Unless our sales turn up soon, we're heading for bankruptcy and, at my age, I don't know where or how I could start over."

What will be the political issues in your household in 1972? Vietnam? Law and order? Environment? Campus radicalism?

Or the economy?

And this is why all of Nixon's messages in these weeks are emphasizing the coming of a major economic upturn, a decline in unemployment, a slowing of the pace of price rise.

Porter

What's more, that's also why most or all of Nixon's projections will be brighter than those of private non-political economists.

As just one example of consensus of economists who are members of the prestigious American Statistical Association and the National Bureau of Economic Research puts our Gross National Product up seven per cent to $1,043-$1,047 billion in 1971. Nixon is putting the range at $1,060-$1,065 billion — which is a difference of quite a bunch of billions.

Will Nixon's strategy work?

Of course it will! I need not join the futile guessing game on precise GNP-unemployment-price figures to bet that the 1969-70 recession is either ending or already has ended and that we're on the way up again.

Never underestimate or forget that the recession, which began in November 1969, was deliberately engineered by policy acts of both the White House and the Federal Reserve System.

And do not underestimate or forget that the recovery also can be deliberately engineered by policy acts.

Once again, the Federal Reserve System is helping to make borrowing comparatively easy and certainly much, much cheaper than only a few months ago. This goes for the whole range of borrowers: the U. S. Treasury, states, cities, corporations, small businessmen, homebuilders, homebuyers — and you.

Once again, the federal budget is becoming aggressively stimulative to the economy — and you need not fight your way through this coming Friday's budget bafflegab to grasp that vital pocketbook point.

The housing and automobile industries — both enormously influential industries in our land — are sure to lead the upturn. A pickup in after-tax corporation profits seems a certainty.

On Wall St., optimism is nearly as widespread now as pessimism was on this day a year ago. Meanwhile, on Main St., confidence also is reviving in a comeback in consumer spending.

How the economic issue will turn out politically is not my beat, so here I stop. But I can go this far: ThePresidentwill go this far: The President will go all out to enhance your pocketbook in these two years to coax you into forgetting what happened to your pocketbook in the past two. And no matter how you cut that, it's good bread-and-butter news for you.
